ISRAEL REPLIES TO ARGENTINA

Eichmann Monstrous Case

TEARS AT U.N. MEETING

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

NEW YORK

Mrs. Golda Meir, the Israeli Foreign Minister, moved the public gallery to tears at the Security Council meeting on Wednesday when she gave details of how Adolf Eichmann supervised the annihilation of six million Jews during the Second World War. The Council met to hear Argentina's complaint against Israel for allegedly violating her sovereign rights.

Admitting that some Jews, including Israelis, had contravened Argentina's laws, Mrs. Meir denied that the country's sovereignty had been violated. Despite, however, her impassioned plea in defence of Israel's rights, it seemed certain that when the Council reassembles after adjournment on Wednesday the Argentine resolution, with American amendments, would be passed.

Dr. Amadeo, the Argentine representative, announced dramatically that the Argentine President, Dr. Frondizi, had called off his meeting with Mr. Ben-Gurion because the Israeli Premier had stated in advance that "Israel would never return Eichmann."

The Argentine resolution calls on the Council to declare that such actions as the kidnapping of Eichmann affect the sovereignty of a member State, cause international friction, and, if repeated, may endanger international peace. Argentina also asks the Council to request that Israel "proceed to an adequate reparation" in accordance with the U.N. Charter.

Reparation, Dr. Amadeo explained, meant Eichmann's return to Argentina and the punishment of those who abducted him. Mrs. Meir countered with: "Our expression of regret constitutes adequate reparation."

The Israeli Foreign Minister said that any violation of Argentina's sovereignty was insignificant compared with "the violation of the sovereignty of the spirit of man and of humanity's conception of justice" which had existed by Eichmann remaining free all these years.

BEN-GURION IN HOLLAND

From our Correspondent

AMSTERDAM

Mr. Ben-Gurion and his party arrived at Ypenburg Military Airport on Wednesday morning at the start of their two-day visit to Holland. Among those who welcomed them were the Dutch Foreign Minister, Mr. Luns, the Minister of Justice, Mr. Beerman, and the Israeli Ambassador, Mr. Cidor.

After inspecting a guard of honour formed by members of the Dutch Air Force, armed with Uzzis (Israeli sub-machine-guns), Mr. Ben-Gurion drove to the Israeli Embassy at The Hague, in front of which Jewish children greeted him with Hebrew songs. Later he drove to Soestdijke Palace, where he lunched with Queen Juliana. Prince Bernhard, who has just left hospital after an attack of pneumonia, met the guests briefly after lunch.

An Impartial Trial

ASSURANCE TO DEPUTIES

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

Adolf Eichmann would get as fair a trial in Israel as anywhere in the world, declared Mr. BARNETT JANNER (Leeds, United), President of the Board of Deputies, at a meeting of the Board on Sunday at Woburn House.

There was, he said, no question of Eichmann being tried by a jury. The trial would be conducted by judges, and Israeli judges had been complimented by some of the highest judicial authorities in the world for their fairness and their method of carrying on their work. There was no doubt that the trial would be an impartial one.

The discussion on Eichmann arose out from a paragraph on antisemitism in Germany in the report of the Foreign Affairs Committee. This stated that the arrest of Eichmann, the infamous head of the Special Branch created by the S.S. for the extermination of the Jewish population, and his removal for trial to Israel had led to a considerable amount of speculation as to the legal validity of the trial taking place in Israel, although there had been no question of the moral right of Israel to bring him to justice.

Question of Legality

The committee expressed its gratification that Eichmann had at last been found and apprehended.

A young Deputy, Mr. S. M. RICH (South London Liberal Synagogue), questioned the validity of Eichmann's removal from Argentina. He hoped that the committee had considered this point. Referring to the question of extradition of men wanted by a country for crimes or other purposes, he said that it would not have been thought appropriate if Britain had brought back in a manner similar to Eichmann's capture those Anglo-Jews wanted by the authorities and in Israel.

Mr. A. I. RICHTIGER (Leeds, Chassidische Synagogue) retorted: "I ask myself whether it is not in the interests of young men like Mr. Rich that Eichmann should be tried in Israel so that he should learn of the crimes that Eichmann committed."

Alderman Moss (Manchester Central) said he had just returned from

ANCIENT PORT UNEARTHED

From our Own Correspondent

JERUSALEM

The ruins of an ancient port, built three-and-a-half thousand years ago have been discovered at Tel Mor, near Ascalon.

The discovery was announced in Jerusalem on Thursday by the Ascalon Department of Antiquities.

Archæologists have found clear signs of the port having been destroyed and rebuilt by a succession of conquerors, including the Pharaoh Sethi the First, Sargon, and King David. The earliest remains belong to the beginning of the sixteenth century B.C.E., when the rule of the Hyksos in Canaan came to an end.

ALLIANCE CENTENARY CELEBRATIONS

President de Gaulle's Greetings

PARIS

Delegations from Jewish communities in all parts of the world, except those in the Soviet orbit, as well as representatives, of nearly every community in France, attended the impressive ceremony of the centenary celebrations of the Alliance Israélite Universelle which opened here on Tuesday night. The celebrations, which are to last four days, began in the Unesco building and among the many congratulatory messages received was one from Mr. Hammarskjoeld, the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

Among the representatives of Jewish communities abroad—American, Canadian, North African—attending the celebrations are also delegates from Britain.

M. André Malraux, the Minister for Cultural Affairs, who opened the proceedings, conveyed congratulations from the President, of the French Republic, General de Gaulle. The French Government was officially represented by the Foreign Minister, M. Couve de Murville.

M. Malraux paid tribute to the Jewish people, who, he said, had traditionally "preferred to resist oppression through the intellect rather than the sword" and he praised the Alliance for its outstanding cultural activities throughout the whole of the hundred years of its existence.

Over 50,000 Jewish children were today attending Alliance schools in various countries and in some of the schools, specially in North Africa, Arab children, too, were receiving a modern education.

Professor René Cassin, President of the Alliance, thanked the French Government representatives and the delegates for their attendance and recalled "the long-standing friendship" of President de Gaulle for the Alliance. He disclosed that General de Gaulle started taking a personal interest in the work of the Alliance more than 30 years ago and has remained a friend to this day.

Significantly, the celebrations inaugurated what may be described as a fortnight of conferences and conventions of international Jewish organisations, including one on Jewish education. The Executive of the Claims Conference is also meeting in Paris, and there is another conference designed to co-ordinate Jewish activities against antisemitism and the spread of the anti-Israeli boycott by Arab countries.

ALGERIAN JEWS' HOPES

Approval of Peace Talks

ALGIERS

Algerian Jewish leaders have almost unanimously approved the latest offer made by President de Gaulle to the Algerian "rebel" leaders, but they feel that he has now gone as far as is politically possible. They are hoping for the complete success of France in the forthcoming negotiations.

It must be recalled that whatever arrangement is agreed upon, the Algerian Jews have two main requests—the maintenance of French rule, and the maintenance of the Jewish community within the French one. Provided that these requirements are guaranteed, the Jews are open to the idea of any political reform which could be devised to bring peace to Algeria.

ELECTING A NEW CHIEF RABBI

Committee Members Selected

JERUSALEM

The Cabinet has approved the names of the four rabbis submitted by Rabbi Toledano, the Minister for Religious Affairs, who are to act as Government nominees on the eight member committee which appoints a majority of the Electoral College, the body that will elect a successor to the late Chief Rabbi Herzog.

The Government list comprises Rabbi Yehuda Leib Maimon, Rabbi Eliezer Waldenberg, Rabbi David Yosef Kaafan (Yemeni).

Rabbi Joseph Soloveitchik, of Boston, has again refused to stand for the post of Ashkenazi Chief Rabbi, Mr. M. Unger, editor of the New York Yiddish daily, "Jewish Journal," who is on a visit here, told the National Religious Party.

OBITUARY

LADY ISAACS, widow of the former Governor-General of Australia, died last Saturday at the age of 90.

The deaths are also announced of Mr. JUDAH SHUVAL, the Israeli broadcaster; Dr. ABRAHAM GROSS and Mr. J. S. LEVER, of London; Mr. MICHAEL GORDON, of Manchester; Mrs. ESTHER KEIDAN and Mr. M. LEVINSON, of Liverpool; and Mrs. MATHILDE FRANKEL, of South Africa.

From our Special Correspondent

Soviet broadcasts against Israel, always full of inaccuracies and very often deliberate lies, have this week reached the lowest level. After persistent vicious attacks on Ben-Gurion's Government in its Arabic broadcasts, Moscow has now started its anti-Israel slanders in specially prepared French broadcasts, designed for listeners in Africa.

Commenting on the announcement from Tel Aviv about Israel's technical aid agreement with Nigeria, Moscow Radio described Israel as "a lackey" in the service of British, French, and American imperialists, who are all scheming together with Israel "at dismembering former Colonies into small States remaining dependent on the former metropolis."

Israel's help to African countries, Moscow Radio said, must be treated with suspicion because the money came from the colonialists, Israel being "an imperialist puppet."

Referring to Mr. Ben-Gurion's tour in Europe, Moscow Radio alleged that its purpose was to arrange with De Gaulle the inclusion of Israel in the economic system of the aggressive imperialist bloc—Nato, in exchange for this Ben-Gurion was offering his services in defending the interest of the French and other colonialists in French Africa; and the imperialists knew that Ben-Gurion and his Government faithfully served their interests in the Middle East.

Undiplomatic Mission

THE Israeli Ambassador, Mr. ARTHUR LOURIE, left last Friday unexpectedly for the United States. But this did not, for a change, denote some sudden crisis in Israeli affairs, nor is it one of those "routine" visits with which political commentators like to mystify their readers. The occasion was a happy family event—the Brit Milah of his first grandson, the son of his daughter Barbara. His son-in-law, Mr. Sands, is on the faculty of Princeton University. Mr. Lourie's only other child, a son, is at present in England. The Ambassador, who is accompanied by his wife, expects to be back in London at the end of this month.

University Treasure

ABERDEEN UNIVERSITY has announced its intention of holding a special celebration in September to mark its centenary. It is actually older by far than 100 years, but it dates itself from 1860 because that is the year when the two universities the town boasted decided to amalgamate. The University describes as "one of its greatest treasures" an illuminated Hebrew codex of the Old Testament which it possesses, and the quality of the illuminations and decorations of this document richly merits the description of "sumptuous." Cecil Roth has described it in detail, in a small volume entitled "The Aberdeen Codex of the Hebrew Bible," published at 21s. for the University by Oliver and Boyd, Edinburgh. The illustrations in this book, unfortunately only in black and white, show how closely it is akin to the famous Kennicott Bible (which Roth also wrote a pamphlet on in the Bodleian Picture Book series, Oxford University). And they are of the same period, the Kennicott being finished in 1476, in Spain, and the Aberdeen—also Sephardi in origin—in 1494. Of additional interest in the Aberdeen Codex, however, is the fact that its complete text of the Old Testament is provided, presumably later, with vowels and accents and accompanied by the Massorah in a minuscular hand in the margins.

Youth Director

MR. MOSHE DAVIS, the newly appointed Director of the J.N.F. Youth and Education Department, has had a chequered career—he has been soldier, teacher, chaplain to the Forces, and business man. Born near Doncaster and brought up in Leeds, he received his Jewish education from his grandfather, the late Rabbi H. Hurwitz. In 1943 he served with the Jewish Brigade in Italy and subsequently with the British Army in India and Japan. On demobilisation he joined the Bachad Training Farm, later spending some time as teacher at the Bachad Merkaz Limmud in Manchester. For the past six years he has served as chaplain to the British Army of the Rhine.

"Rough Diamond"

TWENTY-ONE years ago on Wednesday the Anglo-Jewish ministry lost one of its most fearless champions with the death of the Rev. IZAK GOLLER, scholar, poet, author, and orator of renown. Goller was no respecter of persons. He strove consistently to infuse the rabbinate and the ministry with the inspiration of outspoken moral leadership and won acclaim as a promoter of Jewish national revival within the community. The late Chief Rabbi, Dr. Hertz, once described him as the "rough diamond" of the Anglo-Jewish ministry.

Jock of the Far East

"GORBALS to the Jungle" is the intriguing title of a book to be published in the autumn. Its author, JACK CAPLAN, of Glasgow, has written about his experiences as a prisoner of the Imperial Japanese Army during the last war. Brought up in the Gorbals district of Glasgow as a member of a large Jewish family, he has sought to give a series of impressions of his life from boyhood to the end of the war. Mr. Caplan, who founded the Fellowship of ex-P.O.W.s (Far East) about ten years ago, has done much to consolidate international relations between the various P.O.W. groups. A driver in the Royal Corps of Signals during the war, he was well known to thousands of British, Australian, and Dutch soldiers, who knew him as "Jock" in the hell-camps of Malaya, Thailand, and Saigon.

Commons Chasana

SHEVA BERACHOT, the Seven Benedictions intoned under the chuppa and at the ensuing wedding banquet, were heard for the first time in the House of Commons when Miss RUTH WEITZMAN, barrister daughter of Mr. David Weitzman, Q.C., M.P., held her wedding reception there recently. Earlier, at the Central Synagogue, Great Portland Street, W., she had become the wife of Mr. David Barr, a solicitor.

£180,000 GRANTS FOR UNIVERSITIES

Gifts By Wolfson Foundation

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

Both Oxford and Cambridge Universities have benefited this week by gifts from the Isaac Wolfson Foundation.

At Oxford, a grant of £80,000 has been made to St. Anne's College. This will enable the College to proceed immediately with the first stage of a long-term development to give St. Anne's residential buildings on the present site with accommodation for all its undergraduates.

At Cambridge a gift of £100,000 to the Council of New Hall, the third college for women in the University, has been made from the Foundation. The grant will assure the building of a dining block.

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

THE LAYMAN'S PART

HERMAN WOUK is a distinguished American writer who is the author of two best-selling novels. More recently he has written "This is My God," a popular book on Judaism which has been extensively reviewed in many important Jewish and non-Jewish papers.

As a book on Judaism, Wouk's latest work is not in any way extraordinary, and most reviewers are agreed that it contains little that is new and nothing that could not be easily found in scores of more substantial books written by authoritative Jewish scholars. What then can be the secret of the popularity of "This is My God"?

It is true of course that Herman Wouk is an able writer and his book on Judaism is very readable. It is also true that Wouk's fame as a successful author has attracted many people to read his latest book. Even so, it is not sufficient reason for the extraordinary fact that an exposition of Judaism is being so widely read.

In attempting to account for this phenomenon it is worth considering that Wouk is one of the very few Jewish laymen writing about Judaism. He is not a rabbi, professional scholar, teacher, or Jewish civil servant, and his livelihood is earned outside the area of the Jewish community. He is a layman who is committed to a full Orthodox Jewish life, and he feels so strongly about it that he is moved to write a good book on the subject.

NOW in earlier generations this fact would not have attracted any comment. The difference between the layman and the rabbi or professional teacher was found only in the degree of their scholarship; often not even there, because the standard of Jewish knowledge among laymen was generally so high, and the number of Jewish scholars in every class of society was so great, that Jewish religious life could often function perfectly well without the assistance of professional clergy. Within recent years, however, the gap between the layman and the minister has widened, and there are few communities today which could maintain a normal religious and communal life without the work of its professional men. The laymen have not the time, they lack the knowledge, they fail to observe.

Everything is left to the minister, and Judaism is becoming a vicarious religion—that is, a religion in which people think they are absolved from their personal and individual responsibilities by the efforts of the paid minister who represents them before God. Let him keep the Sabbath, the festivals, the dietary laws, attend synagogue, and study Torah: that's his job, he's paid for it! Even a child's attendance at Hebrew classes is relegated to a place of unimportance—because he isn't going to be a minister! We are fast approaching the disastrous situation where Judaism is the possession of a tiny group of professionals while the vast majority of our people remain smugly satisfied that as mere laymen Judaism is not for them.

ONE elementary way by which we can do something to improve on the present situation is for synagogues and communities to take adult education far more seriously. Classes for children are not sufficient: children have the habit of growing up and becoming like their parents—disinterested laymen. Study groups and lecture courses of various kinds should be devised with imagination and energy and, above all, without fear of experimenting. If the challenge of our time is to encourage the lay Jew towards a greater personal commitment to Jewish values, then we must find the way to bring the layman into the classroom.

Herman Wouk's book is a reminder of the ideal: a layman who has won for himself knowledge and who lives a full Judaism.

PRESENTATION TO REV. G. BOYARS

Honoured by Chazanim

To mark the retirement of the Rev. G. Boyars after serving the Anglo-Jewish community as a chazan at various synagogues and recently at the Hampstead Synagogue, London, a reception was given in his and Mrs. Boyars' honour by the Association of Ministers (Chazanim) of Great Britain, at the Golders Green Synagogue.

Tributes were paid to Mr. Boyars' untiring service to the community in all its activities.

A presentation was made to him by the Rev. J. N. Fagan, and others who spoke were the Rev. A. Slavinsky, the Rev. A. Rosenfeld, and the Rev. Reuben Turner.

SCHOLARSHIP FOR RABBI

Robert Waley Cohen Travel Award

The Sir Robert Waley Cohen Travel Scholarship of the Jewish Memorial Council has been awarded this year to Rabbi Dr. H. Rabinowicz.

Dr. Rabinowicz, who is the son of the late Biala Rabbi, has been minister of the Dollis Hill Synagogue, North-West London, since 1951. He is a frequent contributor to learned journals and also broadcasts for the Hebrew section of the B.B.C. He will spend three months in the United States studying "The Religious Trends of American Jewry."

WHAT IS TO BECOME OF THEM?

Throughout the world, thousands of children, particularly refugee children, are in need of food, shelter and medical care. Your donation will help to save life and restore health and happiness. Please send now.

FLATLETS FOR THE AGED

Board of Guardians' Plans

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

The welfare of old people and the future plans for their comfort and accommodation dominated the annual meeting of subscribers to the Jewish Board of Guardians, held at St. Pancras Town Hall last week.

The President of the Board, Mr. Oliver R. M. Sebag-Montefiore, who spoke of the need to ensure that old people preserved their dignity and independence, announced that plans were almost complete for the erection of one-room flatlets, plus a few with larger accommodation at Hemel Hempstead. For those old people who were unable to care for themselves, it was also planned to build a new home adjoining the flatlets.

There were also plans to build a home which would house those old people who could be described as mentally aged and who at present were, in many instances, being looked after by their children or grandchildren.

The meeting was attended by about 600 subscribers. The guests of honour were Sir Keith Joseph, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Housing and Local Government, and Lady Joseph. Also present were the Mayor of St. Pancras, Councillor Mrs. Louise Atabin, and the Deputy Mayor, Councillor R. J. Howell.

Presenting the annual accounts, Mr. Michael Nathan, a Treasurer of the Board, said that the gross expenditure of the Board had been reduced to £275,000 as against £279,000 in 1958. This was not due to a reduction in the volume of the Board's welfare and work but to better control of expenditure.

Deficit Reduced

At the end of 1959 there were 6,000 subscribers, an increase of 600 since 1958. An important factor in the lessening of expenditure had been the increase in grants from local authorities to the Board's Homes.

The annual deficit of the Board had been reduced from £41,009 in 1958 to £24,117 at the end of the year under review. But this deficit was still far too large. The centenary appeal total now stood at £368,000 of which £195,000 had been received by the end of 1959. This was still well below the figure of £500,000 which the Board set itself as a target. The Fund remained open.

Commenting on the deficit, the President said that his aim in the coming year was to try to break even and, if possible, to create a surplus.

Sir Keith Joseph spoke appreciatively of the Board's work and stressed that the real service was the personal service. Social service was a never-ending task. Twelve thousand visits had been made to people during the year by the Board's workers. This meant that over 5,000 people had been helped in the London area in the last twelve months and as a result their morale, confidence in themselves and in their fellow men had increased.

Referring to the section of the annual report dealing with broken homes, Sir Keith emphasised that a little extravagance by the Board for a short time in helping such cases might save a great deal more money being spent in the future. To keep a family together would save money in the long run and save the Board having eventually to care for the children of such marriages. He added that the work of creating homes for the aged was a double blessing. It not only provided homes for the deserving but enabled the old people to leave larger premises which could be used for those desperately in need of them.

Sir Keith criticised those who did not contribute to the work of the Board. He said he regretted that in the annual report there was not a page written in red about what could be done if more money were available. "Write it in blood and send it to the people of our community who do not already give."

Cheques were presented to the Board by Miss Anne Rowe, Chairman of the recently formed Guardian Group, and by Mrs. Lawson, Chairman of the Guardee Committee.

The President presented awards to three of the Board's apprentices for their work and progress. John Lampert, a second-year apprentice carpenter, received the Guy Lushington Prize; Larry Collins, a second-year apprentice radio and television service engineer, the Chairman's Prize; and Perry Weinberg, a third-year apprentice silversmith, received the Frank R. Waley Prize.

The President announced with regret that Mr. Charles M. Keyser, one of the Hon. Secretaries had indicated that he did not wish to continue in office.

A vote of thanks to the President and to Sir Keith Joseph was moved by the Haham, Dr. S. Gaon.

MEAT IMPORTS FROM DUBLIN

Progress Made

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

A further meeting took place last week between representatives of the ecclesiastical and shechita authorities of London, Manchester, and Dublin on the plan to import kosher meat from Dublin.

The meeting, under the chairmanship of the Chief Rabbi, lasted two days.

It is understood that further progress was made and that it is hoped to finalise the matter in the near future.

A special meeting of the General Council of the Federation of Synagogues is to be held on Wednesday when members will hear a statement by the President, Mr M. Lederman, on the latest talks between the Federation and the London Board for Shechita, on the question of the Federation's representation on the Board, and about the Federation rabbinate.

The meeting will also be asked to approve the provisional appointment of ten delegates to the London Board for Shechita.

ANTI-SHECHITA BILL

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is hoping to promote a Parliamentary Bill which would make shechita illegal.

At the annual meeting of the R.S.P.C.A., in London last week, a resolution calling on the General Council to bring about further changes in the law regarding ritual slaughter was unanimously agreed.

One speaker said the demand was not anti-Jewish but anti-cruelty, but many M.P.s would oppose legislation because they were afraid of offending world Jewry.

AMERICAN ZIONIST'S ACCUSATIONS

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

A violent clash occurred on Monday between Mr. Jacques Torczyner, Administrative Vice-President of the Zionist Organisation of America, and Mr. Donald Silk, Hon. Secretary of the Zionist Federation of Great Britain. The occasion was a meeting of the Political and Economic Circle of the General Zionist Organisation of Great Britain (held at 57 Eton Avenue, N.W.), addressed by Mr. Torczyner, who is on a brief visit to this country, and presided over by Mr. S. Landman.

Replying during "question time" to the speaker's outspoken criticism of the British Zionist movement, Mr. Silk dismissed as "a pack of lies" Mr. Torczyner's allegation that the Z.F. was using part of the money contributed by Anglo-Jewry to the J.P.A. to finance its own party politics and further its main purpose, namely "to fight other Zionists."

Membership Decline

After doubting Mr. Torczyner's ability to judge, after a few days in this country, the constructive work carried out by the Z.F. in the spheres of Jewish education, public relations, and Shnat Sherut, Mr. Silk (who later told me he was speaking in his personal capacity, and not as a representative of the Z.F.) shifted to the attack. Since the Zionist Organisation of America, he said, had taken up a "hell-bent identification policy," linking itself with the General Zionist party in Israel, its membership and influence had greatly declined.

Hitting back both at this comment and at Mr. Silk's criticism of the American attitude to Suez, Mr. Torczyner retorted that the decline in membership suffered by the Z.O.A. was common to all male Zionist organisations and resulted from their loss of ideology and their concentration on philanthropic work for Israel, not from any links with the General Zionist party.

He complained that Mr. Barnett Janner and Mr. Woolf Perry had never visited the Z.O.A. during their trips to America, but had "wilfully ignored" their American counterparts; that the Z.F. neglected and mistrusted the Z.O.A. and rejected all ideas of co-operation; and that leaders of the Z.O.A. had never been invited to visit or address the Z.F. Mr. Torczyner went on to prophesy that the Z.F. would fulfil Ben-Gurion's desire to "break up the world Zionist movement" unless some kind of amity was achieved.

New Leaders

"American and British Zionists have no basic differences," he continued, "except that our leaders have known each other so long that they can no longer work together. Therefore, I feel that the leaders must be sacrificed to the movement. I am glad that the General Zionists have put up a Congress election list in this country, for the Zionist movement badly needs new leadership.

"The men at the helm of the world Zionist movement are those who were at the helm twelve years ago. The men who helped create the State are not the men who can best develop the essential relationship between Israel and the Diaspora."

Discussing the need for Zionist leaders to be outspoken and aggressive where necessary, Mr. Torczyner said the Zionist movement had lost influence because it had abdicated from its position of leadership in the Jewish world, and because idealism had been replaced by "vested interests and big business and fund-raising." Those who gave the largest donations to Israel had now become the spokesmen of world Jewry, and numerous other organisations were sharing and dissipating the Zionist movement's former power.

Increase of Intolerance

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

Stating that "in the tradition of Berkeley Street" it was not the practice to cast reproaches at intolerance in the Orthodox Jewish community, Master A. S. Diamond, President of the West London Synagogue of British Jews (Reform), nevertheless said, at the annual meeting at 33 Seymour Place, W.1, last week, "two or three words by way of denial of some of the more remarkable statements made about us."

Last year, said Mr. Diamond, he had commented that intolerance in the community was increasingly evident. Since then the atmosphere, if anything, had become worse. "We do not," he said, "lightheartedly admit proselytes. They undergo a strict training in Judaism before they are received. And as a rule this period of preparation lasts a year or more."

Presenting the annual report, the Senior Warden, Mr. S. G. Schwab, referred to the plan to redevelop the site between the synagogue and 33 Seymour Place. This would involve the demolition of houses in Upper Berkeley Street and Seymour Place and the erection of a modern block of residential flats, a car park, and additional accommodation for the synagogue, including badly needed classrooms.

He referred also to the Members' Activities Committee and of the appointment of a Membership Liaison Officer to visit members who were ill, elderly, or with special problems.

Mr. E. F. Q. Henriques, a Joint Treasurer, said that the houses in Upper Berkeley Street were obsolescent, and it was intended to use the flats to be built in their place for commercial purposes to assist the synagogue funds.

Presenting the annual balance-sheet, Mr. Henriques said that the finances of the synagogue were in a healthier state than for many years past. The excess of expenditure over income was £447 compared with £2,606 the previous year and was not a cause for anxiety. It was more than compensated for by a net increase in the capital account of £2,956.

The meeting agreed to appoint a new minister, to assist the existing two officiants. He is Mr. Marim Charry, a student at the Jewish Theological Seminary of the United States of America, who graduates as a rabbi this month. He will be an assistant minister at West London Synagogue for a period of two years, at a salary of £1,500.

With the retirement of Mr. Schwab as Senior Warden, Mr. David Sandell was elected to bring up the warden's strength to three. Elected to the Council of the synagogue were Mr. H. Arbeid, Mr. Percy Cohen, Mrs. J. Fry, Mr. J. Hart, Mr. R. Jacobs, Mr. M. A. B. King-Hamilton, Q.C., Mr. L. T. S. Littman, Lady Nathan, Mr. D. P. Salinger, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Schwab, and Mrs. B. M. Tyler.

SUNNY GARDEN PARTY

Happy Gathering at Grove House

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

The sun (not invariably a feature of English garden parties) was a welcome guest at the annual "June Fair" held on Sunday at Grove House, Highbury Grove, N.5, one of the homes for old people administered under the auspices of the Jewish Board of Guardians.

Brilliant sunlight blazed down on the garden, gay with bunting and fluttering balloons, and its row of stalls arcaded in the Italian style. It beat relentlessly on the willing heads of voluntary helpers, on the Grove House Committee members and their children and grandchildren, on the Finsbury Park Ladies' Guild, and on the boys and girls of the Stamford Hill and Victoria Clubs, the Alyth Youth Fellowship and the West London Synagogue Junior Membership who acted as stewards or presided over enticing-looking sideshows.

One youthful showman wore a Matt Dillon hat. For the rest, the only cool places available were the vast coloured umbrellas where stacks of ice-cream and lemonade were sheltering from the sun; or the tea enclosure, full of little tables.

The proceeds of the Fair, which amounted to about £600, will be used to modernise the bedroom furnishings and equipment, which are less up-to-date than they might be—Grove House being a particularly old building. A certain amount of work has already been carried out since last year on the conversion of a dormitory into individual bedrooms. Another recent development is the establishment of a small synagogue.

Although most of the goods sold at the Fair had been donated, the residents themselves (there are 64 altogether) contributed items they had made in their occupational therapy classes. The classes, I was told by Mrs. Ellis A. Franklin, Chairman of Grove House Committee, are extremely well attended, and even the oldest resident, who is aged 97, is a regular member.

REFORM AFFILIATION POSTPONED

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

One of the disappointments for the North London Progressive Synagogue last year was the necessity of postponing its proposed affiliation to the Reform Synagogues of Great Britain, said the President, Sir Basil Henriques, when he addressed the annual meeting held at the synagogue last week.

It was at an extraordinary meeting in April that the synagogue, already a member of the Union of Liberal and Progressive Synagogues, decided to apply to join the Reform Synagogues as well. A letter had since been received from the latter which implied certain conditions which the synagogue could not possibly accept, said Sir Basil. The Hon. Officers had decided to postpone any action for a year while further negotiations took place, which everyone hoped would result in agreement.

In his report Mr. J. Kaye, Chairman, spoke of the disappointing response to appeals for the Building Fund. It was proposed to make a personal appeal to each member of the synagogue.

The following were elected to the Council of the synagogue: A. S. Bennet, R. J. Fasht, G. Finer, A. Kisberg, E. A. Lanston, J. Shine, and I. Spagatner.

WOMEN'S LODGE OFFICERS INSTALLED

The officers of the newly formed North London Women's Lodge of B'nai B'rith have been installed into office by Mr. Theo. H. Birks, Hon. Grand Secretary of District Grand Lodge, assisted by Alderman Samuel Fisher, Vice-President of the North London Men's Lodge.

Those installed were Mrs. S. Fisher, President; Mrs. B. Bard, Vice-President; Mrs. Theo. H. Birks, Monitor; Mrs. L. Gardner, Treasurer; Miss R. Bailen, Hon. Secretary; Miss U. J. Magrill, Warden; Mrs. F. Richmond, Guardian; and Mrs. F. Joseph and Mrs. P. Joseph, Council Members.

OXFORD WOMAN CENTENARIAN

By a Correspondent

Mrs. Julia Levy, of Headington, Oxford, who has received a telegram of congratulation from the Queen, took 100 years to find out the real date of her birthday.

Mrs. Levy, London-born and a widow since 1908, recently discovered her birth-certificate in a pile of old documents and learnt that she was born on June 19 and not on June 18 as she had always thought. But her family, including twelve grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren, considered her centenary such an important event that the celebrations were held at her home, both last Saturday and last Sunday.

Mrs. Levy's husband, when he was alive, was known for his resemblance to Edward VII, the Queen's great-grandfather.

YOUTH COUNCIL'S AIMS

The recently formed Jewish Youth Council has circularised non-affiliated youth organisations with a statement of its immediate objectives.

These include: the holding of lectures and discussions for youth leaders; a collection of publications and educational material, to be assembled at Hillel House, London; and the production of a Jewish youth magazine, the first edition to appear in September or October.

HEBREW TEACHERS' PLAN

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

A plan to set up a non-profit-making educational publication society was announced last week by Miss B. J. Barwell, President of the National Union of Hebrew Teachers. She was addressing a conference of teachers and educationists held in London under the auspices of the Jewish National Fund to discuss the work of the J.N.F. Education Department, as well as a new N.U.H.T. memorandum on text-books and teaching aids.

The Rev. Dr. I. Levy, Chairman of the J.N.F. Education Department, gave a survey of the work of the department, which, he said, was producing a great variety of material for the use of teachers and pupils in Jewish schools and synagogue classes.

Introducing the N.U.H.T. memorandum, Mr. Raymond Apple pointed out that it was designed not only for teachers and educational authorities but also for publishers, writers of text-books, and the community at large. The memorandum would indicate what kinds of text-books were needed.

The memorandum was severely criticised by Mr. S. Taylor, headmaster of the Kerem School. The final draft had not, he said, been shown to educationists and teachers, and the London Board of Education Committee had not been consulted.

Rabbi I. Bakst, headmaster of the New Synagogue Classes, criticised both the memorandum and the J.N.F. Education Department. The Chumash, he said, was the best and most modern text-book. He objected to an outside organisation (i.e., the J.N.F.) sending educational material to the classes.

Mr. Rosser Chinn, President of the J.N.F., stated that they welcomed criticism, from which they could learn how to improve their work.

Replying to the debate, Mr. Shmuel Lowensohn, Director of the J.N.F. Youth and Education Department, pointed out that the Department were constantly appealing to teachers for suggestions and criticisms, but those who had replied to their circulars had expressed themselves as highly satisfied.

Miss Barwell, in reply to the critics of the N.U.H.T. memorandum, stressed that there was a considerable turn-over of teachers, and for temporary teachers the memorandum was useful. The London Board and its education officers had been invited to the N.U.H.T. working party, but had refused to accept.

FLATLETS FOR THE AGED

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

The welfare of old people and the future plans for their comfort and accommodation dominated the annual meeting of subscribers to the Jewish Board of Guardians, held at St. Pancras Town Hall last week.

The President of the Board, Mr. Oliver R. M. Sebag-Montefiore, who spoke of the need to ensure that old people preserved their dignity and independence, announced that plans were almost complete for the erection of one-room flatlets, plus a few with larger accommodation at Hemel Hempstead. For those old people who were unable to care for themselves, it was also planned to build a new home adjoining the flatlets.

There were also plans to build a home which would house those old people who could be described as mentally aged and who at present were, in many instances, being looked after by their children or grandchildren.

The meeting was attended by about 600 subscribers. The guests of honour were Sir Keith Joseph, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Housing and Local Government, and Lady Joseph. Also present were the Mayor of St. Pancras, Councillor Mrs. Louise Arabin, and the Deputy Mayor, Councillor R. J. Howell.

Presenting the annual accounts, Mr. Michael Nathan, a Treasurer of the Board, said that the gross expenditure of the Board had been reduced to £275,000 as against £279,000 in 1958. This was not due to a reduction in the volume of the Board's welfare and work but to better control of expenditure.

Deficit Reduced

At the end of 1959 there were 6,000 subscribers, an increase of 600 since 1958. An important factor in the lessening of expenditure had been the increase in grants from local authorities to the Board's Homes.

The annual deficit of the Board had been reduced from £41,009 in 1958 to £24,117 at the end of the year under review. But this deficit was still far too large. The centenary appeal total now stood at £368,000 of which £195,000 had been received by the end of 1959. This was still well below the figure of £500,000 which the Board set itself as a target. The Fund remained open.

Commenting on the deficit, the President said that his aim in the coming year was to try to break even and, if possible, to create a surplus.

Sir Keith Joseph spoke appreciatively of the Board's work and stressed that the real service was the personal service. Social service was a never-ending task. Twelve thousand visits had been made to people during the year by the Board's workers. This meant that over 5,000 people had been helped in the London area in the last twelve months and as a result their morale, confidence in themselves and in their fellow men had increased.

Referring to the section of the annual report dealing with broken homes, Sir Keith emphasised that a little extravagance by the Board for a short time in helping such cases might save a great deal more money being spent in the future. To keep a family together would save money in the long run and save the Board having eventually to care for the children of such marriages. He added that the work of creating homes for the aged was a double blessing. It not only provided homes for the deserving but enabled the old people to leave larger premises which could be used for those desperately in need of them.

Sir Keith criticised those who did not contribute to the work of the Board. He said he regretted that in the annual report there was not a page written in red about what could be done if more money were available. "Write it in blood and send it to the people of our community who do not already give."

Cheques were presented to the Board by Miss Anne Rowe, Chairman of the recently formed Guardian Group, and by Mrs. Lawson, Chairman of the Guardee Committee.

The President presented awards to three of the Board's apprentices for their work and progress. John Lampert, a second-year apprentice carpenter, received the Guy Lushington Prize; Larry Collins, a second-year apprentice radio and television service engineer, the Chairman's Prize; and Perry Weinberg, a third-year apprentice silversmith, received the Frank R. Waley Prize.

The President announced with regret that Mr. Charles M. Keyser, one of the Hon. Secretaries had indicated that he did not wish to continue in office.

A vote of thanks to the President and to Sir Keith Joseph was moved by the Haham, Dr. S. Gaon.

MEAT IMPORTS FROM DUBLIN

Progress Made

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

A further meeting took place last week between representatives of the ecclesiastical and shechita authorities of London, Manchester, and Dublin on the plan to import kosher meat from Dublin.

The meeting, under the chairmanship of the Chief Rabbi, lasted two days.

It is understood that further progress was made and that it is hoped to finalise the matter in the near future.

A special meeting of the General Council of the Federation of Synagogues is to be held on Wednesday when members will hear a statement by the President, Mr M. Lederman, on the latest talks between the Federation and the London Board for Shechita, on the question of the Federation's representation on the Board, and about the Federation rabbinate.

The meeting will also be asked to approve the provisional appointment of ten delegates to the London Board for Shechita.

ANTI-SHECHITA BILL

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is hoping to promote a Parliamentary Bill which would make shechita illegal.

At the annual meeting of the R.S.P.C.A., in London last week, a resolution calling on the General Council to bring about further changes in the law regarding ritual slaughter was unanimously agreed.

One speaker said the demand was not anti-Jewish but anti-cruelty, but many M.P.s would oppose legislation because they were afraid of offending world Jewry.

AMERICAN ZIONIST'S ACCUSATIONS

A violent clash occurred on Monday between Mr. Jacques Torczyner, Administrative Vice-President of the Zionist Organisation of America, and Mr. Donald Silk, Hon. Secretary of the Zionist Federation of Great Britain. The occasion was a meeting of the Political and Economic Circle of the General Zionist Organisation of Great Britain (held at 57 Eton Avenue, N.W.), addressed by Mr. Torczyner, who is on a brief visit to this country, and presided over by Mr. S. Landman.

Replying during "question time" to the speaker's outspoken criticism of the British Zionist movement, Mr. Silk dismissed as "a pack of lies" Mr. Torczyner's allegation that the Z.F. was using part of the money contributed by Anglo-Jewry to the J.P.A. to finance its own party politics and further its main purpose, namely "to fight other Zionists."

Membership Decline

After doubting Mr. Torczyner's ability to judge, after a few days in this country, the constructive work carried out by the Z.F. in the spheres of Jewish education, public relations, and Shnat Sherut, Mr. Silk (who later told me he was speaking in his personal capacity, and not as a representative of the Z.F.) shifted to the attack. Since the Zionist Organisation of America, he said, had taken up a "hell-bent identification policy," linking itself with the General Zionist party in Israel, its membership and influence had greatly declined.

Hitting back both at this comment and at Mr. Silk's criticism of the American attitude to Suez, Mr. Torczyner retorted that the decline in membership suffered by the Z.O.A. was common to all male Zionist organisations and resulted from their loss of ideology and their concentration on philanthropic work for Israel, not from any links with the General Zionist party.

He complained that Mr. Barnett Janner and Mr. Woolf Perry had never visited the Z.O.A. during their trips to America, but had "wilfully ignored" their American counterparts; that the Z.F. neglected and mistrusted the Z.O.A. and rejected all ideas of co-operation; and that leaders of the Z.O.A. had never been invited to visit or address the Z.F. Mr. Torczyner went on to prophesy that the Z.F. would fulfil Ben-Gurion's desire to "break up the world Zionist movement" unless some kind of amity was achieved.

New Leaders

"American and British Zionists have no basic differences," he continued, "except that our leaders have known each other so long that they can no longer work together. Therefore, I feel that the leaders must be sacrificed to the movement. I am glad that the General Zionists have put up a Congress election list in this country, for the Zionist movement badly needs new leadership.

"The men at the helm of the world Zionist movement are those who were at the helm twelve years ago. The men who helped create the State are not the men who can best develop the essential relationship between Israel and the Diaspora."

Discussing the need for Zionist leaders to be outspoken and aggressive where necessary, Mr. Torczyner said the Zionist movement had lost influence because it had abdicated from its position of leadership in the Jewish world, and because idealism had been replaced by "vested interests and big business and fund-raising." Those who gave the largest donations to Israel had now become the spokesmen of world Jewry, and numerous other organisations were sharing and dissipating the Zionist movement's former power.

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

Stating that "in the tradition of Berkeley Street" it was not the practice to cast reproaches at intolerance in the Orthodox Jewish community, Master A. S. Diamond, President of the West London Synagogue of British Jews (Reform), nevertheless said, at the annual meeting at 33 Seymour Place, W.1, last week, "two or three words by way of denial of some of the more remarkable statements made about us."

Last year, said Mr. Diamond, he had commented that intolerance in the community was increasingly evident. Since then the atmosphere, if anything, had become worse. "We do not," he said, "lightheartedly admit proselytes. They undergo a strict training in Judaism before they are received. And as a rule this period of preparation lasts a year or more."

Presenting the annual report, the Senior Warden, Mr. S. G. Schwab, referred to the plan to redevelop the site between the synagogue and 33 Seymour Place. This would involve the demolition of houses in Upper Berkeley Street and Seymour Place and the erection of a modern block of residential flats, a car park, and additional accommodation for the synagogue, including badly needed classrooms.

He referred also to the Members' Activities Committee and of the appointment of a Membership Liaison Officer to visit members who were ill, elderly, or with special problems.

Mr. E. F. Q. Henriques, a Joint Treasurer, said that the houses in Upper Berkeley Street were obsolescent, and it was intended to use the flats to be built in their place for commercial purposes to assist the synagogue funds.

Presenting the annual balance-sheet, Mr. Henriques said that the finances of the synagogue were in a healthier state than for many years past. The excess of expenditure over income was £447 compared with £2,606 the previous year and was not a cause for anxiety. It was more than compensated for by a net increase in the capital account of £2,956.

The meeting agreed to appoint a new minister, to assist the existing two officiants. He is Mr. Marim Charry, a student at the Jewish Theological Seminary of the United States of America, who graduates as a rabbi this month. He will be an assistant minister at West London Synagogue for a period of two years, at a salary of £1,500.

With the retirement of Mr. Schwab as Senior Warden, Mr. David Sandell was elected to bring up the warden's strength to three. Elected to the Council of the synagogue were Mr. H. Arbeid, Mr. Percy Cohen, Mrs. J. Fry, Mr. J. Hart, Mr. R. Jacobs, Mr. M. A. B. King-Hamilton, Q.C., Mr. L. T. S. Littman, Lady Nathan, Mr. D. P. Salinger, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Schwab, and Mrs. B. M. Tyler.

SUNNY GARDEN PARTY

Happy Gathering at Grove House

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

The sun (not invariably a feature of English garden parties) was a welcome guest at the annual "June Fair" held on Sunday at Grove House, Highbury Grove, N.5, one of the homes for old people administered under the auspices of the Jewish Board of Guardians.

Brilliant sunlight blazed down on the garden, gay with bunting and fluttering balloons, and its row of stalls arcaded in the Italian style. It beat relentlessly on the willing heads of voluntary helpers, on the Grove House Committee members and their children and grandchildren, on the Finsbury Park Ladies' Guild, and on the boys and girls of the Stamford Hill and Victoria Clubs, the Alyth Youth Fellowship and the West London Synagogue Junior Membership who acted as stewards or presided over enticing-looking sideshows.

One youthful showman wore a Matt Dillon hat. For the rest, the only cool places available were the vast coloured umbrellas where stacks of ice-cream and lemonade were sheltering from the sun; or the tea enclosure, full of little tables.

The proceeds of the Fair, which amounted to about £600, will be used to modernise the bedroom furnishings and equipment, which are less up-to-date than they might be—Grove House being a particularly old building. A certain amount of work has already been carried out since last year on the conversion of a dormitory into individual bedrooms. Another recent development is the establishment of a small synagogue.

Although most of the goods sold at the Fair had been donated, the residents themselves (there are 64 altogether) contributed items they had made in their occupational therapy classes. The classes, I was told by Mrs. Ellis A. Franklin, Chairman of Grove House Committee, are extremely well attended, and even the oldest resident, who is aged 97, is a regular member.

REFORM AFFILIATION POSTPONED

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

One of the disappointments for the North London Progressive Synagogue last year was the necessity of postponing its proposed affiliation to the Reform Synagogues of Great Britain, said the President, Sir Basil Henriques, when he addressed the annual meeting held at the synagogue last week.

It was at an extraordinary meeting in April that the synagogue, already a member of the Union of Liberal and Progressive Synagogues, decided to apply to join the Reform Synagogues as well. A letter had since been received from the latter which implied certain conditions which the synagogue could not possibly accept, said Sir Basil. The Hon. Officers had decided to postpone any action for a year while further negotiations took place, which everyone hoped would result in agreement.

In his report Mr. J. Kaye, Chairman, spoke of the disappointing response to appeals for the Building Fund. It was proposed to make a personal appeal to each member of the synagogue.

The following were elected to the Council of the synagogue: A. S. Bennet, R. J. Fasht, G. Finer, A. Kisberg, E. A. Lanston, J. Shine, and I. Spagatner.

WOMEN'S LODGE OFFICERS INSTALLED

The officers of the newly formed North London Women's Lodge of B'nai B'rith have been installed into office by Mr. Theo. H. Birks, Hon. Grand Secretary of District Grand Lodge, assisted by Alderman Samuel Fisher, Vice-President of the North London Men's Lodge.

Those installed were Mrs. S. Fisher, President; Mrs. B. Bard, Vice-President; Mrs. Theo. H. Birks, Monitor; Mrs. L. Gardner, Treasurer; Miss R. Bailen, Hon. Secretary; Miss U. J. Magrill, Warden; Mrs. F. Richmond, Guardian; and Mrs. F. Joseph and Mrs. P. Joseph, Council Members.

OXFORD WOMAN CENTENARIAN

By a Correspondent

Mrs. Julia Levy, of Headington, Oxford, who has received a telegram of congratulation from the Queen, took 100 years to find out the real date of her birthday.

Mrs. Levy, London-born and a widow since 1908, recently discovered her birth-certificate in a pile of old documents and learnt that she was born on June 19 and not on June 18 as she had always thought. But her family, including twelve grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren, considered her centenary such an important event that the celebrations were held at her home, both last Saturday and last Sunday.

Mrs. Levy's husband, when he was alive, was known for his resemblance to Edward VII, the Queen's great-grandfather.

YOUTH COUNCIL'S AIMS

The recently formed Jewish Youth Council has circularised non-affiliated youth organisations with a statement of its immediate objectives.

These include: the holding of lectures and discussions for youth leaders; a collection of publications and educational material, to be assembled at Hillel House, London; and the production of a Jewish youth magazine, the first edition to appear in September or October.

HEBREW TEACHERS' PLAN

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

A plan to set up a non-profit-making educational publication society was announced last week by Miss B. J. Barwell, President of the National Union of Hebrew Teachers. She was addressing a conference of teachers and educationists held in London under the auspices of the Jewish National Fund to discuss the work of the J.N.F. Education Department, as well as a new N.U.H.T. memorandum on text-books and teaching aids.

The Rev. Dr. I. Levy, Chairman of the J.N.F. Education Department, gave a survey of the work of the department, which, he said, was producing a great variety of material for the use of teachers and pupils in Jewish schools and synagogue classes.

Introducing the N.U.H.T. memorandum, Mr. Raymond Apple pointed out that it was designed not only for teachers and educational authorities but also for publishers, writers of text-books, and the community at large. The memorandum would indicate what kinds of text-books were needed.

The memorandum was severely criticised by Mr. S. Taylor, headmaster of the Kerem School. The final draft had not, he said, been shown to educationists and teachers, and the London Board of Education Committee had not been consulted.

Rabbi I. Bakst, headmaster of the New Synagogue Classes, criticised both the memorandum and the J.N.F. Education Department. The Chumash, he said, was the best and most modern text-book. He objected to an outside organisation (i.e., the J.N.F.) sending educational material to the classes.

Mr. Rosser Chinn, President of the J.N.F., stated that they welcomed criticism, from which they could learn how to improve their work.

Replying to the debate, Mr. Shmuel Lowensohn, Director of the J.N.F. Youth and Education Department, pointed out that the Department were constantly appealing to teachers for suggestions and criticisms, but those who had replied to their circulars had expressed themselves as highly satisfied.

Miss Barwell, in reply to the critics of the N.U.H.T. memorandum, stressed that there was a considerable turn-over of teachers, and for temporary teachers the memorandum was useful. The London Board and its education officers had been invited to the N.U.H.T. working party, but had refused to accept.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY'S NEW PRESIDENT

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

Professor Norman Bentwich is the new President of the Jewish Historical Society of England. He succeeds Dr. Richard D. Barnett, who proposed his election at Monday night's meeting of the Society, held in the Gustave Tuck Theatre of University College, Gower Street, W.C.1.

Dr. Barnett recalled that Professor Bentwich had served for many years on the Council of the Society and was a distinguished figure in Anglo-Jewry—an Anglo-Jewish monument—he was equally well known in Israel, and his flow of eminently readable books continued unceasingly.

At this meeting an address was given by Mr. C. C. Aronsfeld, Assistant Director of the Wiener Library, on "Nineteenth-Century German Immigrants."

Mr. Aronsfeld said that these Germans had scarcely been noticed by the historians, for they had not come in large numbers, like those who had escaped from the Tsarist pogroms or those of their own countrymen who, about the same time, went to America. No statistics had ever fixed a figure. Between 1830 and 1930 no more than 250,000 Jews were believed to have left Germany (roughly twice as many as had entered it), and the vast majority settled in America and elsewhere.

Theirs, said Mr. Aronsfeld, was much rather a story of individuals. There certainly was a dazzling galaxy of titles among the immigrants from Germany—Chief Rabbi Adler, Sir Israel Gollancz, Sir Arthur Schuster, Sir Ernest Cassel, Baron Reuter, Dr. Ludwig Mond, Viscount Hirst, and many more. Most of them hailed from Northern Germany—Hamburg, Hanover, and Cologne; also from Berlin, and what was then the Grand Duchy of Posen (now Western Poland). By contrast Jewish immigrants from Southern Germany, usually chose the U.S.A.

In his observation on the religious aspect of his subject, Mr. Aronsfeld said that few, comparatively, of the German Jews who came to England during the nineteenth century were Orthodox in the way of their brethren a generation or so earlier. Many were Jews only in name, though even among them Jewish consciousness was often sufficiently awake to revolt against the cruelties that began to darken the latter days of the century.

Of those who adopted Christianity, a striking number chose what seemed to them the intellectually least-unsettling variety by turning Unitarians.

Yet, pointed out Mr. Aronsfeld, the inspiration of Orthodoxy also came from Germany. For the first generation of the London Adass Yisroel were Germans as well as Hungarians.

ISRAELIS SIGN SEA CHARTER

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

Israel was one of 45 States whose representatives last Friday signed a new Convention on Safety of Life at Sea, which concluded a conference held in London last week. Among the other participants were the United States, the Soviet Union, and Afro-Asian countries, including India, Japan, and the United Arab Republic.

The Israeli delegation was headed by Mr. Isaac Mintz, Legal Adviser to the Ministry of Transport. It was one of the smallest but its members took an active part, serving on four committees: the General, Construction of Ships, Life Saving Appliances, and Dangerous Goods Committees.

The Convention incorporates 58 recommendations relating to technical matters designed to make service at sea safer.

LESSON OF SINAI

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

The main lesson learned from the Sinai campaign was the importance of moving units speedily, according to Mr. Moshe Dayan, who commanded the Israeli Forces during the penetration of Sinai.

Speaking in the B.B.C. Television programme "Small World," Mr. Dayan said the Israelis had realised that their task had to be accomplished in ten days.

Deputies Discuss Eichmann

Israel and he asked the Board and members of the Anglo-Jewish community to be careful at the moment at the comments they made on this issue. An eminent lawyer in England had expressed the hope that Israel would not permit Eichmann to be tried in any other country and had stated that there was ample legal justification for this trial taking place there.

In a maiden speech, Mr. CAPEL JACKLYN (Newport) said he had been approached by a large number of non-Jewish people in his constituency who felt it was right for the Israelis to try Eichmann.

The defeat of Sir Oswald Mosley's Union Movement candidates in the recent municipal elections was reported by Mr. J. DIGHT (Old Boys' Association), Chairman of the Board's Defence Committee, in his report.

89 Votes

At Moss Side West, Manchester, the Union Movement candidate had polled only 89 votes out of 3,567 votes cast. At Liverpool Exchange division, Mosley's candidate had polled 105 votes out of 2,224, and at Islington 128 votes out of 1,125 votes cast. In the North Kensington ward, Mosley's right-hand man, Geoffrey Hamm, had, despite the tremendous activity of the movement in that area, polled only 134 votes out of 3,535 votes cast.

In his monthly report, Mr. Dight said there had been evidence of considerably increased activity on the part of antisemitic organisations, and the committee had expressed some disquiet with regard to the numerous incidents which had occurred during recent weeks. The activities of the Union Movement appeared to be more widespread, and Sir Oswald was addressing meetings in many parts of London. More frequent references than previously were made to Jews.

After referring to the defeat of the Mosley candidates locally, Mr. Dight said that in those circumstances the Board might well shade down the opening remarks of the report which gave a feeling of apprehension—which existed at the time the report was produced.

Mr. Dight's report referred to a meeting which had taken place between the Committee and the National Chairman and Vice-Chairman of Ajex.

Ajex Assurance

"I was assured that Ajex wish to work loyally and harmoniously with the Committee, and it was agreed that there were no outstanding matters which should militate against this. Ajex would, as hitherto, take its full part in the deliberations of the Committee, and any variance of view would be brought to the notice of the Chairman of the Committee by the Chairman of Ajex in an endeavour to reach agreement. While the Chairman of Ajex retains full freedom of speech, he and his colleagues would endeavour to maintain an atmosphere of loyal and friendly relations between Ajex and the Committee in an endeavour to reach agreement."

The recent television broadcast in the "Probation Officer" series, dealing with a youth who daubed swastikas on a synagogue, was raised, and Mr. Dight reported on discussions he had with the Director of Drama of Associated Rediffusion and the producer of the programme. The company, he said, took care that every minority in this country should be safeguarded. In the programme it was intended to show that the youth had adopted Nazi ideas because his parents were not sufficiently well-balanced to guide him. The company frankly admitted to Mr. Dight that although this was their intention, the programme had failed hopelessly and had created something which they never intended.

Mr. A. SUPER (Pontypridd) was strongly criticised by some Deputies for saying that Jews could have supported the World Refugee Year appeal better than they had done.

Councillor S. DAVIES (Manchester, Higher Broughton) retorted that World Refugee Year had been led by Jews who had given to the appeal generally in addition to their contributions to Corra. "Jews have done their duty in every possible way," he said.

Mrs. ELSIE JANNER (Newcastle upon Tyne, Jesmond) Chairman of the Education Committee (which in future will be called the Education and Youth Committee), was asked if the Board could influence the Minister of Education in regard to the removal of State aid from the Avigdor Secondary School, Stamford Hill.

She stated that the Minister had already rejected the appeal and State aid would be withdrawn at the end of August. "There is nothing further we can do. There is no need for the school to close. It can carry on as a private, independent school. As a girls' school it can apply later on for grammar-school status. The old grammar-school status was for a mixed school."

PHARMACISTS TO RAISE £10,000

University Friends' Dinner

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

Is there any likelihood that the ancient art of pharmacy may one day supersede newer skills in the world of medicine . . . and could this metamorphosis take place in the brand-new State of Israel?

Dr. Alec Lerner, Chairman of the Executive of the British Friends of the Hebrew University, believes that it will. Speaking at the fourth annual dinner and ball of the Pharmaceutical Group of the Friends, which took place on Sunday at the Savoy Hotel, W.1, he said: "The Hebrew University fully understands the important rôle pharmacology has to play in healing. I believe that pharmacists will replace surgeons and bacteriologists in the ultimate conquest of disease."

The Pharmaceutical Group has pledged itself to raise £10,000 for the erection of pharmaceutical laboratories in the new building that will one day replace the temporary premises of the only School of Pharmacy in Israel. Sunday's proceeds amounted to approximately £2,000, bring the total so far raised to about £7,000.

Certainly the achievements of the Group have not gone unnoticed in Israel. In a brochure message Dr. J. Kohlberg, President of the Pharmaceutical Association of Israel, wrote: "The Pharmaceutical Group in England—considering its numbers—has done more than any other group to help towards the building of the new School of Pharmacy in Israel." And Dr. Max Donbrow, Chairman of the Group, who presided, read a telegram of good wishes and appreciation from Professor B. Mazar, President of the Hebrew University.

Among the 130 guests present were members of the Group's newest offshoot, the recently-formed Younger Pharmaceutical Group, which caters for just-qualified and student pharmacists.

The guest of honour was Professor W. H. Linnell, Dean of the University of London's School of Pharmacy. Other guests included Professor C. A. Keele, an Hon. Vice-President of the Group, who is Professor of Pharmacology at the Middlesex Hospital Medical School, and Mr. Moshe Ofer, First Secretary of the Israeli Embassy.

EUROPEAN LEADERS MEET IN LONDON

Problem of the Aged

By a Correspondent

The meeting of a number of leaders of European Jewish community organisations, held in London this week, was one of a series called for an informal discussion of common problems. It was organised by an ad hoc committee of participants in a panel discussion, "Looking Ahead in Europe," one of the highlighted sessions of the 1959 Overseas Conference of the American Joint Distribution Committee.

At a former meeting, held in Paris in April, Dr. Astorre Mayer, President of the Jewish community of Milan, was elected to serve as Chairman pro tem., and Mr. Murray Sklar, of the American Joint Distribution Committee staff, was asked to act as Secretary pro tem. The group also decided to devote a large part of the next session to a study of problems of the aged and London was selected as the site, so that the group might visit the Jewish homes for the aged.

Other members of the group at the London meeting included Mr. H. O. Joseph, Chairman, Central British Fund, London; Mr. H. Galinski, Chairman, Juedische Gemeinde zu Berlin, Berlin; Mr. O. Heim, President, Verband Schweizerischer Juedischer Fluechtlingshilfen, Zürich; Mr. G. Josephson, President, Mosaiska Foersamlingen, Stockholm; Mr. C. Kelman, Vice-President, Fonds Social Juif Unifie, Paris; Mr. L. Maiersdorf, President, Maison de Retraite pour Vieillards, Brussels; Mr. I. Noah, President, Conseil Central des Communautes Juives de Grece, Athens. The meeting was also attended by Mr. C. H. Jordan, Director-General of the American Joint Distribution Committee, and Mr. H. Katzki, Deputy Director-General, American Joint Distribution Committee.

The Central British Fund was the host for the occasion. There was a seminar on community programmes for the Jewish aged, led by Dr. L. Molnar, American "Joint" consultant on problems of the aged, with participants from London organisations, including Lady Henriques, of the Employment Fellowship; Mrs. Michael Levy, the Home for Aged Jews; Mr. S. Cross for the Jewish Board of Guardians; and Mr. M. M. Pottlitzer for the Central British Fund and the Association of Jewish Refugees.

The second day of the meeting was devoted exclusively to a tour of organisations and homes for the aged.

Further meetings are planned to prepare a report to the 1960 American Joint Distribution Committee Conference in November.

A new club, named the Hornsey and Wood Green Synagogue Mixed Social Club, at Wightman Road, N.8 (off-Turnpike Lane), for the 40s-60s, has been formed. The club meets on Mondays from 7 p.m.

Members of the Edgware and District group of the League of Jewish Women heard Dr. Waley Greengross give a talk on "Sex Education of Children," at the home of Mrs. J. H. Schotness, of 77 Green Lane. The members helped at cinema collections for the Duke of Edinburgh's appeal for World Refugee Year.

A library of Jewish books, presented to Muswell Hill Synagogue Adult Education classes by Mr. Peter Morgan and his children, in memory of his wife, Elfi, was dedicated by the minister, the Rev. S. Brazil. A bookcase was presented by Mr. and Mrs. R. Frank, parents of the late Mrs. Morgan.

At the annual prize-giving of the Redmans Road Talmud Torah, E.1, Mr. Charles Shaw presided and Mrs. Shaw distributed the prizes. The speakers were Dr. S. Fundaminsky, Rabbi M. Frydman, the Rev. J. K. Goldbloom, Dr. S. Sacks, and Mrs. J. Corman. Mr. J. Bard, the headmaster, gave a report.

On the occasion of their marriage, Mr. Louis Wober, a former Chairman of the Four Aces Charity Committee, and his bride, formerly Miss Renee Sklarek, were appointed Life Governors of the Home for Aged Jews, London, S.W.

Councillor Mrs. Sally Sherman, the Mayor of Hackney, gave a reception to members of the local Poale Zion and friends at the Town Hall, Hackney, on Sunday, at which Mr. Harold Miller, National Chairman of Poale Zion of Great Britain, spoke on the position of Poale Zion and its connections with Mapai in Israel and the Labour Party in this country.

Members of the Barking and Becontree Hebrew Ladies' Guild visited the Old Age Home at Grove House, Highbury, and provided the residents with a concert consisting of Hebrew and popular songs given by the Tenth Anniversary Choir, conducted by Mr. Jack Rose, and a tea and cigarettes.

Miss Miriam Moses was the speaker at the sixth annual luncheon of the Stamford Hill Mizrachi Women's Society, held at the Marcus Samuel Hall, and attended by 150 members and friends. Her subject was social welfare in Israel.

At the tenth birthday party of the Essex Friendship Club which coincided with the ruby wedding of the Chairman, Mrs. P. Mann, a presentation was made to her of a ruby Venetian flower vase on behalf of the officers and members. The birthday cake given by Mr. and Mrs. J. Newmark was cut by one of the oldest members—83-year-old Mrs. P. Cohen.

GRUNWALD "FLED TO ISRAEL"

Prosecutor at the Old Bailey

From a Special Correspondent

During the continued hearing of the case against Friedrich Grunwald and others at the Central Criminal Court on Friday, Mr. Mervyn Griffith-Jones, for the prosecution, addressing the jury, said that when frantic efforts to raise a further £2,500,000 to complete a take-over deal had failed Grunwald had fled to Israel.

The jury might think, he said, that that was not a very courageous way of facing his difficulties, but they were not trying him for lack of courage. Those of them who remembered their "Hamlet" might remember the line: "Thus conscience does make cowards of us all." They might think it was conscience that was making a coward of Grunwald—conscience, because he had been a party to the most dishonest taking and using money, not only of the State Building Society, but of a number of other companies. That alone, the jury might think, was the motive for his sudden disappearance in that moment of crisis to what, perhaps, was the comparative safety of Israel.

There came a time when he was unable to raise the balance of the money needed to complete the Lintang and Ely Brewery take-overs. His efforts to obtain £2,500,000 from the Co-operative Building Society were unsuccessful, and on September 13 he and his wife fled to Israel.

CHIEF RABBI NOT TO BE WITNESS

From a Special Correspondent

At the hearing on Monday, June 20, before Mr. Justice Salmon, of the case of Lincoln v. Daniels, Mr. Neville Faulks, Q.C., closing his case for the plaintiff, stated that he had said in opening that he was going to call the Chief Rabbi as a witness for Mr. Ashe Lincoln. But, as Mr. Ashe Lincoln's character had not been generally attacked, he did not now propose to call the Chief Rabbi.

HOPES FOR SHECHITA SETTLEMENT

Communal Council's Moves

From our Correspondent

The policy to be adopted by the newly elected Executive of the Council of Manchester and Salford Jews was outlined in a statement by the President, Councillor Sidney Hamburger, at the first meeting of the session at the Working Men's Club on Sunday.

Councillor Hamburger, referring to the dispute between the Shechita Board and the Machzikei Hadass, said that once again the Honorary Officers of the Council had recommended negotiations with each party. They had already met the officers of the Shechita Board and were shortly to meet those of the Machzikei Hadass. He was hopeful that an agreement might be reached between the two bodies.

Dealing with youth work, Councillor Hamburger said, "the real problem was youth leadership, and one of the immediate tasks was to provide facilities for training leaders. The urge of creative Zionism was lacking among present-day youth," he added. The Youth Committee of the Council, however, could not expect to make any impact while it was hampered by lack of finance and suitable people to serve on it.

Rôle of Women

For many years the community had been fortunate in that religious leadership was in the hands of men who could inspire youth. In appointing new ministers it was the responsibility of the community to ensure that they were men who could understand and provide the answers to youth.

Councillor Hamburger dealt also with the position of women in the community. While they were active in the fields of social service and fund-raising he felt that they received insufficient Jewish education. He suggested that women might consider and discuss matters of religious significance at their society meetings.

A call for women to play a wider part in the community came from Mr. Hyman Weinberg.

Mrs. Anita Bursk proposed the convening of a conference of Jewish women, under the auspices of the Council, to further the suggestion that Jewish women could train and educate their children in the right Jewish way of life.

CALL FOR VIGILANCE

Sir Oswald Mosley's projected campaign in the provinces has been brought to the attention of the Council of Manchester and Salford Jews by a letter from the Defence Committee of the Board of Deputies.

The letter, which was read by Mr. F. Markson at Sunday's meeting of the Council, calls for the exercise of the utmost vigilance. If possible, it stated, a representative of the Council should attend any local meetings held by Mosley.

The letter also mentions the R.S.P.C.A.'s campaign against shechita and urges the Council to take note of meetings of this body.

HOME IN ISRAEL SUGGESTED

A branch in Jerusalem of the Manchester Jewish Homes for the Aged was the suggestion made by Dayan I. Golditch at the opening of a new branch-home in Leicester Road, Salford, on Sunday. "This suggestion, although only a dream and a vision, is not impossible of realisation," he said.

Dayan Golditch said he would like to see a Home in Israel where elderly Mancunians could spend the rest of their days.

From Councillor M. Baker, Mayor of Prestwich, came a call for more support from youngsters. He felt that the younger generation could now do a far better job for the Home than they have done in the past.

The Home—which accommodates 58 residents and cost nearly £60,000—was officially opened by the President, Mr. A. Golding.

It was discouraging to carry from year to year an overdraft of £11,000, and they looked to the community to meet the gap between income and expenditure, said Mr. Golding.

AJEX OUTING FOR THE DISABLED

Manchester Ajex held their annual outing for limbless ex-Servicemen on Sunday, when they took 30 members of the British Limbless Ex-Servicemen's Association to Windermere by coach.

The group were entertained to lunch and tea at the Queen's Hotel and taken for a two-hour sail on Lake Windermere.

Tribute to the work of Ajex was paid by the President of the Manchester branch of the Limbless Association, who expressed his organisation's appreciation of Ajex's efforts throughout the country in entertaining men who had given so much to the service of their country.

HULL

NEW THEOLOGICAL GROUP FORMED

From our Correspondent

Rabbi C. J. Cooper, Communal Rabbi of Hull, has formed a Jewish-Christian Study Group, consisting of clergymen of different denominations, which will devote its attention to Jewish and Christian theological researches.

By arrangement with Canon E. A. Foster, of the Church of the Transfiguration, arrangements have been made for a meeting to be held each month at the home of Rabbi Cooper, when a paper will be read and discussed. In addition to practising clergymen several well-known scholars in the sphere of Comparative Religion have expressed a wish to participate in this work.

The new Group will be a purely scholastic one devoted to study and learning. Rabbi Cooper feels that the Society will increase toleration and good will and understanding among Jewish and non-Jewish communities.

LEEDS

LORD MAYOR'S PRAISE

Guardians' Work

From our Correspondent

Alderman Mrs. Lillian Hammond, the Lord Mayor of Leeds, presiding at the Board of Guardians' annual meeting, congratulated the Board on its annual report and the excellent work it was doing for the more unfortunate members of the community.

She also praised the Board's work for mental patients, of which she had personal knowledge in her capacity as Chairman of Menston Hospital Management Committee.

The President, Mr. Charles Sumrie, presented the annual report and particularly mentioned the continued demand for the services of the Mobile Canteen. The accounts were presented by the Treasurer, Mr. Albert Morris, who praised the efforts of the Concert Committee in raising half the Board's annual expenditure.

Mr. Oliver R. M. Sebag-Montefiore, President, London Jewish Board of Guardians, spoke of the rôle the voluntary services had to play in partnership with the statutory services.

NO DECREASE IN POVERTY

An impression that poverty among Leeds Jewish families is decreasing is dispelled in the 82nd annual report of the Jewish Board of Guardians.

No fewer that 408 Jewish families received relief or help during last year; 98 children came under the care of the Board because of family circumstances.

A record number of 12,876 meals were delivered to incapacitated members of the community; 27 interest-free loans, totalling £1,267, and six dowries totalling £385 were also granted during the year.

HOME FOR AGED CONSECRATED

The Home for Aged Jews and Home of Rest and the New Wing were consecrated in the presence of leading members of the local Jewish community, with Mr. M. Zermansky, Chairman of the Homes, presiding.

Mr. Manny Cussins opened the New Wing, and the consecration was conducted by the Chief Rabbi assisted by Rabbi Dr. H. Medalie, the Rev. S. Stern, the Rev. J. Israelstam (Bradford), Rabbi I. Chait (Sheffield), and Rabbi J. Apfel.

Tablets recording the event were unveiled by Mrs. Brodie and Mrs. M. Cussins.

The Chief Rabbi stated that, at one time, the Homes in London had served the whole of the Anglo-Jewish community but with the growth in importance and ability of provincial communities, Homes were being established on a regional basis. It appeared that each Management Committee vied with each other in providing extra amenities, not in a spirit of competition, but so as to ensure that the buildings erected represented homes and did not have an institutional atmosphere.

BRADFORD

The Bradford Jewish Institute Dramatic Society presented Austin Steele's "Friends and Neighbours" to large audiences at the Jewish Institute on three nights.

Mrs. Philip Jerome and Mrs. William Jerome were hostesses at a reception, which raised more than £230 towards the forthcoming bazaar in aid of the Jerusalem Baby Home.

TORQUAY

Chief Rabbi's Request

From out Correspondent

The neighbouring communities of Bristol, Bournemouth, and Plymouth have been approached by the Chief Rabbi to take an interest in the religious life of the local community.

This information has been conveyed in a letter from the Chief Rabbi's Office to the Torquay and Paignton Hebrew Congregation as a result of Dayan A. Steinberg's visit to Torquay last February to inquire into the religious situation there.

Councillor Ernest Freed has been re-elected Chairman of the Chelston Ward Liberal Association.

PLYMOUTH

MINISTER INDUCTED

The Rev. Irvin Broder was inducted into office by Dayan M. Steinberg on Sunday.

Mr. Broder, aged 29, who was born in this country, studied at the Tree of Life College. For five years he taught at the New Synagogue Hebrew Classes, London, and also at the Woodside Park adult classes. He is keenly interested in youth work and has been a club leader and club ministerial officer in North and North-West London.

J.P.A. WORKERS HONOURED

From our Correspondent

At a banquet in honour of Arthur Newman, P.C., and Michael Jacobson, Hon. Life Presidents of Dublin J.P.A., in tribute to their lifelong services to the Jewish national cause, a plaque bearing their names (and that of the late Morris Ellis, P.C.) was handed by the Chief Rabbi of Ireland, Dr. Isaac Cohen, to the Israeli Ambassador to Switzerland, Mr. Jacob Linton, to be placed in the office of the Zionist Federation in Jerusalem.

The banquet, held at the Greenville Hall, was under the auspices of Dublin J.P.A., whose Chairman, Mr. W. M. White, presided.

Regret was expressed at the inability of Mr. Michael Jacobson to be present.

Mr. Arthur Newman said it was the duty of every Jew to give all possible financial help to Israel until such time as she was able to carry on the work of the nation without outside help.

Other speakers at the banquet were Professor J. Weingreen, Councillor R. Briscoe, T.D., and Mr. M. Abrahamson, Vice-Chairman, Zionist Council of Ireland.

A talk on her recent visit to the United States with the Chief Rabbi, given by Mrs. Isaac Cohen, was the main item of a social evening, held by the Dublin Daughters of Zion in aid of Jewish Women's Week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Daniels (4 Ovoca Road).

SOUTHEND

J.N.F. DIRECTOR WECOMED

From our Correspondent

A special meeting was convened last week by the Southend J.N.F. Commission, at the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. R. Angel (43 Chadwick Road, Westcliff), to bid farewell to Mr. Harry Sabel, Director of the J.N.F. (who is returning to Israel shortly), and to welcome his successor, Mr. Ram Haviv.

Mr. Isaac Freedman, Chairman of the Commission, who presided, said that J.N.F. workers throughout the United Kingdom would sorely miss Mr. Sabel, whose wise counsel and unruffled affability had endeared him to all.

Paying a warm tribute to Mr. Haviv, Mr. Sabel said that they were colleagues in Israel's defence forces during the Israeli-Arab War. Mr. Haviv came from the Prime Minister's Office, where he had been Economic Secretary to the Cabinet and was a great admirer of Britain and British Jewry.

Mr. Haviv said that Mr. Sabel's splendid work for the J.N.F. was widely known and freely recognised. He himself would try to follow in his footsteps in the same loyal and conscientious manner.

At the general meeting which preceded, Mr. Coleman Levene, the Treasurer, said that in the first nine months no less than £4,782 had been raised and he expected that at the end of the financial year the total would exceed £6,000.

SHEFFIELD

ZIONIST MINUTES SOUGHT

From our Correspondent

An effort is to be made to trace the missing minutes of the Zionist Association and then to have the complete records bound, it was announced at a meeting of the Council at the Jewish Centre.

The minute book of the original society, formed in 1897, is still in existence, but the history of the society is not continuous since then. In its present form it goes back to 1935, and it is hoped that inquiries will fill in some of the gaps in the records.

Mr. B. Cohen presided and the following were elected: Mr. A. Krausz, Hon. President; Rabbi I. Chait, Dr. M. Friedlander, Alderman I. Lewis, Mrs. S. Feinhols, Mr. L. Blaskey, Mr. C. Cantor, Mr. J. Cohen, Hon. Vice-Presidents.

Mr. N. Morris, of London, assistant to the Provincial Organiser of the Zionist Federation, spoke on the Zionist Congress elections which will take place later this year.

A flower-arranging competition was an added attraction at a "bring-and-buy" for fruit and flowers, held at the home of Mrs. C. Caplan, Common Lane. The "bring-and-buy," in aid of the Federation of Women Zionists, raised £30.

The Maccabi Junior dramatic section made their first public appearance on the stage of the Library Theatre in the Sheffield and District Amateur Theatre Association's one-act play festival. The group entered in three sections, the Open, Comedy, and Youth classes. The play, "The Godsend," by Nina Warner Hooke, was produced by Manny Levy.

BRIGHTON

Over £78 has been raised by the Brighton and Hove Women's Mizrachi Society for the Child Resettlement Fund, the proceeds of a social afternoon, at which the hostesses were Mrs. R. Singer, Mrs. M. Benjamin, and Mrs. A. Zeltser, and a garden party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Cowan.

CARDIFF

To mark the occasion of their ruby wedding Mr. and Mrs. Abe Rose, of Cyncoed, presented gifts to each member of the Penylan Home for Aged Jews. In addition they gave donations to the Home, the Jewish Board of Guardians, the Chevrah Bikur Cholim, and the G'millus Chassodim Society.

EDINBURGH

As a result of the dinner-dance organised by the B'nai B'rith Salis Daiches Lodge, £300 was raised for World Refugee Year.

RE-ELECTION DECLINED

From our Correspondent

Mr. George Harris, presiding at the annual meeting of the Hebrew School Parent-Teacher Association, said that the year had been the least successful in the history of the Association.

Mr. Harris, the son of the former headmaster, the late M. S. Harris, declined to be re-elected and it was decided that the new committee should not be elected until September, when an open meeting of all parents would be convened and the Parent-Teacher Association reconstituted, if necessary, and a new committee and executive elected.

By permission of Mr. and Mrs. Brown, who are non-Jews, a garden fête and fun fair was held at their home (45 Greenhill Road, Moseley) in aid of the Cotton Youth Institute. The fête was opened by Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Plotnek.

The Rev. Dr. Chaim Pearl, who has been appointed minister to the New West End Synagogue, London, will preach his farewell sermon tomorrow (Sabbath) at the Singers Hill Synagogue.

The third annual bazaar of the Central Synagogue Ladies' Gould was held at the Malcolm Locker Hall of the New Central Synagogue, Pershore Road. The proceeds are being devoted to equipping the Malcolm Locker Hall.

HARROGATE

Mr. Sandy Royston, a member of the Committee of the Harrogate Hebrew congregation, has been elected Chairman of the Harrogate branch of the United Commercial Traveller's Association.

NOTTINGHAM

The matron and several members of the staff of Ellerslie House Hospital and patients who could travel were taken on the annual outing arranged by the Nottingham branch of Ajex. The venue was Radcliffe Hall, the headquarters of the Radcliffe-on-Trent British Legion. Sweets and cigarettes were distributed, both to those who went on the outing and to those unable to travel.

GLASGOW

DAY SCHOOL PLANS

Search for Premises

From our Correspondent

Difficulty is being experienced in finding premises in a suitable area for the establishment of a Jewish day school, said Mr. Joseph Woolfson when he presided at the annual meeting of the Glasgow Talmud Torah and Board of Jewish Education, which was held in the Talmud Torah building on Monday.

Mr. Woolfson stated that at present they had two properties—one in Whitecraigs and the other in Giffnock—under consideration.

Surveying the work of the Board from 1952, since when he was the Chairman, a position from which he was retiring, Mr. Woolfson said that an overdraft of almost £7,000 had been wiped off, due to the efforts of the Functions Committee.

The Joint Treasurers, Mr. Louis Daets and Mr. Wolf Silver, in their report, stated that the total revenue for the year amounted to £8,113, compared with £7,936 for 1959. The income from the Functions Committee was £2,764, a record sum from that source. There was a surplus of £697.

Mr. David W. Haase, the head teacher, said that a census was taken last October and it was found that between 75 per cent and 80 per cent of the children living in the south side of the city were receiving Jewish education. The remaining 20 per cent were girls, and it was very difficult to get girls to attend cheder.

Dr. I. E. Burton and Mr. J. P. Jacobson were appointed Hon. Vice-Presidents of the Board in recognition of their services.

WOLFSON £2,000 GIFT TO J.L.B.

The Isaac Wolfson Foundation has given £2,000 to the Jewish Lads' Brigade in Scotland to assist them in the scheme to build their own club rooms.

Mr. Wolfson, who is a native of Glasgow, served in the local company of the J.L.B. as a boy.

A site in Albert Road, Crosshill, has been acquired for the building of the proposed premises. The estimated cost of the project is £10,000, and an appeal, which was recently launched among members of the Glasgow community, has elicited a generous response.

SIR M. BLOCH'S APPOINTMENT

The Glasgow University Dialectic Society has appointed Sir Maurice Bloch as its Hon. Vice-President.

Sir Maurice has also been appointed Hon. Life-President of the Chevra Kadisha-Beth Jacob Synagogue, Glasgow.

GARDEN FETE

More than £1,400 was raised as a result of the annual garden fête of the Jewish Old Age Home for Scotland held in the grounds of the institution at Glasgow.

The opening ceremony was performed by Mrs. S. Krantz. Mr. A. A. Collins, Chairman of the Home, presided.

LIVERPOOL

AID FOR THE AGED

From our Correspondent

There was a gathering of several hundreds at a garden party held on Sunday in aid of the Home for Aged Jews. It was organised by the Home's Ladies' Guild and took place in the spacious grounds of the Home.

It was declared open by Mr. and Mrs. Saul Rosenblatt. Lord Cohen of Birkenhead, the Hon. President, in a reference to the Home's recently opened hospital wing, said it was the community's responsibility and it could be maintained at the highest level only by the community's enthusiasm for it.

Other speakers were Mrs. L. Cowan, Chairman of the Ladies' Guild, who presided, and Mr. J. Morris, Chairman of the Home.

Among those on the platform were Alderman J. Braddock, Leader of the City Council, and Alderman Mrs. E. M. Braddock, M.P.

The hope that an association of former pupils might be created was expressed by Mr. B. B. Benas, the guest speaker at the Talmud Torah's prizegiving on Sunday. The prizes were distributed by Mrs. H. Beacon, to whom a presentation was made by Ian Abrams, best boy by examination, to whom a £5 prize was awarded.

Mr. B. Greenhill, Chairman of the Managers of the Hebrew Primary School, said the spirit of the Talmud Torah permeated the Primary and the King David Schools.

Mr. W. Morgan addressed the Crosby Jewish Literary Society on "Membership of Parliament."

Alderman A. L. Caplan has been re-elected Chairman of Liverpool Fire Services Committee.

Mr. B. B. Benas addressed the Young Women's Mizrachi Society on the Bar Ilan University, Israel, of whose British Academic Advisory Committee he is a member.

MIDDLESBROUGH

Mr. P. E. Richman, Treasurer of the Middlesborough Hebrew congregation, has been elected to the Council of the Association of Trade Protection Agents.

ST. ANNES

Over £20 was raised for Ziona's Israel funds at a "peach tea" held at the home of Mrs. O. Senator.

A FANTASTIC VISIONARY

By F. C. STONE

In his new series of paintings of Leda and the Swan at the Matthiesen Gallery Sidney Nolan stands out as a visionary of fantastic imagination. He is not illustrating a pretty myth but caught in a frightful nightmare. The pictures are mainly nocturnes and the two participants seem involved by their passion in great elemental masses of earth, air, and water, sometimes flying, sometimes floating, sometimes swimming, sometimes standing. In some Leda is Harlequin, in others Caliban. The bodies mingle and exchange attributes till one does not know which is which. The painting is thin and comb-scraped like the grain of marquetry, and the colour, with its reds and yellows of sun and moon and its indigo sea streaked with blood, is tremendous.

If there is not much fresh to say about the new retrospective exhibition of Pinchus Krémègne at the Adams Gallery, it is not for want of merit in the pictures. The easiest artist to write about is the one who changes his style for every exhibition. Krémègne was never an imaginative artist like Soutine; he has always painted the conventional subjects directly, and was earlier surrounded by Cézanne, Renoir, Derain and other great spirits whose influence naturally touched him. He had already achieved looseness when many artists were tentative and tight. Works like "Intérieur Paysan" of 1926 and the jewel-like "Cagnes" of 1929 are now matured. He has always been a master of solid paint within the frame, particularly in his landscapes, and it is by this quality, at a discount today, that he is likely to give lasting pleasure.

Decorative enamels are being shown by Edward and Thelma Winter at the Woodstock Gallery. This modern use of an age-old technique by fusing it with steel brings artist and architect back into the close alignment of sculpture on stone buildings. Used in conjunction with curtain-walling, it not only weathers perfectly by also assimilates the texture of the building.

FIRST EXHIBITIONS

Three painters, all in their fifties, are having their first London one-man exhibitions. At the Reid Gallery, Gerard Frankl shows gouaches of Alpine scenery and London. Frankl, who left Vienna in 1938, has lived in London ever since and is a lecturer at the Courtauld Institute.

Quite different from these sensitive impressions are the large, strongly coloured, almost violent designs of Yehoshua Kovarsky at Gallery One. He was born in Vilna in 1907, has lived in Israel, and now resides in Los Angeles. Those who know Yankel Adler's paintings will recognise some of the influences at work here, but there is not the same controlled designing of space, or the intuitive selection of colour.

Marcelle Cahn who is having a retrospective exhibition at the Kaplan Gallery is a gifted artist. This exhibition traces her career from Expressionism and Cubism to the rather stark, geometric abstraction which she now favours. In all forms there is evidence of talent and taste, but when she forgets isms and is herself, as in the gay little collages and watercolours, she is a painter of much individual charm. C.S.

EGYPT'S "CLOAK AND DAGGER" MEN

Twenty Awaiting Trial in Israel

Tel Aviv

More than sixty Egyptian and Syrian spies have been arrested by the Israeli Security Services since the Sinai campaign. Forty of them have already been sentenced to a total of 260 years of imprisonment, and the other 20 will shortly be tried.

Among those still to be sentenced are eight Israeli Arabs, who are accused of organising a spy ring for the Syrian Deuxieme Bureau (Intelligence) and of trying to organise an Arab underground movement in Israel.

But despite their failure up till now, the Egyptians are intensifying their "brain struggle" with the Israeli Intelligence Services with the clear object of preventing the Israeli counter-espionage from detecting their spies. Lately it has been noticed that the U.A.R. is doing her utmost to improve the standard of her agents, either by recruiting them among foreigners who often visit Israel or even among Israelis who might supply them with tactical, strategic, or scientific information. So far their efforts have not been very successful. The foreigners were arrested, and after their arrest also revealed to the Israeli Security Services the "cover addresses" in Europe and other methods of communications. As to the efforts in recruiting Israeli Jews, in some cases the Egyptians succeeded but eventually these Jews became "double agents," who brought about the arrest of their contact men and their collaborators.

Until 1954 there were German ex-Intelligence Officers who served as instructors and advisers in Egypt. Since the Soviet-Egyptian arms deals there have been no official reports about Soviet Intelligence experts being sent to Cairo, but it may be assumed that in this field, as in many others, the U.A.R. is being assisted by Moscow. Moreover, Egyptian Intelligence Officers have been sent to Soviet spying schools, although there is not sufficient information about the courses to which they have been admitted. It is assumed that these courses are of low standard as the Soviets might be very careful not to divulge intelligence secrets to their "Arab Friends." It has been noticed lately that the Soviet Union has been more ready to supply Cairo with military information about Israel, rather than to open the secrets of her own organisation and methods of action to Egyptian officers.

The U.A.R. Intelligence Services have lately found an unexpected source of recruits in the growing wave of young Israeli Arabs who cross the border either to Syria or the Gaza Strip. Most of these youngsters speak fluent Hebrew, know the country well, and some of them have been recruited for intelligence purposes and returned to Israel. The Egyptians have even developed special investigation methods of collecting information from these youngsters. They have prepared detailed forms with as many questions as possible on military installations in Israel and even questions about Arabs co-operating with the Israeli Government. But despite all these efforts to improve, Egyptian Intelligence is here considered as being far from the standards of the Western world.

HELP FOR MALI PROMISED

Tel Aviv

Israel has promised full technical assistance to the newly independent Federation of Mali. She made this promise in a special Note sent by Mr. Ben-Gurion to Mr. Modibo Keita, the President of Mali—which comprises the territories of French Sudan and Senegal.

Mali has agreed to establish diplomatic relations with Israel, and Israel's Consul-General in Dakar, Mr. Yehuda Ben-David, has been appointed the first Israeli Ambassador to Mali.

NAZI SONGS AT S.S. RALLY

Inquiry into Police Inaction

From our Correspondent

Munich

The Bavarian State Government has ordered an investigation into the recent incident at the village of Windsheim, where local police refused to interfere when groups of former S.S. men who had attended a rally there spent the evening singing Nazi songs in public-houses. The Central Council of Jews in Germany had protested about the passive attitude of the police, who despite protests by the local population had taken no action to stop the singing.

A Government spokesman has stated that it will not be easy to discover exactly what happened at Windsheim, as no witness had so far appeared to testify that the ex-S.S. men had sung Nazi songs in their original form. When the police had finally appeared they had stopped singing.

Herr Kiesling, the Mayor of Windsheim, has said that he does not know of any neo-Nazi excesses in connection with the S.S. rally. There appeared to be no proof that Nazi songs had actually been sung. He said that he would issue a statement after the police investigations had been completed.

NEED FOR BOARDING SCHOOLS

From a Correspondent

Zürich

The European Union of Orthodox Jewish Communities has completed a series of conferences in Strasbourg, under the chairmanship of Rabbi Dr. E. Munk, of Paris.

At the annual convention of affiliated communities, attended by delegates from Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, and Switzerland, and Rabbi Dr. S. Schonfeld, as an observer from Britain, the religious and educational needs of the West European countries were discussed. Stress was laid on the establishment of two central boarding schools. Rabbi Dr. Lichtigfeld, of Frankfort, and Mr. Armin Rosenthal, of Berlin, reported on the steps taken by the Federation of Orthodox Jews in Germany, which has been officially established as a branch of the European Union. Funds have already been collected and an inquiry has shown that there would be considerable response from parents.

Mr. Ostersetzer, of Antwerp, spoke on the need for a boarding school in the Low Countries.

Tribute to Americans

From our Correspondent

Washington

Contributions to the 1960 United Jewish Appeal campaign raised so far amounted to $33,150,000, it was reported at a U.J.A. conference held here to assess the progress of the campaign.

Rabbi Herbert Friedman, the U.J.A. Executive Vice-Chairman, said if the campaign continued at its present pace the final amount would approximate to the $68 m. raised in 1959. He paid tribute to U.S.A. Jewry's maturity and sense of responsibility. American Jews recognised, he added, that aid to Israel must continue for many years.

Mr. A. Sachar, President of Brandeis University, told the 450 communal leaders at the conference that Israel longed for the day when she could achieve economic independence and end appeals. Meantime, American Jews, he said, had no right to become tired of fund-raising. The Israelis accepted aid not just for themselves but to keep the country open to Jewish immigration.

Elimination of Ma'abarot

Six hundred thousand people, including 345,000 still unabsorbed immigrants in Israel and 255,000 people in 24 other countries, had benefited this year from the U.J.A. Mr. Morris Berinstein, the General Chairman of the organisation, stated. He foresaw the early elimination of the ma'abarot in Israel, where at the beginning of the year 60,000 immigrants still lived. Four thousand housing units under construction, together with 3,000 more being planned, would halve the figure by the end of the year.

Mr. Moses Leavitt, Vice-Chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee, said the "Joint" was helping a quarter of a million people in Israel, Europe, and Moslem territories.

One hundred and five thousand people in Moslem countries, mostly North Africa and Persia, received aid.

HOLIDAY EXCHANGE

From our Own Correspondent

Israeli and Belgian children will attend summer camps this year in each other's countries, under the auspices of the International "Souvenir" organisation.

The organisation, which has its headquarters in Brussels, is active in twelve countries. An Israeli branch has recently been opened.

Modern Music Festival

From PETER GRADENWITZ

Cologne

The "Maqamat" flute and string quartet by the Israeli composer, Oedoen Partos, formed part of one of the more interesting concerts in the hectic 34th World Music Festival held by the International Society for Contemporary Music in Cologne.

The Cologne Festival will go down in the annals of the I.S.C.M. as the richest, most generously planned and executed event. If the musical works produced were generally poor, this was no fault of the organisers. Music is in a state of "experimentation at all costs" now, and few of the avant-garde musicians of the day can yet draw the dividing line between a real exploration of new means and a dilettante imitation of those who seem already to have "arrived."

Oriental and Western Trends

The Israeli work interested critics and audience for its attempt to arrive at a meaningful synthesis between the traditional music of the Orient and the new trends in Western music. The title of this recently completed work, which was first performed in March at the Tel Aviv Museum, indicates that the composer has based his musical material on scales or rows conceived under the influence of the maqam—the "melody-type" or formula from which a vocal or instrumental composition traditionally develops in all Near Eastern music.

Partos did not attempt to write an "Oriental" piece, however; it is only that the melodic inspiration, the rhythmic texture, and the form of the work were decisively influenced by Oriental models. As the maqam and modern serial principles have basically much in common, the work is a striking contribution to the East-West synthesis attempted by so many composers in our time. The piece was performed at Cologne by the flautist Hans-Jürgen Möhring and the Novak Quartet from Prague.

In the same programme a String Quartet by the U.S.A. writer and composer, Arthur Berger, had its European première. Darius Milhaud's Eighth Symphony (composed three years ago) was played by the excellent South-West German Radio Orchestra. The conductor was Hans Rosbaud, whom the society has made an honorary member for his services to contemporary music. Rosbaud also conducted the world première (in concert form) of Schoenberg's "Moses and Aaron" in Hamburg and the stage première at Zürich.

The festival's opening ceremony included a performance of Schoenberg's "Five Orchestra Pieces," opus 16, played by the Gürzenich Orchestra, conducted by Günter Wand. The German-born Chilean composer, Leni Alexander, presented a cantata "From Death to Morning," which is a setting of poems by Dylan Thomas and Thomas Wolfe.

Joseph Rosenstock was the chief conductor at the Opera House, where a week of "Modern Music Theatre" was held during the festival. Of special interest was Prokofieff's religious-mystic opera "L'Ange du Feu" and "The Death of Grigori Rasputin," by Nicolas Nabokov, to a libretto by Stephen Spender.

CALL FOR MIGRANTS

From our Correspondent

Melbourne

Delegates at the 75th biennial conference of the Australian Federation of Jewish Ex-Servicemen Associations made the question of Jewish migration from Britain their main topic of discussion. After hearing that only 320 Jewish ex-Servicemen and their families had arrived in Australia during the last ten years, it was decided to initiate a vigorous publicity campaign in Britain aiming at encouraging Jewish migrants.

A "JEWISH NUREMBERG"

Special Interview with Ben-Gurion

PARIS

"The extermination of six million men, women, and children by the Nazis is a purely Jewish affair and Eichmann, I promise you, will be tried in Israel by a purely Israeli court and according to the special law passed by the Knesset in 1950." This was said by Mr. Ben-Gurion in a special interview given a few hours before he left Paris for Belgium.

The Israeli Prime Minister received me in the country house of M. Pierre Gilbert, former French Ambassador to Israel, where he was spending a quiet week-end. He looked particularly fit after a four-mile walk in the woods and was watching a sports match on TV when he received your correspondent. Throughout the interview Mrs. Paula Ben-Gurion sat next to her husband and commented from time to time on his statements.

"I wish I could meet those experts of international law who claim that we do not have the right to try Eichmann," said Mr. Ben-Gurion. "I would like to ask them what they have done with their consciences. This is no matter for byzantine discussions. Legal texts can never be in opposition to human justice. I was in Paris some 35 years ago when Schwartzbart murdered the Ukrainian Jew-baiter Petlura, and no sensible person was then surprised to see the young Jew acquitted by a French court in apparent contradiction with the written laws of the time."

Eichmann's Crimes

However severe the verdict of the Israeli tribunal might be, Mr. Ben-Gurion does not believe that it would be in proportion to Eichmann's crimes.

"What we are really after," he added, "is to stage at last a new Nuremberg trial which will be our very own, that of the Jewish people who have never been given the chance to try those who planned its extermination."

"Eichmann," Mr. Ben-Gurion added, "will be given all guarantees for a fair trial. He will have the lawyers of his choice, even Germans, on condition that they are not ex-Nazis. The inquiry into his case will be carried out carefully, and he will probably not be tried before next December. The trial itself will be public and last several months."

It has been reported that some circles in Israel wish to stifle the trial in order to prevent Eichmann from revealing certain aspects of the negotiations he had during the war with Dr. Kastner concerning the rescue of a section of Hungarian Jewry.

When asked to what extent these reports were correct, Mr. Ben-Gurion replied that he knew of nobody in Israel who was against the trial.

"If there were any such people," he added, "you may be assured that we will not listen to them. Either Eichmann will attempt to throw mud, and in that case he will be confounded by his Israeli judges, or he will produce the proof of his allegations. Well, if that is so, we do not fear the truth and we will insist that it be made public."

France's Friendship

On the subject of his talks with General de Gaulle, Mr. Ben-Gurion said: "I would like the JEWISH CHRONICLE readers to know that France is a real and sincere friend of Israel, and that General de Gaulle is giving us all the help we need." France, he said, would support Israel's claim to some kind of association with the European Common Market countries. "This is the main practical result I have obtained in Paris," the Israeli Premier said.

Turning to international affairs, Mr. Ben-Gurion stated: "We have no fear from our Arab neighbours, we only have worries. Our security problem is not yet solved, and we would welcome an agreement between East and West on a disarmament programme in the Middle East. "But," he added, "if we are to disarm, our neighbours must agree on a mutal inspection system."

Asked whether he had a message for world Jewry which he would like transmitted through THE JEWISH CHRONICLE, Mr. Ben-Gurion smiled and said: "Yes, I would like your readers to know: I was a Jew, I am a Jew, and will always be a Jew."

VATICAN PASSPORT STORY DENIED

From a Correspondent

GENEVA

Official Argentine circles have denied the German newspaper report that Eichmann came to Argentina on a passport issued by the Vatican. According to a report from the German Catholic newsagency "Kipa" they state that Eichmann travelled on a refugee passport issued by the International Red Cross in the name Ricardo Klement.

The "Kipa" report added that according to Red Cross headquarters in Geneva no such refugee passports were ever issued. After the end of the war a large number of D.P.s, former prisoners of war, and others were deprived of personal identification papers and to facilitate matters the International Red Cross issued registration cards which were filled in by the people themselves on their own responsibility. The cards were not verified by the Red Cross in any way since no proof could be given by the people to whom they were issued.

A spokesman for the Red Cross said that Eichmann might have been in possession of such a registration card issued under a false name, but this could not be verified as there was no possibility now of checking it.

EICHMANN'S SON WRITES TO "DEAR PAPA"

From our Own Correspondent

JERUSALEM

A letter alleged to have been written by Klaus Eichmann to his papa, Adolf Eichmann, has been brought to Israel by two representatives of the Hamburg weekly, "Der Stern." They claimed that a friend of the Eichmanns brought it to the newspaper's office and asked that it be transmitted to Israel.

The letter was brought to the attention of Mr. Yosef Nachmias, the Israeli Inspector-General of Police, who declined to accept it. The two journalists then took the letter to the Yad VaShem Foundation authorities.

Written early in June from Buenos Aires, the letter says: "There are so many rumours here that we have no alternative but to believe that you really are Adolf Eichmann. You will understand that even if the accusations against you are proved, you still remain my father and I your elder son, who will never leave you.

"I shall take care of mother and the other children. I know nothing of her whereabouts now but I was assured she is well. Our house is empty now and closed.. The fence has been repaired and the flowers are fine. I write you all this because I know that you will be glad to hear about it.

"You can imagine that our position here is not easy. Because of newspaper reports, things became difficult at work, but don't worry about it because we shall manage. We are all right and that's the important thing. Meantime, I've stopped going to evening classes and will stay away till the newspapers quieten down.

"At work, people showed understanding, but I felt nevertheless that it was better all round if I left. I admit that a new name or another identity card would help a lot, but mother wouldn't hear of it. You know what she's like and its no use arguing with her, especially now, when we should all stick together. This sheet is already full, and I shall be delighted to hear that my letter has reached you."

Eichmann's memoirs, it is understood, are shortly to be published by an American weekly. They were offered first to "Der Stern" by a Dutch friend of Eichmann, who brought them over from Argentina, but the newspaper refused them. The American weekly intends to begin publishing the memoirs immediately after the Charge Sheet against Eichmann has been published in Israel.

At Haifa last Sunday Eichmann was remanded for a further 15 days. The captured Nazi declined to make any statement.

Economic Talks in Belgium

BRUSSELS

Belgium's reception to the Israeli Prime Minister during his 48-hour official visit was much warmer than expected. Both the Government and the Belgian people gave him an extremely friendly welcome as, of course, did the Jewish population wherever he went. When he left for Holland on Wednesday morning Mr. Ben-Gurion could well be satisfied with the outcome of his visit and the talks with the Belgian Prime Minister and other members of the Cabinet.

Soon after his arrival here on Monday he was entertained to lunch by Queen Elisabeth the Queen Mother, and later dined with the Prime Minister, Mr. Gaston Eyskens. On Tuesday he received a delegation of the Belgian Socialist Party and also had talks with the Belgian Minister for Trade and Industry.

New Bloc Proposed

Mr. Ben-Gurion's visit here, apart from its political significance, may lead to important results in the economic field. In addition to discussions with Belgian leaders in charge of the country's economic affairs, Mr. Ben-Gurion also conferred at great length with the President of the Commission of European Economic Community, Professor Hallstein, and other personalities connected with the grave issues of European economic co-operation.

It is believed that Mr. Ben-Gurion discussed with them ways and means for a stronger link between Israel and the European economic institutions in an attempt to find out how the present negotiations between the six nations of the common market and the "outer seven" will affect Israel's trade in Europe. It is maintained in diplomatic circles that the Israeli Premier suggested the formation of what may be called a "small-countries' economic bloc" in Europe to consist of Holland, Belgium, the Scandinavian countries, Switzerland, Austria, and, of course, Israel.

The purpose of such a combination of countries would be primarily to co-ordinate the aid to under-developed Afro-Asian countries who would have no fear of imperialistic motives in accepting help coming from small States.

Speaking in Yiddish to a delegation of Jewish organisations, Mr. Ben-Gurion described himself as a man with two allegiances: one to the Jewish people and the other to the State of Israel. He appealed to Belgian Jews to send their children to Israel during their vacations and for their studies whenever possible.

Before his departure for Holland the Israeli Premier gave a Press conference, during which he stated that it was "highly probable" that he would meet President Arturo Frondizi of the Argentine to discuss the question of Eichmann's arrest. (As reported on page 1, the proposed meeting has been cancelled.)

About 1,500 people, including members of the Belgian Government, the Ambassadors of the United States, France, Argentina, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and other countries, attended a reception at the Israeli Embassy in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Ben-Gurion. Representatives of the Belgian political parties, cultural and social institutions, as well as leaders of the Jewish community in Brussels and Antwerp, were among the guests.

HUNGARIAN LEADERS PLAYED FOR TIME

From our Own Correspondent

PARIS

"Had it been up to Eichmann all Hungarian Jews would have been wiped out," according to Mr. André Biss, a 56-year-old Hungarian Jew, who, in 1944, together with Dr. Israel Kastner and Joel Brand, held negotiations with Nazi officials in Budapest on trading Jews for army trucks.

Speaking at a Press conference, under the auspices of the American Jewish Committee, Mr. Biss said the exchange of Jews for money and material was "but one of our objectives. The other was time. Every day we gained was a day in which Eichmann wasn't active. As for Himmler, his reason for permitting these negotiations was not to get trucks, soap, or coffee for the Third Reich. It was rather to establish contact with the Allies, and particularly with the United States, on the eve of Germany's defeat."

Mr. Biss, who is Joel Brand's cousin, said that through his contacts with Eichmann he became convinced that he tried whenever he could to send to their deaths as many Jews as possible.

FROM MUEZZIN TO CHAZAN

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

"The State of Israel has saved Oriental Jewry from extinction," Professor W. J. Fischel, of California, said at a meeting last week of the World Hebrew Union held at the home of Dr. Oscar Stern, 76 Meadway, N.2. The subject of his talk was "Persian and Indian Jewry."

About the history of Persian Jewry very little was known, Professor Fischel continued. The main reason for this was that the Persian Jews used to write their literature and records in the vernacular, but in Hebrew characters. This meant that non-Jewish Persian and Oriental scholars could not read the old Persian-Jewish documents, while Western Jewish scholars could read but did not understand the old Persian language.

The Persian Jews had in the past suffered a great deal of persecution at the hands of fanatical Shia mullahs. In the town of Meshed there had been until recently a sort of Marrano community of some 3,000 souls, who were outwardly Moslems but continued to practise Judaism in private.

Recalling a visit to this community some thirty years ago, Professor Fischel related that he had seen these forced converts attend the mosque on a Friday morning, summoned by a muezzin of their own community, while on the same day they all met at a secret synagogue to welcome the Sabbath, with the muezzin acting as chazan. Some of these converts had even gone on aliya by way of a pilgrimage to Mecca and Medina.

Dr. O. Stern presided, and Mr. S. Auerbach, Mr. M. Levene, and Miss Hedva Petrie also spoke.

MELBOURNE

For the first time leaders of four religious denominations will combine to hold services to dedicate ground on which four houses of worship—Jewish, Anglican, Catholic, and Presbyterian—are to be built.

The four buildings will form a unique religious centre, which is to be built amid three acres of gardens at Paradise City, on the Queensland Gold Coast.

A FORGOTTEN LEADER

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

From Behind the Iron Curtain

In spite of the deterioration in the Jewish position of which the restrictions against matzo baking was the latest example, this summer has been marked by a good deal of what may be called Jewish news and activities in Russia.

Moscow Radio, which has for a long time been noticeably silent about Jews and Jewish affairs, felt compelled to deal with the matzo question. This was done in reply to a listener's letter from Hove, who wrote to complain that he heard of synagogues being closed in the U.S.S.R. and that there was a shortage of "unleavened bread."

As so frequently happens on Moscow Radio, especially on the question of the Jewish position or Israel, the broadcaster told a deliberate lie. "Unleavened bread," he said, "is sold in the shops along with ordinary bread during the Feast of Passover." To make this sound more acceptable he assured listeners that, "I always buy it although I have nothing Jewish in me."

Another item of interest which is certainly indicative of the attitude to Jews in Russia today was the manner in which most official Russian papers ignored the 75th anniversary of the birth of the late Jacob Sverdlov, which the Communist Jewish Press in Paris, the United States, and elsewhere now celebrates with much ado. Sverdlov, the first President of Soviet Russia, was the son of a Jewish engraver in Nizhni-Novogrod now called Gorki. After attending the local cheder he joined the Social Democratic Party.

Later, he joined Lenin and after the Revolution was elected a member of the Politbureau. On Lenin's recommendation he became the Chairman of the Presidium, in fact, the first President of the Soviet Union, a high office he held till his death on March 16, 1919. He is the only Jewish Communist leader buried in the walls of the Kremlin. Warm tributes to his memory and the great part he played in the building of Communism in Russia published in all the Yiddish Communist papers found no echo elsewhere. Stalin honoured his memory by calling the town of Ekaterinburg after him and one of Russia's most powerful warships which visited Great Britain a little while ago also bore his name.

Of interest to Jews in and outside Russia was the death in Moscow of Moshe Katz, the editor of the New York Yiddish Communist "Morgen-Freiheit." One of the leading Jewish writers and publicists, Katz played a very important rôle in the Socialist and Communist Jewish movements. He was the founder of the Communist daily in 1922 but later left America for Russia returning to the States via Poland.

While in Russia he was one of the leading contributors to the "Emes," the Yiddish version of "Pravda" and the organ of the Yevsekzia. Among the many books he wrote was a volume on Peretz and Sholem Aleichem and the only biography of Lenin in Yiddish. He was also an excellent translator of Heine.

Seriously ill a few weeks ago he decided to visit Moscow where his daughter lives, and although he had the best treatment in Moscow hospitals he died at the age of 75. The funeral was turned into what one may call a demonstration of a Russian Jewish intellectual amity. Many Russian writers came to pay their last tributes. One of the associate editors of "Pravda," representing the Association of Russian Writers, declared in a funeral oration that "the Soviet people have lost one of their best friends" and that Moshe Katz's death had caused a great gap in the ranks of the fighters for Communism.

Aaron Vergelis attended the funeral in the name of the Yiddish writing group of the Association of Soviet Writers in Moscow. A special orchestra played the Internationale.

SIEFF CHAIR AT REHOVOT

TEL AVIV

A Rebecca and Israel Sieff Chair in Organic Chemistry has been established at the Weizmann Institute in Rehovot. This was announced by Mr. Meyer Weisgal, Chairman of the Executive Board of the Institute, at a dinner given there to mark the Sieffs golden wedding.

Among the 200 guests at the dinner were Dr. Nahum Goldmann, Mr. Moshe Dayan, the Minister for Agriculture, and Mr. Patrick Hancock, the British Ambassador, as well as many members of the Marks and Sieff families who had come out specially from Britain.

Mr. Abba Eban presided.

The first occupant of the new Chair will be Professor Frank Sondheimer, who at present heads the Institute's Department of Organic Chemistry. He was one of this year's "Israel Prize" winners.

A dinner in honour of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Sieff on their Golden Wedding was given last week-end by President and Mrs. Ben-Zvi.

EINSTEIN INSTITUTE

In the report in our issue of June 10 last of the opening of the Hebrew University's Einstein Institute of Mathematics it was stated that when Einstein was invited to Britain after the First World War, Simon Marks was delegated to meet him. It was in fact Mr. Israel Sieff, a graduate of Manchester University, who was asked on its behalf to meet Einstein in Liverpool and accompany him to Manchester.

ARREST "FOREIGN AGENTS"

Brazilian Governor's Order

From our Correspondent

RIO DE JANEIRO

The Governor of the Brazilian province Rio Grande do Sul, Sr. Lione Brizola, has ordered the arrest of "all foreign agents seeking Germans accused of war crimes."

The President of the Federation of Jewish Institutions in Brazil, Dr. A. Steinbruch, has protested at this order, and asked why the Governor had not instead asked for the arrest of the German war criminals. He points out that Germans living in Brazil were responsible for the recent outbreak of swastika incidents.

The Governor's order is regarded here as a slap in the face for the Jewish community. There is widespread bitterness among Brazilian Jews about this. A large German colony have settled in this province since the war, and it is suspected here that many war criminals are among them.

The chief of the political police in Rio Grande do Sul, Dr. Kenkin, who is the son of Russian Jewish immigrants, has stated that he has absolutely no reason to believe that there are any "foreign agents" seeking Nazi criminals in the province.

AMERICAN KILLED BY JORDANIANS

By our Own Correspondent

TEL AVIV

Mr. Harry Stone Steinman, a 63-year-old American Jew, was killed on Monday by Jordanians who allege that he crossed the armistice line near the Jordanian village of Tulkarm.

The Jordanians have told the Mixed Armistice Commission that Stone was warned several times not to approach the demarcation line. When he crossed the border he was immediately shot at and killed instantly.

Israeli delegates to the Mixed Armistice Commission have carried out on-the-spot investigations together with United Nations observers. The body has been returned to the Israelis.

Mr. Stone, who was born in Vilna, had lived for many years in the United States. He arrived in Israel last January and intended to settle here.

GIFT FOR SYDNEY COLLEGE

SYDNEY

Dr. H. V. Evatt, the Chief Justice of New South Wales, has said at the official opening of the new Mount Moriah College, in a Sydney suburb, that the college—which had first been planned 18 years ago—was a sign of the Jewish peoples' perseverance and lasting love for children and Jewish learning.

He presented the college with a bronze and silver plaque depicting the 12 tribes which had been presented to him by the State of Israel. Such a plaque, he said, was more fitting in a school than in a private home.

The Church must remain "unprejudiced" towards both Israel and the Arab peoples, says a report headed "Israel and the Church" published by the Dutch Reformed Church.

SIX TONS OF SEFORIM

Canadian's Find in Warsaw

From a Special Correspondent

A consignment of seforim, weighing about six tons, and 50 Torah Scrolls have been bought in Poland by a Canadian Jewish industrialist, Mr. Yechiel Nahari, who has had them shipped to Canada.

Mr. Nahari, who was born in Warsaw and comes from a Chassidic family, frequently visits Poland, Russia, and other East European countries on business. A few months ago in Poland Mr. Nahari came across several tons of seforim and asked whether he could buy them as they seemed to be of no use to anybody in Poland. The Polish authorities agreed to sell the books, and proved extremely helpful in arranging the deal.

Mr. Nahari arranged for the Jewish Institute in Warsaw to ship the books to Canada. He had no time or opportunity to make a full list of the books—but he knew that the consignment contained many precious volumes. When the books arrived in Canada, it transpired that the Institute had replaced some of the religious books with post-war Jewish publications of no particular value.

When Mr. Nahari protested the Polish booksellers, Ars Polona, undertook to make amends to him when he next went to Poland.

Sifrei Torah Offer

On his next visit Mr. Nahari demanded the rest of the seforim which he had bought. Ars Polona was very apologetic and very nice about it. They explained that there had been some misunderstanding but at the moment they could not lay their hands on the rest of the seforim. They offered to give Nahari 30 Sifrei Torah as compensation for the missing seforim. He agreed, and the Sifrei Torah were sent to Canda.

In the course of the discussion Mr. Nahari learned that 20 more Sifrei Torah were available and also bought those.

Among the Sifrei Torah are scrolls from the Court of the Gerer Rebbe.

The Sifrei Torah and the seforim will be divided between Jewish institutions in Canada and Israel.

Personal Opinion

THE United Synagogue has dug deep in its pockets and pulled out a plum. Ministers are to receive a rise of £2 10s. a week. The news is unlikely to fill the empty places at Jews' College.

It is true that when the United Synagogue stipend is compared with that of the Church of England it does not seem paltry. But in the church there is a considerable tradition for the sons of wealthy families to enter the ministry. More important is the scope for advancement. The Vicar can hope to become a Canon, a Dean, or even a Bishop. The United Synagogue minister can hope to become a Minister Emeritus. A vocation is in a sad state if it rests on material inducements to attract members; agreed. But the Jewish ministry is in a sad state; it is in a very sad state, for it largely reflects the character of the society to which it ministers.

The social acceptability of a person in many parts of the Jewish community rests on the character of the rodent which adorns his wife. If a man is a scholar it is of little account if he is not at the same time rich. The academician in his withdrawn cloisters is unconcerned about this. The minister has to live with it. Everyone is aware that the clergy are underpaid and there is therefore a certain amount of generosity in unofficial emoluments, known commonly as "back-handers." But back-handers are not like mercy. They corrupt both giver and receiver.

When all this is considered it is surprising that while there are good openings in the coal mines there are still students at Jews' College who want to be clergymen.

Every Monday and Thursday, or thereabouts, the world Zionist leaders assemble for a junket in Jerusalem and there proclaim the need for more Western aliya. One need not go to Vladivostok to discover that Russia is big, and one need not gather in Jerusalem to understand the need for Western aliya. But how is the aliya to be increased?. Hardly through the present Zionist set-up. One can only refer to British experience, but the glossy banality of the Zionist Organisation must offend any young person with an inquiring mind or a pioneering spirit—the sort of person most likely to go on aliya.

A change of leadership would probably change nothing. What is needed is an entirely new Zionist movement purged of the barren slogans and pretentious sophistries of the old. It could be a movement along the lines suggested by Ben-Gurion—an association of Jews interested in Israel.

The fact that the word "Zionism" is used in a pejorative sense in Israel is further evidence of the widening gap between the Jewish State and the movement that gave it birth. I know many people from Western countries who are now happily settled in Israel. Very few of them had anything to do with the Zionist Organisation.

Abie Wasserstein, recently appointed to the Chair of Classics at Leicester University, has the nervous stance of the Yeshiva student and the thoughtful reticence of the scholar. The first impression is one of unassuming withdrawal. When he has nothing to say, he says nothing, but when he has something to say his conversation can have the flowing warmth of a good claret. I remember seeing him, pink-faced and crop-haired, in the Don's common-room at Glasgow University beside a history professor, whose profundity was matched only by his rotundity, and looking like a schoolboy on an outing with his dad.

Although a Galitzianer fallen among Litvaks, Professor Wasserstein made many friends in Glasgow, and his departure will be deeply felt in a community which is not overendowed with articulate men of learning.

Middle East Diary

BITTERNESS IN LEBANON

The Lebanese election results prove that it is easier to stir up passions than to quieten them down afterwards. The Moslem vote has gone overwhelmingly to pro-Nasserites like Saib Salam, who organised resistance to the Chamoun Government and turned the Basta, Beirut's Moslem quarter, into an armed camp in the summer and autumn of 1958.

The Maronite vote, in turn, has gone overwhelmingly to Pierre Gamayil's militantly Christian and anti-Nasserite Kataib, organised for streetfighting as well as politics, and pledged to fight to the death against any attempt to alter the Lebanon's independent status.

By AMOS

With the two factions facing each other more uncompromisingly than ever, and the "middle of the road" candidates defeated, the Government's task will become increasingly difficult. Nasser, in turn, will be tempted to try to make some effort to tilt the balance again by intervention, and this time one cannot be certain that the U.S.A. Government would risk intervention, as they did in 1958 when their half-hearted landings saved the situation from deteriorating to the worst possible extent.

Any change would affect Israel hardly less than a change in Jordan's Government and status. As things stand the Lebanon has always been the least troublesome of Israel's neighbours; the borders are quiet, the Mixed Armistice Commission functions, and the likelihood of any serious trouble is slight. With a Nasserite Government in the Lebanon things would become much worse.

The second conference of African States at Addis Ababa has gone very much as might have been expected. Everyone is against imperialism and for freedom and economic development. It shows marked differences, however, from the Afro-Asian conferences.

The main part has been played by Africa south of the Sahara, while the influence of Cairo, Moscow, and Peking has been correspondingly slight. Attempts to give the conference an anti-Israeli slant failed quite early on, and where the Algerian issue was concerned the general tone was for a peaceful solution rather than the uncompromising struggle for its own sake that Cairo has been pressing.

Nasser fondly believed that Egypt was the natural centre of the African political world just as it should be of the Arab and Moslem worlds, and this belief has been responsible for some of the support Moscow has been giving him. The Africans, however, are far less impressed.

Apart from the Somalis, who are already being culturally colonised by Egypt, the Africans do not take Nasser's pretensions very seriously. He has no money to offer, no diplomatic influence, no technical aid, nothing but political advice and demands for support.

The African world, in spite of its immaturity, appears to be harder-headed and more practical minded than the Asian nationalists. Moreover, Cairo's opponents and competitors inside the Arab world, Tunisia, Libya, and Morocco, are also active in pan-African politics, together with the Sudan which however much it talks against imperialism knows that the only effective danger to its independence comes from Cairo.

AGREEMENT TO CONFER

NO question is of greater moment in the life of Diaspora Jewry today than Jewish education. If continued discussion on this subject does not lead to immediate solutions, it at least focuses attention on the problems. It would, therefore, have been agreeable to welcome, at least on this modest basis, the "Working Party" which meets in Paris next week to plan a "Global Conference on Jewish Education." But with the best will in the world it is difficult not to be somewhat sceptical as to its usefulness. If a world conference on Jewish education is really necessary, and this remains to be proved, it is difficult to understand why forty to fifty prominent Jewish educators and communal leaders should have to congregate from all five Continents and confer for days about its agenda and arrangements. The agenda could easily have been drawn up by a small steering committee, and the arrangements by the Secretariat.

However, having set their minds on an international conference, one will, no doubt, be finally held. There will be numerous speeches and papers to the effect that Jewish education is a good and desirable thing. But the problems differ so fundamentally from country to country that there would appear to be but little room for international co-operation. Israel's problems are totally different from those of the Diaspora, Yugoslavia's and South Africa's have little in common with those of Britain.

Nothing but good could come from exchanges of ideas and experiences on certain problems and topics, but this can best be carried out on a bilateral or restricted multilateral basis, with actual visits to institutions and "technical aid." A large expensive conference with lofty speeches and implicit or explicit disunity over fundamentals—like the scope and place of religious and Zionist content—will be the least effective way of pooling experiences.

As far as British views and needs on Jewish education are concerned, they are in urgent need of clarification. Apart from the children of the tenaciously Orthodox and the relatively small number of Jewish children attending Jewish day schools—whose importance no one denies—most Jewish children here will continue to receive three or four hours of Jewish instruction a week at the best. A syllabus which tries to cover what children in past generations learned from a full day's attendance at cheder is bound to fail dismally, and lose the children's interest into the bargain. And, equally, instruction which is orientated towards Israel and the duty of aliya will be of little use to that large majority of Jewish children who—barring world-shattering catastrophes—will live out their lives in the Diaspora. The problem is to educate them to retain active ties with the community.

It is unlikely that these problems could be clarified at an international conference or pre-conference. If, at next week's discussions, the emphasis is upon the mechanics of bigger and better conferences, then participation may not merely be wasteful but also harmful in diverting the attention of our educationists from the real issues we have to face in this and other countries.

DISHONESTY AND SMEAR

EVERYONE has a right to his opinions, but respect for ascertainable fact is obligatory, and it is deeply to be regretted that one of the leading participants in the formation of United States foreign policy should ignore reality in order to justify a partisan viewpoint. Senator Fulbright, Chairman of the U.S.A. Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, attempts to blame Premier Ben-Gurion and President Nasser in equal measure for the present tensions in the Middle East. He insists that both leaders should "overcome their irrational emotion" and be willing to "take the first step" towards solving the area's problems. Now the fact of the matter is that Nasser refuses to recognise Israel's right to exist, and refuses to negotiate with Israel, while day by day his propagandists incite the Arab masses to irreconcilable hatred against Israel, promising its destruction by armed force in the most lurid language. Ben-Gurion, on the other hand, has no claims on the U.A.R. or other Arab States, he has made every effort to meet with their representatives, and has taken every opportunity to call for negotiations. Israeli official and unofficial propaganda alike stress the value of peace and co-operation between Israel and the Arabs, and reject war as a means of policy. There is no reason to suppose that the Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations is ignorant of these facts. To insure himself in advance against contradiction, the Senator has been carrying out a smear campaign against opponents. Those who urge a less accommodating policy towards the U.A.R., he asserts, are unpatriotic, are influenced by interested parties, are ready to sacrifice American interests to Jewish pressure groups. It is gratifying to note that the Senator's ideas and smears have been rejected by the majority of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and by the Senate itself.

KASHRUS COMMISSION

THE annual report which will be presented to next week's meeting of the Kashrus Commission does not betray any false modesty. In no uncertain terms it states that the Commission has maintained and consolidated its established authority and now enters the fortieth year of its history as one of the major communal and religious organisations in Anglo-Jewry. It confidently asserts that the Commission "can look with pride on its progress and expansion in what is now the premier organisation responsible for the administration of kashrus supervision at functions, hotels, restaurants, bakeries, baker shops, and various food product manufacturers." However, despite all the external activities of the Commission and the increasing enforcement of its authority, its essential objective is very far indeed from being achieved. More and more of those who are nominally Orthodox Jews increasingly do not observe in their everyday lives the rules of kashrut. Only this week the Haham has been emphasising the dangers attaching to complacency in these matters. The Commission might be well advised to undertake a religious campaign to convert the masses who are now indifferent to or ignorant about the importance of kashrut in Orthodox Jewish life. It is, of course, necessary to maintain an organisation and machinery for kashrut, but they will be of little avail except as a façade unless the Jewish public is persuaded of the spiritual significance and religious meaning of these regulations.

GENERAL ZIONISM

THE Z.O.A. Vice-President's call for a revitalisation of the Zionist Movement—reported in our news columns—deserves serious attention here. Mr. Torczyner warns that Israel is likely to need the Zionist Movement's political support in the future no less urgently than it has done in the past. If, however, Israeli leaders continue to denigrate the Movement, while it undermines its own vitality by excessive concentration on fund-raising and philanthropic activity for Israel, it will lose its morale, purpose, and power, and will be unable to match its former achievements in an hour of need. With all due respect for Mr. Ben-Gurion, Mr. Torczyner warns him that his animosity towards the Zionist Movement can do considerable harm to one of the main pillars of Israel's support. The Z.O.A. leader's insistence on the need for new Zionist thinking is timely. If the present leaders are unable to achieve this because of antiquated outlook or personal animosities, then, as Mr. Torczyner suggests, they should make their final sacrifice for the Movement by standing aside for new men. His frankness in admitting the shortcomings of his own General Zionist Movement in this respect is commendable; they still have a good deal of spring-cleaning to do before they can hope to implement any of these sound ideas.

CALL TO YOUTH

AT its meeting last Sunday the Board of Deputies cordially approved the proposal that the name of its Education Committee should be changed to that of Education and Youth Committee. This change of title happily reflects the extension of the Committee's activities, under the energetic Chairmanship of Mrs. Janner, from the purely educational sphere to participation in the wider field of youth work generally. An important aspect of these activities has been the establishment of the Jewish Youth Organisations Secretaries' Committee. This body has shown commendable enterprise and imagination in launching a new effort for the welfare of youth, particularly in the small and scattered communities. An admirable feature of the scheme is its comprehensiveness. It is designed to attract the support of those of varying ages and interests and viewpoints, so that all individuals may be brought into touch with the appropriate organisations which cater for their particular needs. A persuasive letter explaining these admirable proposals has been widely circulated by the Board of Deputies. It is addressed to "Jewish Youth Everywhere" and should meet with an enthusiastic response.

ON THE MOVE

IT seems that the facetious remarks about "static Dayanim" which were uttered by the President of the United Synagogue at a recent Council meeting have somehow been misconstrued seriously by the Chief Rabbi and his colleagues of the Beth Din. Mr. Ewen Montagu has found it necessary to explain that his lighthearted words were intended in a jocular spirit and did not imply any criticism of the peripatetic abilities of the Dayanim. One is reminded of the famous words said to have been uttered by Galileo: "Eppur si muove—Nevertheless, it does move." While the great scientist was referring to the whole terrestrial globe, the President of the United Synagogue may perhaps have felt that the Beth Din was an august microcosm which reflected the motion of the macrocosm. It may be that the Beth Din is somewhat sensitive on this subject, as it needed so much persuasion to move from one Adler House to another. However, its members now evidently take pride in their mobility, though it is to be hoped that they will not attempt immediately to rival the standards of United Synagogue Presidents. Mr. Montagu's predecessor was more than once taken to task for his exuberant driving on the roads. And Mr. Montagu, as Judge Advocate of the Fleet and a devotee of yachting, must be an authority on speed at sea. But once the idea of movement has been accepted in principle, perhaps it may induce not only physical but also religious dynamism.

The J.C. 100 Years Ago

POSEN.—INTOLERANCE — The Archbishop of Posen has issued a pastoral letter, in which he asks the Roman Catholics not to elect Jews on the municipal councils. It seems as if the Catholic hierarchy had received orders from headquarters to rouse a hostile spirit against the Jews.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

INTERNATIONAL LAW AND EICHMANN

Extent of Nazi Crimes

SIR,—Where were the defenders of international law when Eichmann forcibly removed hundreds of thousands of helpless people, including children and babes in arms, over whom he had no jurisdiction, into a country where he was himself a foreigner? Where was the outcry and the protest against his fiendish, lawless acts and those of his henchmen? It appears that where the victims are "only" Jews, the value placed on human lives is not the same as when the "victim" is of the Aryan race.

Have we ever tried to realise what the death of six million souls means? If we were to attempt to say for each soul slain one kaddish (allowing one minute for each), and if we said it without interruption day and night, it would take about eleven years to complete! That is the extent of our loss. Are we not then in duty bound to try to bring to justice those responsible for it?

AMERICAN TOURISTS' ATTITUDE

SIR,—It was suggested by a reader, in your issue of June 10, that a building be sought where Jewish tourists could gather and meet British Jews. If your correspondent had my experience he would change his mind.

I am a London taxi-driver of very many years, and during my career I have had scores of Jewish American tourists in my cab. We have often conversed in Yiddish. And when taking them on a sight-seeing tour of London I have done my utmost to show them some of London's synagogues, or to take them to London Jewish quarters. I am sorry to say most of them were not interested.

When in London these people want only to visit London's historical places. On the other hand, they are very interested to know from me what Jewish life is like in England, whether we have any antisemitism, whether we have many synagogues in London, and what form of services we have.

The Jewish tourists, when in London, want to "go places," and from my experience of them the majority of them would consider it a waste of time to do as your correspondent suggested.

THE TEMPLE MENORAH

SIR,—In your issue of June 10 the writer of the weekly sermon states: "Hence the legend that when the Temple was destroyed by the Romans the Menorah disappeared and escaped the enemy's plunder. Titus engraved its likeness on his arch of triumph, but he never carried it in procession through Rome."

Apparently, he had in mind the Midrashic passage on the Sidra, where it is stated that the Menorah was one of five articles which disappeared during the destruction of the Temple and escaped falling into the hands of the enemy. But this statement refers only to the Menorah of Moses made at the Divine behest and to the destruction of the first Temple.

TRAVELLING DAYANIM

SIR,—As you reported in your issue of last week, I was asked a question at the Council meeting of the United Synagogue about the small sum of "travelling expenses" incurred by the Dayanim of the London Beth Din. To this rather trivial question I gave one of those light-hearted answers which serve as a relief in a long and serious meeting.

I am confident that my hearers, you, and the readers of THE JEWISH CHRONICLE all regarded the matter in that light, but the Chief Rabbi is anxious lest some people might treat my answer as a seriously intended criticism of the energy and devotion to duty of the Dayanim, and feels that the answer given in that way might detract from the community's appreciation of the onerous duties performed by the Dayanim during 1959; indeed he stressed that on a number of occasions the Dayanim visited communities all over the country, but that their expenses were very properly paid by those who had requested their attendance.

I readily accede to the wish of the Chief Rabbi that these matters should be made clear beyond any peradventure, if indeed anyone took my reply as a serious criticism, and I will be most grateful if you can find space so that this letter may reach your readers.

As for the Menorah of the second Temple there is definite evidence that Titus did carry it away to Rome. In a passage of the Tannaite Midrash "Sifre Zuta" preserved in the "Midrash Haggadol," Numbers viii, 2, R. Simeon b. Yochai relates: "When I went to Rome and saw there the Menorah I observed that its six lamps were turned towards the central lamp." From the context there it is quite clear that it was an established fact that the Menorah had been brought by Titus to Rome. R. Simeon only wants to testify to its structure as deduced from the Biblical text.

UNITED SYNAGOGUE ACCOUNTS

Method of Presentation

SIR,—Last year after the Budget Meeting of the United Synagogue you saw fit to publish a violent criticism of the form of the United Synagogue accounts. On it being pointed out that this contained a number of errors, you subsequently printed a correction in your columns.

This year you have seen fit again to make an attack on the accounts of the United Synagogue. The lack of value and unfairness of this can again be shown by the fact that the contributor, who obviously is no accountant, did not notice that the market value of the Funded property of the United Synagogue, quite contrary to his statement, is clearly set out in the accounts on pages 22 and 23 and that the book and market value of the Bequests and Trusts Funds are also similarly clearly set out in column 15 on page 23.

ALFRED H. SILVERMAN,
Secretary.

Woburn House,
Upper Woburn Place, W.C.1.

[1. The "correction" last year to which Mr. Silverman refers consisted of the publication by THE JEWISH CHRONICLE of a statement by Mr. Silverman himself in reply to the criticism in these columns. Neither last year nor now has Mr. Silverman attempted to answer the essence of the criticism, which is that the form in which the United Synagogue accounts are presented is both inadequate and antiquated.

2. Our Correspondent, who is, in fact, a chartered accountant, writes: "Nowhere on pages 22 and 23 of these accounts are the terms 'market value' or 'book value' used. I must assume from Mr. Silverman's letter that the term 'valuation at December 31, 1959' (itself almost lost in a welter of other detail on the page) actually means 'market value' at that date. As for 'book value,' does Mr. Silverman mean that what appear to be nominal values of investment holdings, shown in the various columns on the two pages concerned, are, in fact, the values brought into the books? There is no reason whatever for any reader of these accounts to assume that this is the case. It seems to me that the two pages to which attention is drawn by Mr. Silverman are a perfect example of how not to present an account to an ordinary reader."

3. It is, of course, not the duty of the Auditors, unless specifically so required, to lay down the form in which the accounts are to be presented. No reflection, therefore, was intended against the professional integrity of the highly reputable accountants who are the Joint Auditors of the United Synagogue.—Ed., J.C.]

THE FUTURE IN CYPRUS

By GEOFFREY WIGODER

With independence for Cyprus in the offing our contributor, who is the director of the English department of Kol Zion Lagola, discusses the position of the Jewish community in the island and Cypriot relations with Israel.

THE Jewish community of Cyprus is looking forward confidently to the advent of independence. Although few in number, they are making a disproportionate contribution to the development of the island and are engaged in projects (citrus, farming, and mining) which employ many Cypriots and constitute significant factors in the national economy. They have remained outside active political life but have maintained good relations with all the various elements. They feel sure that their position will remain unchanged, although there is uncertainty as to future policy concerning further Jews who may wish to immigrate.

Before the Second World War Cyprus had 400 Jewish families. These were evacuated in 1941 after the fall of Crete, and many did not return. Since the war their numbers have averaged around 150, but are now down to 120 (apart from the Israelis living there). The history of the modern community is short, nearly all the Jews having immigrated within the past thirty years from Eastern Europe or the Middle East.

Influence of Israel

Communal life is scanty—Holyday services, a Purim party for children, and upkeep of the cemetery at Margo just about represent the sum total. For circumcisions a mohel is brought over from Israel; for Barmitzvahs the boy is educated in Israel—and the ceremony often takes place there; while for weddings there is a civil marriage after which a religious member of the community reads the Ketuba.

The outstanding influence in their spiritual and cultural life is Israel—only an hour's flight away. Israel's home radio programmes can be clearly received in the island, and a number of families keep the link a living one by speaking Hebrew in their homes. Most of them visit Israel regularly and try to have their children educated in kibbutzim or in Israeli boarding schools. Strangely, they have never been approached to contribute to any Israeli appeal, but presumably this concomitant of modern Jewish life will reach them in due course.

The relationship between Jew and non-Jew has always been excellent; a couple of swastikas appeared in the recent epidemic but were taken seriously by no one. The detention camps set up by the British for would-be immigrants to Palestine brought the Cypriot into close contact with the Jewish problem for the first time and evoked widespread sympathy for the detainees, shown practically in many ways. The Jewish struggle for independence in Palestine, which was to be later closely paralleled in their own experience, forged a further bond of understanding.

Arab Pressure

The Cypriot has retained his admiration for Israel, despite Arab pressure and despite the all-out support for the cause of Cypriot independence evinced by the Arab countries at a time when Israel's international commitments forced her to be more circumspect. When I spoke to Archbishop Makarios recently he stressed his desire to have "friendly relations with all countries—especially our neighbours" and he has repeatedly expressed his wish not to take sides in the Arab-Israeli conflict. It remains to be seen whether this intention will be fulfilled in the face of Arab efforts to undermine relations with Israel.

Economically Israel finds herself in a unique position vis-à-vis Cyprus inasmuch as she exports far more than she imports (the figures last year were £873,829 and £84,546). The favourable balance is actually uncomfortable, as any further increase in the flow of trade is dependent first on stepping up Cyprus's exports to Israel. Consequently the Israeli Consulate in Nicosia is actively engaged in promoting Cyprus exports. The difficulty is that Cyprus's main products either correspond to those of Israel or have already been promised elsewhere. Israel has many items to sell to Cyprus, and her main exports currently are eggs, sunflower oil, groundnuts, poultry, paper and cardboard, and plywood. In addition, a number of Israeli firms have gone into partnership with local firms and are operating on the island. Thus, the largest building contractor is run by Solel Boneh in partnership with a local Greek company.

Archbishop Makarios being greeted by Mr. Zeev Levin, the Israeli Consul in Cyprus, at Israel's Independence Day reception in Nicosia

Israel's main economic contribution to Cyprus comes through tourist traffic. Before the "troubles" in Cyprus, Egypt was the main source of the tourist industry, but this has dried up—and is unlikely to be resumed on the same scale in view of competition from Lebanon. The gap has been filled by the Israelis, and 4,000 of them visited Cyprus last year, saving the tourist industry from disaster. This year the number is expected to be considerably higher, and the Histadrut is organising popular excursions to Cyprus (a week's stay, including the fare, costs I£100). Unfortunately the reverse is not true, and Cypriots, although desiring to visit Israel, are kept away by the high fares—it costs £20 to Lydda whereas they can get to Beirut for £8.

Israel has fostered friendly contacts with Cyprus at various levels. Experts have been sent to advise on a variety of topics ranging from carob-growing to road sewage; the labour and trade union movements in the two countries have co-operated closely; the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra was fabulously successful in culture-starved Nicosia, while the work of Cyprus's outstanding painter Giorghiou was enthusiastically received when it was exhibited in Jerusalem's Bezalel Museum. In the realm of sport there have been meetings all along the line, and an Israeli international soccer star is now trainer to one of Cyprus's crack teams.

It would appear, therefore, that there is a chance that Israel may in the near future get something for which she has long wished—a friendly neighbour.

Ingathering Exiled Jewish Archives

By GOLDA ZIMMERMAN

THE recent transfer to the Jewish Historical General Archives in Jerusalem of the Hamburg and Koenigsberg Jewish communal archives completes a ten-year operation of "ingathering of the exiled records of our past" from Austria and West Germany.

The material on Koenigsberg was found immediately after the war, kept by the authorities of the State of Niedersachsen. It contains 555 files of the years 1769-1929, which include much information pertaining to mutual relations between East and West European Jewry; records of correspondence with the Government of Prussia and the Berlin community on Emancipation; files on Jewish education; and others on the sending of relief money to Palestine through Vilna.

The Hamburg Jewish community archives were saved by being placed with the State archives after the November, 1938 pogroms. They contain material on both the Sephardi and Ashkenazi communities and of the communities of Altona, Wandsbek, and Harburg. The agreement to gain access to all this provides for the transfer to Jerusalem of more than 1,500 minute books and files of the years 1641 to 1944. Included in them are some very old minute and statute books in Hebrew and Yiddish, as well as German, records of the decisions of the Rabbinic Courts in Altona and the Schleswig-Holstein district for the years 1778 to 1936. The files on the notorious Eibeschutz-Emden quarrel, files on education during the years 1822 to 1942, those of the struggle for emancipation from the Congress of Vienna (1815) onwards, and much else of great interest.

The "father" of the Jewish Historical General Archives is the Jewish Historical Society of (then) Palestine, formed in 1925. It postulated two aims: publication of an historical quarterly, "Zion," now in its 25th volume, and the collection of archives of Jewish historical interest as the basis for research.

Dr. Meisel, who was Secretary-General of the Berlin Jewish community, started archives of his own and brought them with him when he emigrated to Palestine in 1938. The Jewish Historical Society took them over and made him Director.

The work went on in a leisurely fashion till the extinction of Jewish communities in Europe gave to archives of Jewish interest a new importance.

With the end of the Second World War, a struggle began between those in Jerusalem anxious to gather together all Jewish archives, and the State authorities or returning Jews who wanted to keep whatever remained of this material in their respective countries. The Jewish Historical General Archives had no legal standing and could only present itself as "the moral heir." The Jewish Trust Corporation in the British Zone of Germany and Irso in America had to be convinced that the best place for Jewish archives was Jerusalem.

It has, as a result, taken ten years to bring from West Germany and Austria to Israel whatever had survived the war, sometimes after court litigation, often with only the partial success of obtaining microfilm copies instead of the originals.

One of the most difficult places was Hamburg, where the State was unwilling to part with what it claimed were files of a public nature. The compromise reached was arbitrary; whatever related to internal Jewish affairs was released for transfer to Jerusalem and only microfilm copies were allowed of the remainder.

Title page of the minutes of the electoral records of the Jewish community of Poznan (Posen) 1621-1837

Among what has already been brought to Jerusalem, now temporarily housed in the basement of the Yad Veshem building on the Hill of Remembrance next to Mount Herzl, there is much of objective interest.

Here we find, for instance, complete tax assessments of some German Jewish communities from the end of the seventeenth century; first-hand genealogical lists of 800 German Jewish communities; the Charter given by the Emperor Charles V to Worms Jewry; 5,000 volumes and files for the years 1812 to 1944 from Vienna; from that once flourishing and famous community of Frankfort there are, unfortunately, only remnants left, as most of the archives were destroyed.

The Nazis kept registers, which are available for consultation and photography, and these have been made good use of. A survey was also carried out of files in the Public Record Office in London and microfilm copies taken of dispatches to East Europe, the Balkans, and France. All material pertaining to Jews from the German Foreign Office kept in London was microfilmed.

In Italy emissaries were sent annually since 1945 to visit every Jewish community still existing to make lists of the relevant records in general archives and photograph the hard core of them. Similar work has been done in Holland, Denmark, France, Alsace Lorraine, Yugoslavia, Poland, and Prague. A beginning has been made in Spain. From America there were the archives of the late Dr. Magnus, the Brochas collection, and the remnants of the Dubinow collection.

The present accommodation is already becoming too small, and it is intended to move to the Sprinzak Building, where the Institute of Contemporary Judaism is making space available for the purpose. A staff of six, familiar with many languages, under the direction of Mr. Daniel Cohen, M.A., is at work on this task. The budget is I£45,000 a year obtained from the Ministry of Education, the Jewish Agency, the Claims Conference, and Yad Veshem (for special projects).

One day it is hoped to have a complete Jewish National Historical Library—in which will be "ingathered" all the present "exiled" archives, telling as nearly as possible the complete story of the Jews.

NAZIS IN ARGENTINA

By NISSIM ELNECAVE

(The JEWISH CHRONICLE Correspondent in Buenos Aires)

THE President of the German Bundestag, heading the West German delegation to the Argentine sesquicentennial, when asked by local journalists whether he knew anything about the recent alleged death of Martin Bormann in Paso de los Libres (a small frontier city in the North of Argentina), replied: "Why so much ado about Bormann, considering that Buenos Aires is the best place for Nazi activities?"

This kind of comment goes to strengthen the belief that after the war Argentina became the new headquarters of Nazism. There were periods of considerable Nazi activity here under Peron and, unfortunately, neither the revolutionary government which deposed Peron nor the government headed by President Frondizi have been able satisfactorily to tackle this problem. Even now there are strong ultra-nationalists both in the army and in many political circles; and it is no secret that the Foreign Ministry here is split into two factions, one possessing a democratic slant, the other consisting of extreme nationalists, a heritage from the Alianza Libertadora Nacionista, a group which was closely linked with Nazi-fascist elements under Peron.

One of the Foreign Ministry's top officials—Di Pablo Pardo—and various lesser lights in that Ministry were A.L.N. sympathisers and evidently have not forgotten their previous connections with that sinister body. "La Razon," the most important Argentine evening newspaper, commented recently: "It is known that there are two tendencies at the Foreign Ministry about the Eichmann case, one quite moderate and the other—headed by a high ex-A.L.N. official—which insists on severing diplomatic relations with Israel."

Graf Spee Agents

During the war the Argentine National Congress appointed a parliamentary commission to investigate anti-Argentine activities in the country. The commission found that Argentina was being used as the centre for Nazi Intelligent Services in South America. Nazi colonies, consisting of groups of officers and men from the scuttled German warship, Graf Spee, sprung up south of Buenos Aires and around the city of Cordoba and other places. And during Peron's dictatorship, from 1943, the situation grew still worse.

After the war a veritable stream of high-ranking and other Nazis who had escaped the Nuremberg trials flocked to Argentina. Among them were Generals Rudel and Tank, Marshal Gallant, and Otto Skorzeny, all personal friends of Peron, who were provided with false documents and given high positions in the State Aeronautical Institute at Cordoba. In 1947 Anton Pavelic, the former Nazi gauleiter in Croatia, arrived in Argentina, together with other Croatian and Hungarian Nazis and fascists. These Nazis found protection under the wing of the first revolutionary government. When, later, an occasion arose to arrest Pavelic, he waved a Vatican passport under the authorities' noses. Adolf Eichmann was closely connected with Pavelic and did business with him. After remaining here for several years, Pavelic left Argentina in 1958. (He died in Madrid at the end of last year.)

Another war criminal who reached Argentina was Dr. Joseph Mengele, who at Auschwitz is said to have murdered women and children by chemical injections. On June 7, 1959, the West German Government requested his extradition, following a warrant for his arrest issued two days previously by Judge Müller, of Freiburg. The German Embassy in Buenos Aires, through which the extradition request was made, stated that it had been rejected on the grounds

About Books

ORIENTAL RENAISSANCE

By JOHN ALLEGRO

The Face of the Ancient Orient. By SABATINO MOSCATI. Routledge & Kegan Paul and Vallentine, Mitchell. 30s.

This is an important book. Professor Moscati, Director of the Centre of Semitic Studies in the University of Rome, is already world famous for his writings on the origins and growth of Semitic civilisations, as well as for his specialist studies within that field. The present work is, in his own words, "a panoramic survey of the ancient Oriental civilisations, or rather, of the ancient Orient as a whole."

The time is ripe for such a book, readable, authoritative, and stimulating. Archæological discoveries in the Near East over the past few decades have radically transformed our knowledge of these ancient civilisations. For most of us the difficulty is to piece these fresh items of knowledge into the general pattern of Near Eastern culture, without which they lack cohesion and meaning. To do so requires the detailed knowledge of the specialist, coupled with a width of vision that can see the general picture and set it against the civilisations of surrounding areas. Professor Moscati possesses these faculties and through his eyes we can view the ancient Orient as a whole, its several cultures acting upon one another and producing a synthesis which, in time, crumbles and is absorbed by an even greater civilisation from the west.

Ancient Civilisations

The scheme of the book follows this basic conception of the author, who pictures the inter-relationship of cultures in the ancient Orient as a kind of chemical process. The two great river basin civilisations of Egypt and Mesopotamia are its component elements, acted upon from north and south by the catalysts of hostile incursions. Thus, the mighty, self-sufficient, and virtually enclosed area about the Nile faces the eastern giant sustained by the less predictable Tigris and Euphrates. From the mountains of the north and the deserts of the south and centre come the foreign elements which determine and assist the process of synthesis, forcing the conjunction of the opposing forces, first to equilibrium and then to domination of one side. The last catalyst produced the synthesis, until it, too, broke down before Greece.

Each civilisation is presented to us first as whole, then in brief historical survey, followed by its distinctive contributions in the fields of religion, literature, and art, everywhere sparkingly illustrated by quotations from literature and illustrations in figures and plates.

Naturally, this kind of eclectic survey of vast fields of human endeavour must to some extent be subjective. Professor Moscati's choice of representative features may not satisfy everyone in each case. His assessment of their various contributions to the growth of Near Eastern culture may find disagreement among scholars, who would balance the scales rather differently according to their own valuation. This is to be expected and, indeed, welcomed, for this is not a history book but a personal evaluation of different cultures, sometimes in direct opposition, more often in process of integration.

It may well be that future discoveries will clarify, even profoundly change, our conceptions about the less well-represented civilisations. All we know, for example, of Hittite literature is derived from the remains of one library. Perhaps one day we shall discover that the creativeness displayed in Hittite annals and treaties was extended also to other, more imaginative forms of literature. Another Ugarit may yet be found that will extend the range of Syrian art far beyond our present comprehension. But few will disagree that, with the material that is so far in our hands, Professor Moscati's evaluation and synthesis is both reasonable and historically satisfying. And if the reader does not agree with the author's appreciation, let him look for himself at the translated or pictured originals, for one of the joys of this book is the very up-to-date selective bibliographies appended in the short footnotes.

The author speaks of an "Oriental renaissance" in progress today, born out of the chance discovery of ancient Ugarit in 1928. The other major discoveries of Mari and the Dead Sea Scrolls have only fostered this reawakened public interest in the ancient Orient. Books like the present one, which call for further detailed reading and individual judgment, must further the process. From such studies of the historical past we can confidently expect a more enlightened and tolerant attitude to the problems of the modern Orient.

BOOK BRIEFS

The Kingdoms of Christ, by Peter Bamm (Thames and Hudson, 42s.), gives a magnificently illustrated history of the early Christian Church.

The Art of Writing, by André Maurois (Bodley Head, 18s.), is a delightful collection of essays on some outstanding European men of letters; one of the most perceptive is that on Proust.

In Defiance, by Françoise Rigby (Elek, 16s.), gives the story of a courageous Resistance patriot and of her subsequent devoted work for refugees.

The Directory of Opportunities for School Leavers 1960 (Cornmarket Press, 8s. 6d.) is a valuable reference book.

Connoisseur

By R. N. CARVALHO

Berenson: A Biography. By SYLVIA SPRIGGE. Allen & Unwin. Price 35s.

Bernard Berenson died in October, 1959, at the age of 94. It is too soon after his death to hope for a definitive biography, and Mrs. Sprigge was perhaps too close a friend to write one, especially as she did not meet him until 1945, by which time his best work was done and he was just about to enjoy his incredible Indian summer in which he basked in the adulation of his admirers and disciples. He was strangely reticent about himself and even more so about his origins, so that Mrs. Sprigge has little to go on for his early life and prime except what can be recovered from his letters.

The result is inevitably one-sided. One just does not grasp how the young Harvard graduate with no formal training in the appreciation or criticism of art made himself a pioneer art-historian and the foremost connoisseur and collector (for other people, of course) of his period. The facts are set out or can be pieced together from such records as the correspondence with Mrs. Gardner, the founder of that extraordinary Bostonian institution, Fenway Court; but one still does not know why or how it happened. How did Bernhard Valvrojenski, the son of a small timber merchant of Butremanz, in Lithuania, become as Bernard Berenson the figure of world stature that he did? Perhaps we shall never know.

From Lithuania

Mrs. Sprigge gives us an impression of a fairly strict Orthodox upbringing in Butremanz, but the abandoning of it was so sudden and so complete—after ten years in Boston Berenson's father had become a freethinker and, more remarkable for a Russian Jewess in the 'eighties, his mother had joined the "reformed" synagogue in Boston—that one is not surprised that Berenson had submitted to Episcopalian baptism in Boston before he was 20, to be followed by reception into the Roman Church in Italy a bare ten years later, and that his religious empiricism left him in later years a sceptic, but of the Victorian Anglo-Saxon type, albeit the North American variety, rather than the Latin one. One realises with a shock that Bertrand Russell and he married sisters whose brother was Logan Pearsall Smith.

The Pale of Settlement has given the larger world many surprising figures since life began to stir there and to overflow; but this cultured American expatriate—he never lived in America after he left Harvard in 1887 and hardly ever revisited it—is surely one of the oddest and most remarkable. It must have been a rude awakening when, over fifty years after he joined the Roman Church, the certificate of his baptism became a matter of life and death in Nazi-occupied Tuscany.

Another curious thing is that it seems to have been a matter for reproach that Berenson made money by his connoisseurship. Mrs. Sprigge would seem to share this view, for she gives a very bald account of his association with Duveen, where one would have welcomed something more calculated to serve as an antidote to Behrman's amusing "Duveen." The world is always too prone to forget that its artists and litérateurs must live and are likely to enjoy the good things money can provide; and in this particular case one should never forget that Berenson left his fortune to endow his villa, I Tatti, which he had made over to Harvard University.

"B.B." remains an enigmatic figure after this book has been read; but one does realise how much of the art criticism of today which one takes for granted is his unaided creation.

Incidentally, surely Mrs. Sprigge is wrong in including Debussy among those Jews who were born or lived in the Pale. He lived in the Pale but had he any Jewish blood?

ZIONIST MEMOIRS

אנו עולים (We Ascend), by Rahel Yanait-Ben-Zvi (Am Oved, Tel Aviv), is a book of memoirs on pioneering life in Eretz Israel during the early years of this century up to, and including, the First World War, by the wife of Israel's President. Mrs. Ben-Zvi conveys a romantic yet realistic picture of the second Aliya, of the fight for work and survival in the colonies, and of the heroic struggle in the settlements against Arab banditry and Turkish misrule. There are also graphic descriptions of the author's childhood in the Ukraine and of trips through the Holy Land, often in company with Mr. Ben-Zvi and Mr. Ben-Gurion, with whose political and social activities Mrs. Ben-Zvi was closely associated.

SINAI CAMPAIGN

By JOHN CONNELL

The Weekend War. By SHLOMO BARER. Yoseloff. 25s.

In England we talk regretfully about "Suez"; in Israel they speak with pride of "the Sinai Campaign." For us it was a traumatic experience, from whose effects the country has not yet fully recovered. For Israelis it was an emotional and spiritual release, a proving, and a merited victory. To military historians, among whom I have the temerity to count myself, it is already a classic of its kind, on all tactical levels a masterpiece, and on the strategic level of no small significance.

Inevitably, even outside Israel, a considerable literature has accumulated around it. To Colonel Robert Henriques's "Hundred Hours to Suez," mingling rapture with professional skill and experience; the American Brigadier-General S. L. A. Marshall's "Sinai Victory," little dissimilar in mood; and to Major Edgar O'Ballance's brilliant and clinical "The Sinai Campaign 1956." Mr. Shlomo Barer's "The Week-end War" comes as a timely complement and corrective.

Personal Experience

Mr. Barer set out, I suspect, to give a popular and vivid account of the human, personal aspects of the campaign, without losing sight of the wider background. He has on the whole admirably fulfilled this dual object, despite the challenge of certain quite serious technical difficulties. For he has chosen to present his story chiefly in terms of the experience of two people—"I," the principal narrator, himself, a 37-year-old reservist, drafted to a fuel and ammunition supply unit, in a humble but very useful capacity; and "Yael," a girl of dazzling beauty who is also an ace pilot in the Air Force, who carries in her Dakota the paratroopers who capture the Mitla Pass, and later in the campaign ferries General Dayan about accompanied by most of the General Staff. Mr. Barer, by the way in which he romanticises this young woman, makes it difficult for me to believe in her; but, granted she does exist, I suspect that her comments on Mr. Barer's portrait of her will be drily and quietly merciless.

This surprisingly sickly and adolescent attitude, and a tendency to use the word "soldierette" (which must in no circumstances be edged into the English language), are Mr. Barer's main faults. When he writes about what Yael and her paratroopers did, about the fighting of the Central Task Force, and about the astonishing dash down the Gulf of Eilat to capture Sharm es Shaikh, though all at second hand, he is remarkably assured and convincing. When he is writing about his own war, in the hugger-mugger, studiously unheroic, very reservist Maintenance Company 1400, from call-up to demobilisation, he is, so far as I can discover, without a flaw. Every amateur ex-soldier will hail this part of the book with delight. Here it all is: the muddle, the civilian self-importance being pounded into soldierliness, the hithering and thithering, the boredom, the fear, the bewilderment, the unlikely yet binding friendships, the scruffiness; the slyness, the fatigue, and the comradeship.

These experiences have been, in our epoch, well-nigh universal. It is supremely important that they should be put on record. It is their valuable function to take the mickey out of the myth without corroding the nobility of the myth's inner truth. Mr. Barer's book has an added value: in its setting and in the Israeli quality in which it is steeped. To anyone who knows Israel there can be no doubt of its complete authenticity, from the Home-on-the-Range kind of song which the infantrymen sing, to the youthful liaison officers, in windcheaters and without badges of rank, who go casually in and out of the battle picture. There is a haunting sense, too, of the savagery, the splendour, and the mystery of the Sinai, and the awareness of its meaning, across the gulf of centuries, to these home-returned descendants of the people who once sojourned there.

It is a copious book, a generous book and—though this may seem odd in a war story—a charming book. Apart from Mr. Barer's goofiness over Yael, it is a very truthful book. I hope that it will be widely read here in Britain, by Jews and by non-Jews alike; both may take a shock or two, but the shocks will be salutary.

TRIBUNALS

Court trials exercise a strong fascination for the lay reader. He is gripped by the drama of the direct confrontation of accuser and accused, and by the tension as a case is built up or demolished. These "great trials" have always made exciting reading, which writers and publishers have been swift to recognise. A new development in legal proceedings during the last 40 years is the Tribunal of Inquiry, in which all the dramatic elements of the trial persist. This book analyses their workings in the colourful style which characterises all the writing of Professor Keeton.

Among the cases receiving extended mention is the Lynskey Tribunal. The story is succinctly recapitulated and enlivened by picturesque references to its star, "the incredible Sydney Stanley."

Primarily intended for the lawyer the book is, however, simply written and will undoubtedly interest the layman.

Duveen, by S. N. Behrman (Arrow Books, 3s. 6d.), is a paperback edition of this fascinating biography.

GIFTS IN CONTEMPLATION OF DEATH IN JEWISH AND ROMAN LAW
REUVEN YARON
The primary purpose of this book is to examine the rules of Jewish law concerning dispositions in contemplation of death, as they developed and became fixed during the Talmudic period. The approach is historical throughout, with the stress on change and development. Introductory chapters deal with Biblical law and the Aramaic papyri from Elephantine. 35s net

YOUR LUCKY STARS

EVERYBODY knows what "Mazzeltov" means. You hear it said at births, barmitzvahs, engagements, and weddings. It is our way of saying "congratulations" or "good luck." Very few people know however where the term comes from. The word "Mazzalot" means a constellation or cluster of stars. Mazzeltov really meant then "may you have a fortunate constellation," that is to say, may the position of the stars in relation to each other be favourable to you. Or, "I hope you have lucky stars."

Deborah the prophetess sings of the "stars in their courses fighting against Sisera" in the Book of Judges. Otherwise there is very little mention of the stars in the Bible. The Talmudic rabbis of the third and fourth century believed, however, in the influence of the stars. Rabbi Hanina said that the determining influence in a man's life was his stars.

Joshua Ben Levi wrote that a person born on Sunday would be a leader; a person born on Monday would be of an angry nature; a person born on Tuesday would be rich and warm-blooded; a person born on Wednesday intelligent, on Thursday kind, and on Friday pious. The man or woman born on a Saturday would die on a Saturday, he said.

Today we do not look to the stars to foretell our future. In fact belief in the luck of the stars has always been a superstition so far as the Jewish religion is concerned.

Tomorrow, Sabbath, brings us into the Hebrew month of Tammuz. Tammuz corresponds to June-July in the English calendar. Of the 29 days in this month the most important and solemn date is the 17th, a fast day in memory of the destruction of the walls of the Temple in Jerusalem by both Titus and Nebuchadnezzar.

The sign of Tammuz

The crab is the sign of the month of Tammuz. (Some rabbis thought that the sign related to the fact that Moses was saved from the water.)

In the sky the "crab" is a huge, loose cluster of stars known as Praesepe or the "Beehive." The Tropic of Cancer where these stars shine is the northern limit of places on earth where the sun can be vertically overhead.

When you next say "Mazzeltov" remember it means "lucky stars."

Letter from the Editor

Dear Readers,

From today until September 4 there will be celebrations all over the country to mark the Jubilee Year of the Girl Guide Movement. On July 21 the Girl Guides will stage a massive entertainment at the Wembley Pool with Guides from many countries of the world taking part.

A special Girl Guides Jubilee Thanksgiving service will be held at the Central Synagogue in Great Portland Street, on Sunday, July 24, at 3.30 p.m.

More about the Guiders later.

With very best wishes,

Yours sincerely,

THE EDITOR.

P.S. Last week's "deliberate mistake" was, as some of you discovered, in the "Fanciful Facts." It was only men over 20 who were counted in the Exodus not the children or women.

WISDOM FOR ALL TIME

Here is another piece of good advice and sound common sense from the "Ethics of the Fathers," (פרקי אבות), chapter iv.

"Who is wise? He who learns from all men, since it is written 'from all my teachers have I gained understanding.'"

Follow it for yourself in tomorrow's Mincha service in synagogue and see if you can pick out some of your own gems of wisdom.

BRADY AT THE ZOO

There was an unusual roar in the grounds of the Zoo when the members of the Brady Children's Synagogue visited Chessington recently. There were sounds like "Clickety-Click," "Top of the House," and "Kelly's Eye" coming from the marquee, where these East Enders had brought their favourite wet weather game with them from Stepney, and whenever anyone had "House" the resultant roar almost sent the roof into orbit.

Although this was the first time they had ever had rain on their outing the 42 members voted this Seventh Annual Summer Outing was the best ever. The wet weather programme included a visit to the Circus.

Perhaps it was the luxury coaches they travelled in, or the slap-up tea with ice cream and pastries, or the 2s. 6d. spending money each child received. Whatever it was it is certain that every child had a grand time! The stewards certainly were all "whacked-out" at the end of the day! The Outing was arranged and provided by the Friends of Brady Children's Synagogue.

SMASH HIT OF THE '20s —Suzanne Lenglen

IF during this Wimbledon fortnight you were to ask "who was the greatest ever Wimbledon woman champion?" a perfectly good answer would be the fabulous French Jewish star, "Mlle Suzanne Lenglen."

From the photograph you can already get some impression of what an amazing player she was. She was like a whirlwind on the courts—always moving about, dashing to the net, smashing overhead, and giving bewildered opponents little chance. She was all energy and a real artist who loved the game of tennis. She became the absolute queen of the tennis courts for many years.

Suzanne is the only Jewish girl to have won the ladies' singles at Wimbledon. Many years later another Jewish girl, Angela Buxton (now Mrs. Donald Silk) reached the final of the ladies' singles but she was beaten, although she went on to become a doubles champion, together with the American Negress, Althea Gibson.

Neither before nor after her has there been a player like Suzanne—not only as a player but as a "character." She not only altered the women's style of playing but also influenced their fashions in clothes. Before her, even the best women players fought out their matches from the baseline. Suzanne altered all this by moving up the court and going frequently to the net. To strengthen her play, she used to practise with men, and this meant that she had to have freedom of action.

Revolutionary Styles

But how could she get this freedom if she were to continue wearing the suspender-belt, the long petticoat and the long sleeves which the women players then had to wear? Suzanne said "No." Instead of the petticoat she wore a short pleated skirt, and instead of the long sleeves she had on a short-sleeved vest. This doesn't sound very sensational today but when Suzanne went on court at Wimbledon dressed like that the officials and the crowd looked on with amazement—and some made some very critical remarks! But her dress was so obviously right for modern tennis that other women quickly imitated her. How they must have wished that they could so easily imitate her play!

Suzanne owed much of her success to her father. When still a young child she played regularly with him and it was obvious that she had great gifts. She was only fifteen when she won the hard court championship of the world at St. Cloud. The year was 1914. The war, of course, interrupted her progress but in 1919 she arrived at Wimbledon to challenge for the championship. Opposing her for the title was another very fine player, the English champion, Mrs. Lambert Chambers. King George V and Queen Mary were among the 8,000 crowd who saw a very exciting match which ended with the French girl winning narrowly. From then on till 1926 Suzanne was supreme at Wimbledon. She won the title in 1920, 1921, 1922, 1923. In 1924 she had to retire because of illness but when she returned she beat the champion Miss McKane without the loss of a single game!

Suzanne might have continued to rule Wimbledon for many years more but unfortunately she decided to turn professional and toured America. She died in Paris in 1938.

Suzanne is part of the folk-lore of Wimbledon and helped to make it the most popular tournament in the world. When you watch on TV or, better still, at Wimbledon itself this year's matches, think for a moment of this legendary figure. There may never be another like her.

What's in a Name?

Name in Hebrew is Shem שם. See if you can find your Hebrew name among those listed below, if not find out for yourself what your name means.

מיכאל (MICHAEL) means "like unto God." Michael was one of the archangels and was also a prince and champion of Israel.

נעמי (NAOMI) means pleasant. Naomi was the wife of Elimelech and mother-in-law of Ruth. Naomi went with her husband and two sons to the land of Moab. After the death of her husband and sons she returned to Bethelem with her daughter-in-law Ruth who loyally insisted on returning with her.

שמואל (SAMUEL), often shortened to Sam or Sammy, means "asked of God." Samuel spent his life in devotion to God and was a faithful prophet and judge of Israel.

שרה (SARAH) means "princess" and Sarah, wife of Abraham, was both beautiful and wise. She lived to a ripe old age and gave birth to her son Isaac when she was ninety years old.

★ FOR Women AND

DRESSING UP A DRESS

By Sheradski

A SIMPLE streak of a dress with a beautiful flattering décolleté is first priority for a summer "after six" wardrobe. The one sketched above is made in firm wild silk and is obtainable in black or colours from Anne Gerrard of Bruton Street. Such dresses make best possible background for the sensational new costume jewellery.

At Susan of Bond Street you will find (top left) one of the newest combinations in a several strand pearl necklace twisted with lightly grey tinted crystal beads, and this is repeated in chunky earclips.

Among the fantastic collection of real and costume jewellery which Fior of Burlington Gardens is showing is something absolutely new—an about-face convertible clip. For day time it is a gilt sunburst with a cultured pearl centre. For evening the reverse side glitters like diamonds.

Talking Shop

IT'S not an electric razor . . . but a make-up gadget that works to the switch. They tell me that all the lovely girls in Paris are using it. The applicator fits into the palm of the hand, you press the trigger, and little buffers, pads, and brushes caress your cheeks to the sound of a pussy's purr . . . This is supposed to make a beauty expert of everyone who uses it. The pads are said to glide gently in and out of the facial curves, veil the skin in a gossamer transparency which will last all day and night without retouching . . . and the gentle action is advocated as a preventative of wrinkles. There is also a special pad for removing make-up.

THE pelmet to fix quickly comes in a unit construction of six, eight, or ten inches, with a double pocket so that they can be bent or adjusted to suit bay, bow, or straight windows. These are called "pelmeteers", are covered in washable fabrics, in pretty colours with the reverse in quilted effect. They come complete with instructions and fixing materials. Cost from 3s. 9d. each for the six-inch depth up to 7s. 6d. for the ten-inch depth.

DRIP-DRY GLAMOUR

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

ONE of the most fabulous dance dresses in the display of summer and early autumn fashions shown last week by Barbette Couture (of 61 Park Road, N.W.1), under the auspices of the Ada Lazarus Group of the Women's Mizrachi Organisation, was also one of the least expensive. It was a white Tricel sheath, glittering with intricate beading and gold embroidery. It was washable, untarnishable, and more hard-wearing than it looked.

Synthetic glamour also featured in a white drip-dry Tricel cocktail dress by Dior, gracefully draped in the Grecian manner; and a white Tricel cocktail dress pleated in gym-slip style (though I never saw a genuine gym-slip look so seductive), and caught at the waist by a gold kid belt. Other striking evening gowns (all of them short) were a bell-skirted creation in blue chantilly lace over white satin; a white silk organza tunic dress with a three-tiered hem dramatically edged in black organza; another tunic in champagne satin elaborately beaded and embroidered in a lattice-work design; and an enormously full-skirted dress in panels of frothy black tulle and baby lace.

Hats were by Phillipa.

The proceeds of the display, which was held by courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Sallon, will be devoted to the Child Resettlement Fund of the Mizrachi Women's Organisation.

GLOBETROTTERS—WITH PEN AND CAMERA

By SADIE LEVINE

IN half an hour's chat with Taya Zinken, author of "India Changes" and "Richi," a new children's book about India, we had traversed miles across India to the Tibetan border, watched the sun set over Everest, sat all night in a tree "tiger-beating," gone rhinoceros watching in Assam, and commiserated over the death of a half-witted lion.

The lion had been a present to her; she had sent it to the London

Taya and Maurice Zinkin

Zoo; it was found to be a moron, spending most of its time in a fit of depression, and had to be put to sleep.

Taya and her husband Maurice, a director of Unilever in Bombay, were in London after 15 years in India. They have a son John at Winchester. He had his Barmitzvah in Bombay . . . had to return to England to school, but had the reception at his grandmother's home in Kensington first.

Taya, correspondent of "The Guardian" and "Economist," told me of some of her more difficult assignments while in India . . . being stuck all night in a river in a jeep in Nepal, in an area full of bandits, during the 1951 revolution. "All alone, bogged down, with a crowbar, while the driver went for help . . . unpleasant," she said. Walking for five days in the middle of summer with the temperature at 110° in the shade; travelling by jeep and mule 12,000 feet up to Sikkim.

They talked about the Bene Israel community. "They need help," said the Zinkens. "They work hard for very little." An article written by Taya in "The Guardian" had had some response. She would not mind telling their story to organisations here.

On to domestic subjects ("British women in India are wise to have all their family while out there . . . so many servants," she was saying). I remarked on Maurice's fabulous shock of white hair.

"I wash it in Omo," said Taya.

"We make it, you know," said Maurice.

And what were two people, fresh from sun-baked India, planning to do with a blustery, cold June Sunday in London? They were thinking vaguely of taking a train to spend a day in the country!

When, years ago, Mrs. Hazel Greenwald released the shutter of her first camera, she was not to know that her hobby would one day take her far beyond her family circle, or that her lens was to reflect the deprived children of the world.

Hazel Greenwald "on location"

We met recently when, on her way back to her tome-town of New York from her ninth trip to Israel (the first was in 1933), she stopped in London to visit a daughter who has married and settled here. An executive member of Youth Aliyah and Hadassah for nearly three decades, it is Mrs. Greenwald who is responsible for the pictures that illustrate Youth Aliyah's literature, and the propaganda films that find their way (also via Youth Aliyah) to every corner of the globe. She has made over thirty films since the birth of the State, usually photographing as well as directing them herself, and her collection of Israeli photographs—over 50,000 so far—is probably the most extensive in the world. In recent years she has filmed the journey of a group of Polish children, via Vienna, to their new home in Israel. She also made a film of the life of Henrietta Szold, which she compiled from photographs and newsreel snippings.

Her lecture tours take her to various parts of the world, to Eastern Jewish communities which have never before seen a picture of Israel, and to non-Jewish Bible Societies in India. P.M.

COOKERY

By Florence Greenberg

TREAT THEM TO STRAWBERRIES

Sauce for Ice Cream

Strawberries, 6-8 oz.; water ½ pt.; sugar, 3 oz.

BOIL sugar and water together for 5 minutes. Wash and hull strawberries then crush with a fork, add to the syrup and leave till cold. Chill before serving with vanilla or strawberry ice cream.

Flan

MAKE a flan case with short or biscuit crust and bake blind. Arrange hulled strawberries close together in the case and sprinkle with caster sugar and lemon juice. Whip the egg whites till stiff, add a piled tablespoonful caster sugar, whip again till stiff, then fold in another piled tablespoonful of sugar. Heap up over the strawberries, dredge with sugar, and bake in a moderate oven till the meringue is set and slightly browned—about 20 minutes.

Custard

Milk, 1 pt.; strawberries, 6 oz.; 3 eggs; sugar; cream.

BEAT up the eggs, pour on the hot milk, and sweeten to taste. Strain into a baking dish. Place the dish in a tin with a little water in it and bake in a slow oven till set, then leave till quite cold. Slice the strawberries, sprinkle with caster sugar, and arrange on top of the custard. Garnish with whipped cream.

Trifle

RESERVE a few of the strawberries for garnishing, slice the remainder, sprinkle liberally with caster sugar, and leave for half an hour. Place the Swiss roll in a serving dish (or individual glasses) and add the strawberries; pour over the custard and when cold garnish with whipped cream and reserved strawberries.

Tartlets

Make and bake some tartlet cases and when cold put a few strawberries in each, coat with glazing syrup, and serve plain or garnished with whipped cream.

Glazing Syrup. Sugar, 3 oz.; water, ½ pt.; arrowroot, 1 teaspoonful; lemon juice, ½ teaspoonful; flavouring.

BLEND arrowroot with a little water; put remaining water and sugar into a small saucepan, bring to the boil and add the blended arrowroot and lemon juice; stir till boiling, then add either 2 teaspoonfuls of red-currant jelly or strawberry jam, or a teaspoonful of liqueur. Simmer for 2 or 3 minutes and cool slightly before coating the strawberries. If strawberry jam was added strain before using.

Fool

RESERVE a few strawberries for garnishing, sieve the remainder, sprinkle liberally with sugar, and leave for half an hour. Whip the cream, add the stiffly whipped egg white and mix with the custard and sieved strawberries. Serve in individual glasses garnished with reserved strawberries.

OBITUARY

LADY ISAACS

The death occurred at a country rest-home last Saturday of Lady Isaacs, widow of the first Australian-born Governor-General, Sir Isaac Isaacs, at the age of 90.

Lady Isaacs had been in ill-health for about seven years (writes our Sydney correspondent) and more than five of them were spent in the rest-home. Born in Melbourne, she married Sir Isaac Isaacs in 1888, and during his long career as a barrister, Chief Justice, politician, and Governor-General, from 1931 to 1936, she took a keen interest in all public affairs.

In a tribute Mr. Sydney D. Einfeld, Senior Vice-President of the Executive Council of Australian Jewry, said: "As the wife of one of the most famous Australians of the Jewish faith Lady Isaacs upheld the dignity of high office and of a past generation."

The funeral service was conducted at the Northern Suburbs Crematorium in Sydney by Rabbi Dr. R. Brasch, Chief Minister of Temple Emanuel, who said that Lady Isaacs since her retirement had taken a very active interest in the Liberal Jewish movement.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. David Cohen and Mrs. Sefton Cullen, sister-in-law of the late Sir Samuel Cohen, of Sydney.

MR. M. LEVINSON

Mr. Maxwell Levinson, who died on Sunday, played a notable part in the institutional life of Liverpool Jewry before he moved to Southport some years ago, writes our Liverpool correspondent.

He had been Chairman of the Liverpool J.N.F. Commission and Senior Warden of the Liverpool Old Hebrew Congregation, and was a trustee of the local Hibonim movement. He was also a former member of the Chief Rabbinate Council.

MRS. MATHILDE FRANKEL

The death has occurred in Johannesburg of Mrs. Mathilde Frankel, at the age of 84. When, in the 1930s, Nazism threw its shadow over Europe, Mrs. Frankel kept an open door for Jews who came to South Africa as refugees. She is survived by two sons: Professor S. H. Frankel, of Oxford University, and Mr. Rudy Frankel, Chairman of the South Africa Friends of the Hebrew University.

MR. MICHAEL GORDON

Mr. DAVID JOSEPH, President of the Manchester Jewish Working Men's Club, writes: With the death of Mick Gordon the club has lost one of its oldest members, a Life Vice-President, a great worker, and a true friend. He joined the club over 60 years ago and served on the committee for over 50 years.

MRS. ESTHER KEIDAN

Mrs. Esther Keidan, who died on Monday, was a much respected member of the Liverpool community to which she rendered many years' service, notably through membership of women's groups, both synagogal and Zionist, writes our Liverpool correspondent. She was woman of charitable disposition and performed good deeds in a quiet, unobtrusive manner—a trait she inherited from her father, the late Solomon Cohen.

MR. JUDAH SHUVAL

The death of Mr. Judah Shuval, the Israeli linguist and broadcaster, occurred at his week-end home in Ascalon on Sunday, cables our Jerusalem correspondent.

Mr. Shuval, who was aged 61, was best known in this country for the weekly Hebrew lessons which he broadcast over Kol Zion Lagola and which provided the material for the JEWISH CHRONICLE'S Hebrew column. He visited Britain a number of times and lectured on his methods of teaching languages.

It was in 1949 that Mr. Shuval left the United States to settle in Jerusalem, where he became Director of the Keren Hayesod's English-speaking department. He was also Director of Hillel House, the student centre in Jerusalem.

He leaves a widow, Rose, and two sons, Mordechai and Hillel.

MR. J. S. LEVER

Mr. LEONARD ALFRED, Chairman of the Jewish Blind Society, writes: By the death of Joseph Sidney Lever, the community has suffered the loss of one who was endowed with the ideals of helping his less fortunate brethren. I knew him as an ardent and enthusiastic worker for the Jewish Blind Society. Not only did he devote his energies to raising funds for the Jewish Blind Society, as Chairman of the "Help the Blind" Committee, to which position he had just been re-elected for a second term of office, but he spent many Sundays at our home at Rokefield making friends with our blind residents, and bringing some brightness into their lives.

DR. ABRAHAM GROSS

Mr. M. SAGON writes: The death of Dr. Abraham Gross is a great blow to East End Jewry and to the members of the Mile End and Bow Synagogue in particular. For over 30 years he practised his profession in the Mile End area and was greatly loved and admired by all his patients, including large numbers of coloured people who had recently moved into the district. He was that rare combination of a professional man and a great Talmudist and Hebrew scholar.

THE LATE MRS. ANNE COHEN

COLONEL E. P. ELIAS and Mr. D. JENKINS, President and Chairman respectively of the Cardiff Division of the Soldiers', Sailors', and Airmen's Families Association, write: By the passing of Mrs. Anne Cohen our organisation has lost a noble and faithful member. She had a most lovable personality, everyone having the highest regard for her gentleness, her loyalty, and her willingness at all times to help those in need. Our deep sympathy goes out to her sister, our Vice-President, Mrs. Dorothy Reuben.

HUNGARY MOURNS CHIEF RABBI

Hungarian Jewry is mourning Dr. Benjamin Schwarcz, Chief Rabbi of Hungary, whose sudden death was announced last week. His funeral was attended by all the rabbis of Budapest, as well as a large number of rabbis from every part of the country.

On behalf of the Government, Mr. Károly Olt, President of the Department for Religious Affairs, placed a wreath on the bier. Among the large number of floral tributes, there was one from the State of Israel and one from the Patriotic National People's Front of Hungary. Messages of sympathy have been received from the Israeli Chief Rabbinate and Hungarian Catholic and Protestant leaders.

SOME RECENT WILLS

Mrs. SADIE SCHANZER, of London, N.2, who died in February last, left £17,649 (net, £16,646; duty paid, £2,068). On the death of her husband she left £250 each to the Home and Hospital for Jewish Incurables, the Home for Aged Jews, and the Jewish Orphanage.

25,000-TON SHIP FOR ZIM

By "GREEN FLAG"

News that the Zim Israel Navigation Co. Ltd. has decided to build a transatlantic vessel of about 25,000 tons comes from Mr. S. Michaeli, London chief of the Zim organisation. He adds that excellent progress is being made at the shipyard in France where the new one-class vessel, the Moledet (Hebrew for "homeland"), is being constructed. These two ships cannot come into service too soon, for pressure on Zim's present fleet is very heavy. It is no use bewailing the fact now, but it has always been my view that the capacity of each of the four ships constructed in Hamburg under the Germany-Israel Reparations Agreement (the Israel, Zion, Jerusalem, and Theodor Herzl) was, at 10,500 tons, far too small to meet probable demands.

The company is celebrating the fifteenth anniversary of its foundation by the Jewish Agency, the General Federation of Labour, and the Israel Maritime League. When it was first established the company owned just one passenger ship, the Kedmah (3,500 tons). Today, its fleet of vessels comprises 33 ships of a total capacity of about 190,000 tons, divided as follows: three passenger liners, two mixed passenger-cargo liners, twenty-seven cargo vessels, and one tanker. These ships operate on 16 regular lines to all parts of the world, from Mediterranean ports, Europe and Africa, and as far as the United States, the Great Lakes, and Far East ports.

Holiday Opportunities

From Mr. Levi Gertner, Jewish Agency for Palestine, 77 Great Russell Street, W.C.1 (MUSeum 3815): "The Director of the French branch of the Jewish Agency's Department for Education and Culture wishes the Anglo-Jewish public to know of their forthcoming Hebrew summer camp for children. The camp will commence on July 11, and children will be enrolled for a month or six weeks. The camp will take place in Callian (Var), near Grasse and Cannes. The place is outstanding for its beauty, enjoying the benefits of the sea and mountains. Catering is strictly kosher. An expert staff of teachers and youth leaders have been appointed. The programme provides for physical training, games, folk-dancing, lessons in Hebrew, geography of Israel, and Jewish history. The camp caters for boys and girls from the ages of seven to 15. The cost of maintenance is about 15s. per day. Inquiries should be addressed to Dr. S. Kaminsky, 17 Rue Fortuny, Paris, 17e."

Mr. F. Lowenstein, Mizrachi-Hapoel Hamizrachi Federation, 345 Gray's Inn Road, W.C.1 (TERminus 9855), writes: "You will be pleased to know that, largely due to your support, the first fortnight of our holiday at Mondorf-les-Bain, Luxemburg, is now fully booked, with a waiting list, and the second fortnight, too, is almost full. Altogether, more than 200 people will be participating. There are still a few places available for the Southport scheme, to be held at the comfortable Sandhurst Hotel. The terms of 12½ guineas per week, reductions for children, represent a truly excellent holiday bargain. Our Israel scheme is well patronised. The tour will cover many parts of the country and will include receptions and functions arranged by the Israeli Mizrachi-Hapoel Hamizrachi Federation."

Summer Camps

L. Sulzbacher, Ezra Youth Organisation of the Poale Agudat Israel, 680 Finchley Road, N.W.1 (MONarch 2014), writes: "This year we will be running four summer camps. The junior camp, for boys and girls aged eight-13, will be held at the Carmarthen High School for Girls, South Wales, for the period July 31 till August 28, in two periods of two weeks each. Rabbi and Mrs. David Cooper will be hosts, and they will be assisted by a team of experienced youth leaders.

The intermediate camp, for boys aged 13-17, will be held in Schwellbrunn, Switzerland, during the period August 7-22. We have been fortunate in securing the use of a chalet. The intermediate camp for girls will also take place during the period August 7-22, and will be run in conjunction with our sister movement in Switzerland. We have secured first-class accommodation in Montbovon, near Gstaad. Finally, a party of Ezra members will be leaving London on July 14 for Israel, where they will join Ezra members from the Continent and Israel, to take part in a seminar, which will be devoted to various aspects of youth leadership."

Mr. B. Hackner, of Camp Aguda, 55 Amhurst Park, N.16 (phone STA. 6688/9), states: "Our camp at Glastonbury will be for seniors (Zeirim), ages over 15, and the camp at Seascale will be for juniors (Pirchim), ages nine to 15. The fees are 6½ guineas per week, exclusive of fares."

FILMS

ARCTIC EPIC

I can pay no higher compliment to the truly magnificent new film in Technicolored Technirama at the Odeon, Leicester Square, The Savage Innocents ("A"), than to compare it on equal terms with that all-time classic of the frozen wastes, "Nanook of the North." This arctic epic was made in Canada and at our own Pinewood Studios and tells, half documentarily, half romantically, of the manners and customs, life and loves of the Eskimos. The central character, Inuk, is played by Anthony Quinn. He is utterly convincing as the intrepid hunter and carefree husband, generous, naïve, ever smiling, and ignorant of the ways of the white man and his so-called civilisation. His wife, played by the lovely Yoko Tani, is related to her husband in a way that shocks our everyday moral standards. Her marital affections are not the sole prerogative of Inuk but can be temporarily transferred at his suggestion to a casual friend or even a passing stranger! A missionary cleric trying to induce religion into the lives of people apparently much better without it is killed by Inuk because he has broken the rule of not refusing free-love hospitality. The law closes in and a poignant situation develops. I liked this tremendously.

In the light of the unbridled writings of some of his present-day equivalents, D. H. Lawrence can be regarded now almost as a moralist. Anyway, this was the impression I gained on seeing Jerry Wald's version, directed by Jack Cardiff, of Sons And Lovers ("A"), now being screened in CinemaScope at the Carlton, Haymarket, S.W. Lawrence's general philosophy seems almost old-fashioned as the theme is gradually developed of the dominating possessiveness of a mother in an English mining village, whose son's uncertain love life is due to her unsettling influence over him. Dean Stockwell, as the indecisive young man, lacks the restless fire generally associated with inner mental conflicts, but Wendy Hiller, as his well-intentioned but destructive mother, is superb.

A lesson that has been learned the hard way by so many well-meaning producers ought to have been remembered by the people behind Five Branded Women ("A"), the new feature film at the Plaza, Piccadilly Circus, W. The maxim "With beautiful women, never confuse change with improvement" might well have prevented an experiment that never really comes off. Silvana Mangano, Vera Miles, Barbara Bel Geddes, Jeanne Moreau, and Carla Gravina are Yugoslav women caught fraternising with a Gay Lothario of a Nazi during the German occupation in 1943. As a punishment, the partisans shave off their hair, leaving us to sicken at the sight of five miserable, bedraggled, unkempt bits of ungracious, repulsive femininity.

Are there any decent teenagers left in America? One would hardly think so after seeing Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's double-feature show at the Rialto, Coventry Street, W. Rich, Young, and Deadly ("A") shows us a despicable bunch of delinquent boys sent by their wealthy but indifferent parents to a secluded "Military Academy" run on a deserted island by a sinister "Major," a part played to perfection by Dan Duryea. It appears that Mickey Rooney's son has died a mysterious death there. The former brash young film star, now a hatchet-faced, balding middle-aged man, goes to the island to find out what really happened. What he learns is enough to give him—and us—a shock.

If anything, the amoral coterie of wild teenagers presented in Girls Town ("A"), which completes the programme, is a still more degenerate mob. This is a film that vacillates between being a frightening story of a carnival of devilry by irresponsible beatniks and a treacly religious tract.

A star cannot expect to hit the heights of success every time. Following the near-miss by comedian Peter Sellers in a serious part comes a similar set-back for Anthony Newley in a totally unsuitable rôle in In the Nick ("U"), now in CinemaScope at the Odeon, Marble Arch. He is the resident psychologist in a "prison-without-bars" and a more unlikely specimen of his profession it would be difficult to find.

In the same programme is Hazard ("U"), presented by Nat Cohen and Stuart Levy of Anglo-Amalgamated. This is a little gem. Made in Technicolor, by Tom Stobart and Geoffrey Sumner, it shows what happens to two men who attempt to climb a craggy peak in the Dolomites.

THEATRE

CUNNING PROPHET

Brecht's play Galileo, as told at the Mermaid Theatre, would seem, above everything else, to be a moving human story and a fine intellectual entertainment. It is a graphic life study of a man who was a grand figure of the Renaissance, when "people for the first time were beginning to feel the urge to find out why things happen." Bernard Miles has produced and himself nobly plays Galileo, showing the man both as a prophet with a divine light in his eye, and as a cunning fox who tricks the Inquisition even though, to save his body, he recants his statement that the earth moves round the sun. It is an absorbing and eccentric production which will bring both delight and rage to the clashing factions which always surround this author.

Ann Dyson gives Chekhov's The Seagull a sincere production at the Unity Theatre, underlining the atmosphere and all the rare pity which lies behind the pathetic story—the teacher loves Masha, Masha loves Konstantin, Konstantin loves Nina, Nina loves Trigorin, who loves nobody but himself, though he is also loved by Arkadina. Why Konstantin at the end should shoot himself, when he has a nice girl like Masha only waiting to fall into his arms is one of the major mysteries of twentieth century literature. The acting is mixed but some of the performances are arresting, notably those of Helen Cosgrove (Arkadina), John Stokes (Konstantin), and Sara Randall (Masha).

MUSIC

THE PROMS

In a few weeks' time the Proms will be starting again, and since this will be the first season to come under William Glock's ægis as B.B.C.'s Controller of Music one opens the prospectus with lively anticipation.

Of course no revolutionary changes could be expected in this time-honoured and Wood-bound institution; what could be looked forward to was a wise and discreet modification of programmes, etc., to meet present-day trends and tastes, together with some change in emphasis in regard to youth and novelty. That, by and large, is what has been achieved. The programmes are more diverse, and only Beethoven is left in lonely grandeur.

The classics and romantics are well represented; all Brahms's symphonies and concertos, several of Haydn's and Mozart's, not so much Bach, the main Tchaikovski and Schubert symphonies, etc. The shift in emphasis is perhaps quite well indicated by what is left out: Vaughan Williams' Sea and London Symphonies are dropped, leaving the Fifth and the Ninth; Sibelius provides only the late fifth and seventh symphonies; Britten's chief work is the early Sinfonia da Requiem. Schoenberg will have two works performed for the first time in Prom concerts, and there is to be an "electronic" work by Stockhausen. Other exciting new items in the Proms are Milhaud's "Creation of the World," no fewer than five works or extracts from works by Stravinsky, Webern's "Six Pieces" and . . . Beethoven's Mass in D.

Ely Haimowitz did not make any strong impression on his first visit to London, on Wednesday of last week. His version of the "Emperor" concerto was pedestrian, with no depth of feeling. The Korean Eaktay Ahn conducted the London Philharmonic Orchestra and introduced his own symphonic poem, "Music coming from Heaven." This is probably now on its way back with no likelihood of further reincarnation in London. Even heavenly sounds need to be organised.

Three magnificent performances made Sunday evening's all-Russian concert at Festival Hall an outstanding event of the season. Henryk Szering played Tchaikovski's violin concerto with dazzling virtuosity and very fine feeling; Mindru Katz followed with a wonderfully fresh and vigorous version of the Tchaikovski first Pianoforte concerto, marked by tremendously fast runs and subtly fluctuating tempi. And Alexander Gibson's accompanying and conducting of the Philharmonia Orchestra was brilliant and sensitive.

All three artists are under forty, it is worth nothing.

H.C.S.

It is difficult to imagine two more contrasting composers than Bach and Bartok, with which the Hungarian pianist, Gyorgy Sebok, opened and ended his recital at Wigmore Hall. Yet he displayed an equally penetrating understanding of, and insight into, both works. The performances of Bach's French Suite in B Minor, Mozart's Sonata in D Major, the Wanderer Fantasie by Schubert, Debussy's Bergamasque, and the dance suite by his compatriot composer were all notable for their artistry and sensitivity. Sebok can be acclaimed as a welcome addition to the galaxy of pianistic celebrities.

THE TURNTABLE

By MONTY NORMAN

Among the latest batch of Hed-Arzi E.P.s are two by a singer I have not had the pleasure of hearing before—Miriam Avigal. According to the information on the sleeve, Miss Avigal was unknown in Israel until fairly recently when her special brand of outdoor songs brought her national prominence.

Her singing is most soothing and gives a feeling of tranquillity. Not for her the pulsating intensity that so many Israeli singers seem to favour. Her voice is not unlike that of Irish singer Ruby Murray, in quality although not by any means in style, and I suppose Miss Avigal's success may well follow a similar pattern.

On the first E.P. (MN.9) there are four songs in the Israeli rural style, and I see that Miss Avigal's name is listed as the lyric writer with B. Avigal as the composer (husband, brother, or sister?). Best of the four is "Ohel Katan," which amply illustrates Miss Avigal's talent. Here we hear her pleasant, uncomplicated voice singing a pleasant, uncomplicated song pleasantly. I wish the name of the arranger had been listed, as his scoring is an important factor in the record's over-all success. "Elat Habareket" shows this unknown arranger to best advantage. With flute, accordion, xylophone, and rhythm instruments he has produced one of the best small-band arrangements I have yet heard from Israel.

Impressive Effort

The second record (MN.10) starts with "Baderech Hatabor," a pretty song with an up-tempo rhythm which Miss Avigal sings nicely; but top marks go to "Kalanit Bamsila," a song of a train. This is her most impressive effort on either record. All in all, these two E.P.s clearly show us the peaceful Israeli rural scene; a side we do not often encounter on record.

Tommy Steele's latest record shows the amazing progress he has made in the past few years from an immature rock 'n' roll shouter to probably the finest young entertainer in Britain today. He has taken Harry Champion's ancient classic "What a Mouth" (Decca F.11245) and gives it a new lease of life.

Moshe Maurer's Dreams

GRANDPA LEARNS TO PAINT

HAS Britain found her answer to Grandma Moses? I think she has. And suitably enough he is called Grandpa Moshe.

Moshe Maurer was born in the village of Brodi in the Ukraine in 1891. He was the baby of the family. His father owned a large and prosperous bristle factory, and his many sons were expected to follow him there on leaving school. But Moshe longed instead to learn the violin. Unhappily for him, figures among unemployed Russian Jewish violinists were very high at the time, and Papa Maurer didn't want a violinist in the family. So Moshe went into the factory and wrote poetry instead.

When he was 23 he left Russia and travelled to Belgium. There he married an adorable "I-remember-Mama" sort of girl. They lived there until the German invasion in 1940. Then they came to England and he settled down to making fine paint-brushes for artists.

Eight years ago illness forced Grandpa Moshe into semi-retirement. He'd been making paint-brushes for so long, why shouldn't he try to use them? He had a big stock. Hesitantly he began to paint. He painted and painted. The house became full of paintings.

As the idea for a painting came to him, so he entered another world. It is a dream world compounded of fantasy and folk-lore; of nostalgia for his Russian childhood. Inextricably interwoven are the sweet-sour implications of his Jewish faith. Like Chagall, he paints his village. Popping up above its rooftops is a sad-eyed, bearded man with a fiddle.

One day his wife, Esther, decided it was time to say something. Looking carefully at the pictures, she pronounced: "Moshe, there is something."

"Do you really think so?" asked her husband. "Then I must find a Professor of Painting and ask him." And with this he dashes round to the local Art School with a picture in his hand. They told him to return the following week, when a famous artist would be calling to look at the work of the students.

The great day arrived and he went to the school. Very timidly he waited. At last his turn came and he showed his work. Up on the platform the famous painter spoke. "There is among you," he said, "one pupil with a sense of truth: one pupil who has travelled through life with his eyes open. That pupil has felt the influence of all artists. He has no need of lessons and should go home." And he displayed the work of Moshe Maurer.

TELEVISION

ATOMIC SCIENTISTS

The two-part "Small World" which B.B.C. television viewers will see on July 6 and 13 should be among the most outstanding programmes this year. There is a break from the usual format of a world-wide discussion, and, instead, the cameras will concentrate on the Memorial Centre Hospital in New York, where Dr. Leo Szilard, one of the architects of the Atom Bomb, is undergoing treatment. Dr. Szilard says that his purpose in life today is "to help dismantle the era of terror I helped to create."

Among those who will talk to him will be another great Jewish scientist, Dr. Edward Teller, who is known as the "father of the H-Bomb," and Admiral Lewis Strauss, the former Chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. This conversation should be one of the most stimulating and memorable ever heard on television.

Lord Rothschild made a welcome appearance on Tuesday in the "Life Before Birth" programme on B.B.C. He showed that he possesses the gift of being able to explain clearly aspects of a fascinating but delicate subject without using too many technical terms—and one wished that the other learned contributors all had the same facility. Of particular interest was his statement that it is the father and not the mother who is responsible for the sex of the child.

Eichmann Again

The Eichmann affair—and the Israel-Argentina controversy—is still a good talking point on TV. The Israeli viewpoints (more than one exists over the handling of the case) were discussed by visiting Israeli journalists in ITV's "Right to Reply." There was unanimity over Israel's right to try Eichmann.

"The Army Game" on ITV, which has concluded its present series, gave much enjoyment to viewers even though some of the programmes—and, unluckily, the final one—were rather too thin. Alfie Bass has consolidated his position as a major TV comedian and his clashes with Sgt.-Major Snudge (also splendidly portrayed) have provided some of the finest comedy on the TV screens. I hope that the boys of Hut 29 will soon be seen again.

ABE SEGAL LOSES

Varied Fortunes at Wimbledon

By ANGELA BUXTON-SILK

A delayed 'plane arrival, slight concussion as a result of a taxi accident, and two shaky starts. These were some of the early-round fortunes of the Jewish players at Wimbledon this week.

"Herbie" Flam the 1952 semi-finalist at Wimbledon cut his schedule so fine as to cross the Atlantic the night before the tournament. Even though the 'plane was late in arriving he managed to show us that he had lost little of his old cunning. He may be slower now, but he can still destroy the other man's game by teasing, as was the case against his much younger Australian opponent Neville Nette whom he beat 6-3, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4. Flam was beaten in the second round by Laver.

It was a pleasant surprise to see Mrs. Kaufman back in the tournament again. She mysteriously retired to Lancashire's Miss Grundy at 2-6, 11-9, 2-0 before explaining to me: "I was in a collision while riding in a taxi this morning. I bumped my head quite severely then, and it was only as the match were on and I was running around that I felt quite dizzy and unable to continue."

A graduate from Oxford and a great favourite around English tournaments, American Pablo Eisenberg has once again returned to Wimbledon, this time with his wife of only two weeks. He lost to A. Bey from Rhodesia 6-4, 6-4, 6-4! Enough said!

Mandlestam Wins

Abe Segal, of South Africa, appeared to be anxious and hesitant as he lost to Roger Becker 11-9, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. Previously they had both beaten each other once before. I hear that Abe's tennis these days is very secondary to his other business and domestic commitments. This year in the South African ranking lists he was placed five, his lowest for some years. However, his position in the South African game could be quickly replaced by that up-and-coming young South African Jewish player who has featured once or twice already in my column, Rodney Mandlestam. Abe Segal's biggest fan, Rodney made a slow start against Manchester's little Charlie Applewhaite in loosing the first three games, but quickly recovering to take the next 13!—and finally won the match 6-3, 6-0, 6-2.

Young Marlene Gerson from Johannesburg had similar luck against Madame Chatrier of France, better known to tennis fans as Susan Partridge. Susan was able to expose Marlene's weakness in ball control in the first set which she eventually won 8-6, but then soon faded as her younger opponent took command of the last two sets 6-3, 6-0. Unlike most of the South African girls we see over here, Marlene hits the ball easily from anywhere in the court in the style of a Louise Brough, but she must learn when to make her winners, and when to simply keep the ball in play. It is so easy to talk from the side lines. . . .

SPORTSMEN'S BRIDGE

By J. FINKLESTONE

While nearly every country in the world where tennis is played has one or two representatives at Wimbledon, the State of Israel has none. Why? I suspect that, as in the past, lack of finance has been the main reason why such fine players as young Davidman are not this week playing and learning at Wimbledon.

Davidman, the champion of Israel and a player of really immense promise, once bitterly complained to me that he was given few chances to compete against the best in the world. Football teams find it comparatively easy to arrange tours abroad but tennis players have mostly to stay at home. Davidman is forced by this lack of competition to play with monotonous regularity against the few Israelis who come anywhere near his standard and it is surprising that he has made any progress at all.

In my previous article I referred to the urgent need for English sportsmen to help Israeli athletes. I think that this help should be extended to embrace the tennis players. Mr. Greville Janner, President of the splendid "Bridge in Britain" project, describes the new proposal as a "marvellous one." He thinks that my suggestion is a logical extension of his own scheme and suggests that it should be called "The Sportsmen's Bridge."

It is to be hoped that, as Mr. Janner says, English sportsmen would be willing to join the Sportsmen's Bridge to establish contact with Israeli sportsmen and promote their progress. Football has captured the imagination of the Israeli youth and the public. This is a natural and, in my view, a welcome development, but it is unfortunate that a fairer share of public attention—and support—is not given to athletics and tennis. Financial and moral support and technical advice are needed from abroad—and the proposed English group should be able to provide them. Mr. Janner is willing to take a leading part in the new group. I hope the chance will not be missed.

Aubrey Scott, the new Chairman of British Maccabi, is only 36 but nobody has any doubts about his fitness to lead this movement. He has been Pierre Gildesgame's right-hand man for a long time, and in fact these two very close friends were responsible for the present constitution of the Union. Surprisingly enough, Scott has held office in five clubs — Northampton, Brighton, N.E.L.M.A., M.A.L., and South London Maccabi—but his finest work has been done as Secretary of the Central Maccabi Fund, which finances the whole movement. He tells me that he hopes to promote two things: the new Junior Division and the Leadership courses, not only for voluntary workers but for people who want to take up club leadership as a profession. Lack of club leaders is still the greatest handicap facing the club movement. I agree with him that better pay should help in the recruitment of leaders.

Several Maccabi Records

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

Over 160 athletes from London, Edinburgh, Manchester, Newcastle, Sheffield, Brighton, and Birmingham took part in the Maccabi Union's national championships at Maccabi Stadium, Hendon, on Sunday.

Ray Roseman, the Brighton runner, ran the mile on his own. He completed the first lap in 61 seconds but, as he had no opposition, he finished the four laps in 4 minutes 19.4 seconds, over ten seconds slower than his best.

In the ladies' 100-yards final, Debra Turner ran brilliantly to win in 14.7 seconds, eight yards ahead of Jacqueline Barnett. Alan Cowen, last year's champion, retained his title in the men's 880 yards.

A number of young "unknowns," especially David Sheperia and David Speker, both aged 16, from Newcastle, were impressive.

Another 16-year-old, M. Selby (M.A.L.), won three events. He created Maccabi records for the high jump with 5ft. 6¼ins. and the long jump with 19ft. 3¾ins. He won the under-16 half-mile in 2 minutes 28 seconds. Susan Harris (Bar Kochba), also in the under-16 section, set a new record in the girls' high jump with a jump of 4ft. 6ins.

The women's 440-yards race provided a thrilling struggle between Jacqueline Barnett (Birmingham) and Carol Rubin (Bar Kochba). At the start Miss Rubin took the lead with Miss Barnett close on her heels. By the time they reached the halfway stage they were running side by side. But Miss Barnett went ahead in the final straight to win in 60.2 seconds.

Eddie Freudman (M.A.L.) established two new Maccabi records in the men's section. He cleared 5ft. 9¼ins. in the high jump and 22ft. 11ins. in the long jump.

VICTORY IN LAST OVER

A.J.Y. cricket matches on Sunday again produced some fine performances and, in one case, a story-book finish.

The outstanding feat of the day was that of G. Gold, of Old Willesdonians, who took five wickets for one run against Montagu House, who lost by nine wickets.

The Old Victorians v. Wanstead and Woodford game proved as exciting an encounter as anyone could wish for. Old Victorians batted first and were put out for 105. When Wanstead's last man went in eleven runs were still needed for victory and these were obtained in the last over.

The Israeli Ambassador and his wife meet officers and boys of the Jewish Lads' Brigade at the film première of "Battle Of The Sexes." The première was in aid of the Duke of Edinburgh's Award Scheme and the Refugee Boys' and Girls' Clubs in Israel.

Personality means something in the Jewish Lads' Brigade

A Call for Officers

Are you between the ages of 18 and 35? Do you sometimes feel that with your personality you could be doing something more worthwhile in your spare time?

As an Officer in the Jewish Lads' Brigade, you can be certain that you are doing essential work. In the Brigade your character and personality are the most valuable things you possess. Boys come to you with their problems because they know that you will be understanding, that you will give them advice and help. They know too that, under your guidance, they will get the maximum enjoyment from the Brigade's activities.

You may feel that you have something to give—that something extra that enables the boys to get the most out of life and grow into men of character. The Brigade needs good officers like yourself. If you can spare us some of your time, we can guarantee that in this rewarding work you will make many life-long friends.

Ideal for Boys

Any boy, too, over the age of 11½, who has an interest in sport, adventure or comradeship, will find all that he wants in the Brigade. Its activities are numerous because it is a nation-wide organization with eighteen companies in London, and others in Manchester, Glasgow, Liverpool, Birmingham, Sheffield and Leeds. And no boy should miss the big event of the year—THE JEWISH LADS' BRIGADE SUMMER CAMP.

This year the camp site is at Hawkshill, Kingsdown, Kent, from Friday July 29th to Sunday August 7th.

Whether you are interested in joining the Brigade as an officer or as a boy, it is easy to find out more details if you write or telephone to:—

PARADISE FOR NAZIS

that the charges against Mengele were of a political character and that the request should have been made in Spanish, not German.

Dr. Karl Klingenfuss, a former counsellor to the Nazi Foreign Ministry, is also resident in Argentina. Rejection of a West German Government request for his extradition was announced in Bonn on June 8. The Federal Republic wants Klingenfuss in connection with inquiries into the mass murder of Jews.

The D.A.I.A. (Delegación de Asociaciones Israelitas Argentinas), which is the political representative body of Argentine Jewry, has asked the Government on various occasions to curtail Nazi activities here and to accede to extradition requests, especially so in the case of Pavelic, but without result.

Extradition Requests

As a consequence of the Eichmann affair and its international repercussions, the story of Nazi atrocities and Nazi activities in Argentina is being published in the Press. It may be presumed that for the sake of its international prestige the Government will now be persuaded to consider the need for eradicating Nazism here.

Dr. Silvano Santander, a former Congressman belonging to the Opposition party, Unión Cívica Radical del Pueblo (U.C.R.P.), a campaigner against Nazism for the past twenty years, has been publicising Nazi activities in this country on TV and in the Press, and commenting on the freedom granted to Nazis by all Argentine Governments since Peron.

A U.C.R.P. Congressman, Ernesto Sanmartino, has called on the Foreign Minister, Dr. Diogenes Taboada, to explain to Congress why extradition requests for war criminals have been systematically denied. He has asked whether the Minister "does not think that before asking for the return of an abominable war criminal, such as Adolf Eichmann—who entered our country with forged documents and whose residence here was therefore illegal—it was not his duty to take effective steps, indicating to the world that this country can no longer act as a refuge for the majority of war criminals. . . ."

Meanwhile, there are clear signs that Nazis and their friends here are in a state of panic;—nobody doubts that this achievement may be attributed to the recent activities of Israeli volunteers.

COMPANY MEETINGS

LAND SECURITIES INVESTMENT TRUST

PROGRESS OF DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

The annual general meeting of The Land Securities Investment Trust Limited was held on June 20 in London. Mr. Harold Samuel, F.R.I.C.S., F.A.I. (Chairman and Managing Director) presiding.

During the year under review satisfactory progress has been made on the developments in hand and also on the letting of these developments.

The construction of the new building on the "East Island Site," Oxford Street, is proceeding according to schedule. It is anticipated that this development will be finally completed by about September, 1961.

Another large development was commenced during the year on an island site with a frontage of about 500 feet to Victoria Street. The new building will be completed in two phases by the Autumn of 1961 and the Spring of 1963 respectively.

Other developments in central London are in the planning stage, including a second large development in Victoria Street.

Ravenseft Properties Limited continues its expansion in the provinces. The Notting Hill Gate development, in which Ravenseft has a 50 per cent interest, is proceeding satisfactorily and is expected to be completed by the middle of 1961.

With regard to the group's activities in Canada, further properties have been purchased in Montreal, Vancouver, Calgary, and New Westminster, B.C., for redevelopment as shops and offices.

I am pleased the year shows a gratifying improvement in income. After taxation the profit of £557,733 compares with £428,312 for the previous year, an increase of £129,421. It is proposed to pay a final dividend of 6 per cent less income tax, making 8 per cent for the year, an increase of 1½ per cent over last year.

No major development will be completed in the current year and for this reason it is unlikely that the net revenue will be materially different from that for the year to March, 1960.

The report was adopted.

GREAT PORTLAND ESTATES LIMITED

AFFAIRS PROGRESS SATISFACTORILY

The third annual general meeting of Great Portland Estates Limited was held on June 21 in London, Mr. Basil Samuel, F.R.I.C.S., F.A.I., presiding.

The following is an extract from the Directors' Statement and Report :—

Profits for the year ended March 31, 1960, amounted to £263,591 before tax as against £224,884 in the previous year. The Directors recommend payment of a final dividend of 4 per cent, less Income Tax, which, together with the interim dividend already paid, amounts to a total of 6 per cent.

Since the publication of the last Accounts, building operations have been completed and lettings effected in respect of three properties near Oxford Circus, W.1, which, together, provide a total floor space of about 38,000 square feet.

Building is now in progress on six sites in Central London and will, when completed, make available for letting a total of about 187,000 square feet of shop, office, and showroom accommodation, and more than 100 residential units.

Additional properties with development potential have been acquired during the year and your Directors are well satisfied with the way in which the Company's affairs are moving forward.

The report was adopted.

ORIGIN OF NAME

I read with some interest the letter of Mr. Joseph Nehama, in your issue of May 20, regarding the origin of the name Belisha. A contraction of Ben-Elisha, this name is quite common in various forms in the countries of North Africa. Some of these variations are Bellicha, Bellichat, Bellisa, Bellessa, and Benlicha. A Rabbi Hayyim Bellicha is mentioned in a book by Abraham Raphael Coriat published in Pisa in 1717.—SAMUEL H. ABRAMSON, 294 Fisher Avenue, White Plains, N.Y.

WIMBLEDON ZIONISTS

I am attempting to start a Young Zionist Society in the Wimbledon area for the 17-25 age group. Will anyone interested please get in touch with me at the address below or telephone LIB. 6827.—MICHAEL COHEN, 84 Queens Road, S.W.19.

HISTORY OF THE "NEW"

In connection with the bicentenary celebrations of our synagogue, its history, "The 200-Year-Old New Synagogue," was written by Mr. A. B. Levy. There are a few copies available, and any member or friend of the synagogue who is interested in having such a copy should communicate with me.—M. SPITZER, Secretary, Egerton Road, Stamford Hill, N.16.

EPSTEIN EXHIBITION

In my Art Notes last week I mistakenly referred to the exhibition at the Leicester Galleries as the first Epstein exhibition since his death. There was an excellent exhibition of the sculptor's work at the Ben Uri Art Gallery in November, 1959, very shortly after Epstein's death. I apologise to the Ben Uri for this error.—CHARLES S. SPENCER, 7 Cambridge Road, Twickenham.

Business News

When Mr. H. W. Collins and Mr. K. Heide were demobbed 14 years ago they spent their gratuity on a small business which they began by repairing furniture and upholstery. Gradually they began selling furniture in a small shop in West End Lane, Hampstead. Last week they opened a large new showroom in Finchley Road, under the name of Woollens Interiors. All the accessories for the home, including pottery, china, glass, vases, light fittings, carpets, and curtain materials, come from many parts of the Continent, from Israel, as well as from firms in England.

MISSING RELATIVES

Information about the following persons sought by relatives should be sent to THE JEWISH CHRONICLE, 32 Furnival Street, London, E.C.4, which will forward the information to those concerned.

Sie Micha Balon and family and Kiwe Leiba Balon and family, formerly of Akmene, Lithuania; Zana and Ella Kreiger and family (furriers), formerly of Alexandrastrasse, Riga, Latvia; Freda and David Kissen (lawyer), Leah and Israel Morein, and Bertha and Emmanuel Jefuchmanov, formerly of Riga, Latvia, are all sought by Stanley D. Levi, of Southport.

Benjamin Demszack, aged about 70, tailor, son of Avram Itzhak and Bela, formerly of Poland, now in Antwerp, sought by nephew, Israel Demsack, aged 53, son of Shlomo Haim Abd Mashe, in Israel.

Jacob (Jankel) or Itzhak Snopkowski or Stejman, who emigrated to England in 1914, is sought by his father, Kalman Snopkovsky, son of Jankel (Jacob) and Hinda (nee Gottesgnad) in Israel.

Samuel Rosenfeld, skin merchant, formerly of Hamburg, sought by S. Gautman, aged 76, leather merchant, formerly of Bialystok, now in America.

Sam or Oscar Frankel, last heard of 35-40 years ago in Stepney, London, father of Woolf Frankel, eldest son born 1915 in London, and Mary, eldest daughter, is sought by his brother, Abraham Frankel, formerly of Vienna, Austria, now in Israel.

Dolly Smilovici, brother of Ada and brother-in-law of Hedi, formerly of Bucharest in 1938-1942, and family sought by Mrs. Margit Arens (nee Wagner) in Aachen.

Investments

THE PROBLEM OF WAR LOAN

By our City Editor

The "gilt-edged" market slumps. War Loan reaches its lowest-ever point, and still there are no buyers. Thousands of small investors see the value of their War Loan holdings steadily being whittled away.

The reasons for the fall should be well known by now. A change from cheap to dear money, the threat of still higher interest rates, selling of Government stocks by the banks, the attraction of safe and sure investments outside the gilt-edged market, are all contributory causes.

Many investors have long since thrown their War Loan overboard, but others still hang on in the hope that the price will recover in time.

Many War Loan holders now take the view that it is too late to sell, others that they cannot afford to take further risk by selling and reinvesting in ordinary shares. It might seem a fantastic move, but a switch from War Loan into a rubber share, such as Highlands and Lowlands, will give the investor a much better chance of regaining lost capital than he is ever likely to get by holding War Loan and simply hoping that something will happen.

While the stock markets falter company news continues to be encouraging. Many more companies have announced higher earnings and dividends.

J. Collett, the hat makers, join in the good news with past year profits at £198,519 against £181,547, and a dividend of 24 per cent against a 20 per cent dividend and a 2½ per cent net capital distribution last time.

J. Lyons, the famous caterers, had a record year. Trading profits rose from £5.3 million to £6.9 million in the year to last March. Sales were a record, with some departments boosted by last summer's sun. Dividend is up from 2s. 10d. to 3s. 2d. a share.

From many sections of the textile and clothing trades the news is good. Mr. Lewis Harris, Chairman and Managing Director of L. Harris (Harella), considers prospects "most encouraging." The company's range of garments is being extended; expenditure on the retail companies in the group is showing results. Mr. Harris will bring shareholders up to date with current year conditions at the annual meeting on July 11. Meanwhile he indicates that arrangements are being considered with a view to funding bank overdrafts which stood at £544,696 at the end of 1959.

Mr. Samuel Goldstein, Chairman and Joint Managing Director of Ellis & Goldstein, reports increased turnover in the first half of this year. Forward orders are again satisfactory. All being well the past year's profit level of £680,061 before tax should be fully maintained. Dividend is 35 per cent on a capital increased by "seven-for-20" scrip issue.

Referring to the announcement made in April, the Directors of the Bank Leumi le-Israel B.M. have now decided to issue a total of 2,450,000 Ordinary Shares or "A" Ordinary Shares of I£1 each at an issue price of I£1.50, of which 2,250,000 shares will be issued to stockholders on the registers of the Bank at the close of business on June 21, 1960, in the proportion of two new shares for every three existing Stock Units of I£1 then held, fractions of a new share being disregarded, and the relative Provisional Allotment Letters will be posted to the stockholders on Tuesday. Both the Ordinary Shares and the "A" Ordinary Shares will be converted into Stock. The remaining 200,000 shares will be offered to members of the staff in Israel at the same issue price.

UNITED DRAPERY STORES
A Group of Companies comprising over 750 Retail Shops, Department Stores and Distributive Businesses in all principal towns throughout the United Kingdom and Eire

Extract from the Chairman's Statement from the Report and Accounts for the year ended January 30, 1960.

The Group trading profit for the year amounts to £9,024,834, which is an increase of £1,111,907 over last year's figure. Of this increase the sum of £425,015 relates to the new businesses acquired this year and last and £686,892 represents increased profits from our previously owned businesses.

A big and important extension to one of our larger stores has been completed and the improved trading results have since been well up to our expectations. Further extensions are in progress or will start shortly on another four of our department stores. We will also complete the building of a number of new branches for our multiple clothing businesses and for the credit group, all of which are being expanded by the opening of new branches wherever suitable opportunities occur.

The diversity of our retail businesses spread throughout the length and breadth of the country is such as to cater for almost every household requirement and items of wearing apparel.

The current assets, after deducting the current liabilities, show a surplus of £11,825,192 and this is almost £4 million higher than last year. We are, therefore, in a good position to take advantage of suitable opportunities for expansion which might present themselves in the future.

The turnover of the Group for the first quarter of 1960 shows a satisfactory improvement over the comparative period in 1959. This increase is, on a percentage basis, higher than at the same time a year ago.

I am hopeful that our widespread interests, which cover the whole of the retail consumer field, will continue to show progressive improvement and provided that no exceptional circumstances intervene, we shall be able, next year, to present again a satisfactory Report.

Eichmann Case Before U.N.

were gassed and murdered, among them over one million children," she said. "Who can encompass this picture in all its horror and its consequences for the Jewish people for many generations to come and for Israel?

"Here was destroyed the natural reservoir of all that is needed for a new country—learning, skill, devotion, idealism; a pioneering spirit. Will our Argentinian friends not see the exceptional nature and uniqueness of this case?

"I am sure their conception of right and justice must place this isolated incident in the proper perspective," Mrs. Meir added.

Mrs. Meir denied that the Israeli Premier had said Israel would never return Eichmann, claiming that Dr. Amadeo had quoted out of context.

Dr. Amadeo, who made no attempt to whitewash Eichmann or claim the traditional right of asylum in Latin America, did say that during the Hitler period refugees of all flags were received by Argentina and they could not "separate the slag from pure gold." Not everybody could, at that time, enter the country with their papers in good order, many Jews included.

This statement roused Mrs. Meir, who protested at the Argentine representative "equating Nazi murderers and their victims in the same breath." And when Dr. Amadeo said the State must protect people from "armed bands," which he compared with "lynchers," Mrs. Meir retorted that the Jewish volunteers neither lynched nor shot Eichmann, but brought him before the bar of justice.

Treading a cautious path between Israel and Argentina, Sir Pierson Dixon, the British representative, declared that two principles were involved: respect for sovereign rights, and the bringing to justice of those responsible for the monstrous crimes of Nazism. The two countries involved accepted both of these principles, and the United Kingdom had hoped the position could be adjusted before the Council met.

Since, however, the British position on the question of sovereignty coincided with that of Argentina, and American amendments to the resolution stated clearly the world's concern that Nazis should be punished, and also expressed horror at Nazi crimes, Britain would support the resolution.

For the United States Mr. Cabot Lodge also supported the Argentine attitude on sovereignty, but pointed out that the matter could not be considered apart from "the monstrous acts with which Eichmann is charged." He described the resolution as moderate and submitted his amendments.

Mr. Sobolev, the Soviet representative, castigated Argentina for harbouring Nazis, West Germany for maintaining them in high places, and Nato for using them in important posts.

He described Eichmann as "the head of a specific Gestapo department directed to carry out the destruction of the Jewish people." He quoted documents signed by the Western Powers pledging themselves to hunt down and try war criminals.

ARGENTINE U.N. MAN SIDED WITH NAZIS

BUENOS AIRES

Two Opposition Members of the Argentine Parliament tabled a resolution in the Lower House on Wednesday asking for the replacement of Argentina's current representative at the U.N. Security Council debate on the Eichmann case.

The resolution, tabled by Senor Conrado Storani and Senor Carlos Becerra, of the People's Radical Party, said: "Dr. Amadeo's long and well-known political activity siding with the Rome-Berlin axis during the war gives rise to suspicion of partiality, irrespective of the juridical issue."—(Reuter)

POLISH PREMIER'S TRIBUTE

From a Correspondent

A tribute to the Jewish publication services in Poland was paid by the Polish Prime Minister, Mr. Cyrankiewicz, during his visit to the Jewish bookstand at the International Book Fair at Warsaw.

Mr. Cyrankiewicz expressed his gratification at the achievement of the "Yiddish Book" organisation in Poland. The Premier, who was accompanied by the Minister of Culture and other Government officials, wished the Yiddish book organisation further success in their "useful activities."

MILK LIFELINE

TEL AVIV

The life of a baby boy, Amital Marmelstein, born in Kibbutz Negba three months ago, has been saved by nursing mothers from other Negev kibbutzim, who sent their milk to feed him. Soon after birth the baby became unable to retain his feeds and lost weight so rapidly that he had to be taken to hospital. Because of anxiety his own mother lost her milk, but it was found that the only food which the baby could digest was mother's milk. In answer to an appeal 20 nursing mothers from twelve different kibbutzim volunteered to send their milk to help feed Amital. Thanks to this the baby has now recovered sufficiently to be allowed home.

SOVIET WRITER'S 60th BIRTHDAY

From a Correspondent

The Yiddish Writers' Group in Poland sent a congratulatory message to Joseph Rabin, the Yiddish writer in Moscow, on his 60th birthday. The occasion was celebrated as an important literary event. Rabin being regarded as among the leading Yiddish authors whose work has been translated into Russian and several other languages used by the people of the Soviet Union.

Rabin was for many years the editor of the Yiddish children's journal, "Pioneer," and before the war was Chairman of the Writers' Association in Biro-Bidjan. His most popular books, which have a wide readership in Russia today, are the novels describing the heroism of the Russian people during the Second World War, and in some of these he also depicts Jewish partisans who left the ghetto to fight against the Nazis.

YEMENI MADE AMBASSADOR

Oxford Graduate

From our Own Correspondent

TEL AVIV

A former Yemeni member of Palmach who had a meeting with Colonel Nasser when the Egyptian leader was fighting at Faluja during the Israeli War of Independence has been appointed Ambassador to Liberia.

He is Yeruham Cohen, aged 44, now Israeli Consul in Nigeria. The first Israeli Yemeni to attain the rank of Ambassador, Mr. Cohen, who was born in Tel Aviv of a Yemeni family, served as Adjutant to General Yigal Alon. He later obtained a degree in oriental languages at Oxford and married an English girl who is at present working as a doctor in Lagos Hospital.

"LOWEST" FORM OF DISCRIMINATION'

From a Correspondent

PARIS

"Of all forms of discrimination, those existing in the field of education are the most harmful and the most hateful," M. René Maheu, Deputy Director-General of Unesco, stated at a meeting of a special committee of governmental experts convened here by Unesco to draw up a draft international convention and a draft recommendation concerning various aspects of discrimination in education.

NEW TALKS STARTED

TEL AVIV

A three-man French cultural delegation has arrived here to discuss ways and means of tightening the cultural and scientific relations between the two countries in accordance with the French-Israeli cultural agreement signed in Paris last year. The delegation is headed by M. Philippe Rebeyrol of the French Foreign Ministry's Cultural Department.

According to the French Embassy here the delegation intends to study ways of intensifying the teaching of French in Israeli schools—with the aim of bringing its status up to that of English. The spokesman added that the 46 scholarships granted by France to Israeli students last year might be increased this year if the French requests were met with understanding.

The Israelis have also appointed a three-man delegation headed by Mr. M. Fisher, former Ambassador in Paris, to discuss all relevant problems, and a permanent joint committee will be formed for the application of the agreement.

At the opening session of the talks Mr. Moshe Sharett and the French Ambassador, M. Bourdeillette, stressed the cultural ties and the importance of cultural understanding between the two countries.

NEW YORK FORBIDS NAZI RALLY

"Halfpenny Hitler" Expelled

From our Own Correspondent

NEW YORK

Following numerous protests Mr. Robert Wagner, the Mayor of New York, has forbidden George Lincoln Rockwell, the notorious antisemite and self-styled leader of the American Nazi Party, to hold a rally in New York on July 4—American Independence Day.

Announcing this decision Mr. Wagner said that there was clear evidence Rockwell intended to incite people to riot by preaching a philosophy of race hatred and violence in a city where people of all races lived peacefully together. He described Rockwell as a "halfpenny Hitler" and said that as Mayor of New York he had a primary and overwhelming obligation to the people for the maintenance of law and order.

Earlier, Rockwell had to be protected by police when he appeared in the New York Supreme Court, where he was attending the hearing of his application for permission to hold his rally in Union Square—New York's equivalent to Hyde Park. Numerous organisations, Jewish and non-Jewish, had asked the judge to grant an injunction prohibiting the city from issuing Rockwell with a permit.

During a break in the hearing Rockwell appeared before TV cameras and began denouncing American Jews as traitors. Immediately an enraged crowd of about 150 onlookers started a near-riot and brawled with police and TV cameramen in an attempt to get at Rockwell. Eventually, the combined efforts of about twenty policemen succeeded in getting Rockwell out of the building and into a taxi, but even they could not prevent infuriated spectators from spitting on the car as it drove away.

The hearing was adjourned, but as the Mayor then announced that the city would not grant permission for the rally to be held, the court procedure on Thursday was a pure formality. In any case, Rockwell himself was no longer there to hear it. He was expelled from New York on Wednesday and put aboard a plane for Washington by detectives. Even at the airport Rockwell had to be protected by police from a hostile crowd.

Rockwell is a notorious antisemite. In the last few weeks his American Nazi Party has been increasing its activities in Washington, where it has its headquarters. Many visitors to the city have been upset by the vitriolic attacks which are made on Jews at its public meetings. They are particularly incensed by the fact that the police were not only protecting the fascists from any interference by onlookers, but actually using violence against Jews and others who made protests. Police officers were said to have stated that their instructions were to protect free speech and silence all heckling. Though booing was prohibited, the shouting of "Sieg Heil" was permissible.

WAY OF ATONEMENT

Over 3,000 German Catholics from Berlin and all parts of North Germany have attended a special atonement service on the site of the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp. The service was conducted by the Bishop of Hildesheim, who said that they had come to the site "because here a great guilt has been placed on the shoulders of all Germans." However, the German people should not be collectively blamed for the crimes committed by the Nazis, he stated, adding that it was not true that all Germans had known about, and supported, the horrible measures taken against the Jews.

NO DANGER TO WAILING WALL

From a Correspondent

Miss Kathleen Kenyon, who is heading a British archæological expedition to the Old City of Jerusalem, has denied in London that there is any truth in the rumours circulating in Israel that the excavations are to be in the vicinity of the Wailing Wall.

Miss Kenyon's group, it is understood, will carry out excavations next spring in the Jewish quarter of the Old City, which is now uninhabited and desolate. She has been in touch with Mr. G. Shomron, the Chargé d'Affaires at the Israeli Embassy in London, about this matter, in order to allay the apprehensions that had arisen over her intentions.

From our Own Correspondent

JERUSALEM

Jordan has assured the United Nations authorities that the Kenyon archæological mission does not intend to make diggings in the immediate vicinity of the Wailing Wall.

The U.N. notified the Israeli Foreign Ministry of the assurance following the Ministry's request for an investigation of the mission's intentions. The Knesset is, on Monday, due to discuss the subject on a Cherut motion that the Kenyon excavations would jeopardise the safety of Jewry's most holy site.

VIENNESE JEWS THREATENED

From our Correspondent

VIENNA

Anonymous callers have been 'phoning Jewish institutions here with threats that they were to be blown up in revenge for Eichmann's capture.

The first call was received by the caretaker of Vienna's only remaining synagogue in the Seitenstettengasse. She was told to leave the building immediately as a bomb "to avenge Eichmann" would explode there within ten minutes. The hospital which is run by the Jewish Community Council also received six similar threatening calls within a period of 30 minutes. In both cases police investigations failed to find anything.

SEEKING TO SHAPE DEMOCRATS' POLICY

NEW YORK

The United States should take a "new initiative" in arranging peace negotiations between the Arabs and Israel and seek means of ending the Middle East arms race. These suggestions were made by Mr. I. M. Engel, Honorary President of the American Jewish Committee, to the Democratic Party platform committee which is busy shaping policy for the coming Presidential election campaign.

Mr. Shad Polier, Vice-President of the American Jewish Congress, in a statement to the committee asked the Democratic Party to adopt as part of its policy the protection of U.S.A. citizens against growing religious discrimination by Arab countries. He attacked the American Government's "passive acceptance" of the Arabs' refusal to grant entry and transit visas to American Jewish citizens, and their banning of Jewish military and civilian personnel from the Dhahran air base in Saudi Arabia.

The statement urged that the President should use his authority under the Douglas Amendment to the Mutual Security Act, the purpose of which is to prevent any Government receiving American aid from boycotting or blockading any nation friendly to the U.S.A.

APPEAL TO NASSER AND BEN-GURION

WASHINGTON

Senator James W. Fulbright, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, blamed both Mr. Ben-Gurion and Colonel Nasser—"two most powerful potential antagonists"—for their failure to settle the Arab refugee problem and to secure a relaxation of Middle East tension. Speaking in the Senate, he described the refugee problem as the major source of constant irritation and economic and political instability in the area.

The Israeli Premier and the Egyptian President could help assuage bitterness in the Middle East, Mr. Fulbright said, and appealed to them to overcome their irrational emotions. No progress had been made because neither side was willing to take the first step.

Criticising United States Middle East policy, the Senator stated that this had not always been characterised by clear vision and understanding.

NEW YORK

A leading American Reform Rabbi, Dr. Bernard J. Bamberger, of the Congregation Sharei Tefillah in New York, has proposed to the Central Conference of American Rabbis in Detroit that a "declaration of principles" be written to clarify the relationship between Reform Judaism and Israel.

He said that such a resolution, which had never before been attempted, might be beyond their powers, but should be attempted in order to "offer our people some direction."

Among the questions which he put to the conference were: "Are the Jews primarily a religious or a racial group?; can Reform Judaism play a significant rôle in Israel where Orthodoxy is to all intents and purpose the State religion?; what is the relationship of Reform Judaism to Zionism?"

SYRIAN JEWESS ARRESTED

From our Own Correspondent

TEL AVIV

A young Syrian Jewess, Evelyn Shouka, was arrested this week by the Syrian authorities while trying to cross into Lebanon.

According to the Syrians the girl was using a false Lebanese identity card to enable her to reach Beirut and thence to leave for Israel. She is said to have admitted that three of her brothers live in the Jewish State.

GENEVA—Mr. Shimon Btesh, who was formerly Director-General of the Israeli Ministry of Health, has been appointed Director of the World Health Organisation's Division for medical care.—(J.C. Correspondent)

German Reburied with Jews

WUERZBERG

Baron von Manstein, a member of a noble German Protestant family who adopted the Jewish faith and stuck to it throughout the Nazi régime until his death in 1944, has been reburied in the Wuerzberg Jewish cemetery.

About forty people, including representatives of the local German Government, the local Jewish community, the Bavarian Union of Jewish Communities, and the Central Jewish Welfare Agency in Germany were present. A number of the late Baron's Christian friends, including some who witnessed his burial by the Nazis at a local Christian cemetery in 1944, were also present.

Baron von Manstein is now buried next to his wife, "Fanny" Franziska von Manstein, who was buried in the Jewish cemetery during the war. The Baron had purchased the grave-site in 1941, at which time he also ordered a gravestone with a Hebrew inscription.

Herr David Schuster, the Chairman of the Wuerzberg Jewish community, has disclosed that he received many letters from former German Jews now living in various countries, welcoming the plans for von Manstein's reburial and paying homage to his outstanding personality and steadfastness as an Orthodox member of the Jewish community throughout the Nazi years. Among the writers were Dr. Hannover, the former rabbi of the Wuerzberg Jewish community, who now lives in Haifa, and Herr Stoll, the former director of the Wuerzberg Jewish teachers' seminary, who now lives in the United States.
